Slavs Hint Willingness To Cooperate With West

Tito Hailed on First Appearance Since Cominform Blast; Bloc Talk Revived

Belgrade, June 30 (AP).—Marshal Tito's Communists today nailed up another proclamation of Yugoslavia's nationalistic independence of Moscow.

They hinted their willingness to deal with the West as well as the East on a basis of peaceful cooperation and equality, and revived the project of a Balkan federation, previously derided in Moscow.

The program was announced as Tito appeared in public today for the first time in more than two weeks. Accompanied by top Communists and high-ranking army officers, he inspected a construction job here. Members of youth brigades working on the job hailed him when he appeared.

Countrymen Behind Him

His appearance indicated Yugoslavia's Communists still are behind Tito in defiance of the accusation by the Communist International Information Bureau (Cominform) that he is leading them astray from the world party line.

Reliable word was received here that the Cominform plans to discontinue publishing its biweekly newspaper in Belgrade. This was interpreted as meaning that the Cominform would move its headquarters from Belgrade.

Outwardly the Yugoslav party leaders continued to hold out the olive branch by declaring they stood for "strengthening and further developing tight cooperation with the Soviet Union" and with the "people's democracies" of the other Soviet satellites.

But they asserted stoutly, "The national independence of the people of Yugoslavia is the condition for their road to socialism and their progress in general."

Would Strengthen Army

They called for a "general strengthening" of the Yugoslav army which they declared "protects the freedom and independence of the people of Yugoslavia."

These declarations were contained in an eight-point program which Yugoslav Communist leaders have drawn up for the fifth congress of the party July 21. Its publication in the party organ, Borba, came only a few hours after the Yugoslav Communist Party had denounced as lies and slander a Communist Information Bureau statement calling for Tito and his chief aides to change their course or lose their leadership.

The party program espousing a Balkan bloc called for "uniting the Albanian and Bulgarian peoples and the Yugoslav people on the principle of national equality."

Willing to Cooperate With All

(Communist Premier Georgi Dimitrov of Bulgaria proposed a Balkan federation last January after Tito had spoken favorably of the idea. The two leaders were believed to have discussed some phases of the project at a conference. Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper in Moscow, openly declared Moscow's opposition. After this slap, both Dimitrov and Tito were silent.)

Thundershowers Ease Heat Again; Cooler Today

Scattered thundershowers starting at 5:15 p. m. yesterday released Washington from another heat wave. The temperature tumbled from 88 at 5 p. m. to 77 by 6:30 p. m.

From a low of 72 at 6:20 a. m., the mercury rose to 90, the day's high at 3 and 4 p. m. Light showers and cooling breezes provided welcome relief.

Arvey Sees Eisenhower's Name Offered

Chicago Democrat Sure General Will Be Put in Nomination

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Jacob M. Arvey, chairman of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee, predicted last night that the name of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be presented to the Democratic National Convention.

"I don't think there is any power on earth that can prevent it," Arvey told The Post in a long-distance telephone interview.

Asked if he personally would put Eisenhower's name in nomination, Chicago's new Democratic boss at first declined comment and then said:

"There are many others far better qualified than I am to propose him."

No Recent Contacts

Former Mayor Edward J. Kelly's successor as head of the potent Cook County machine denied any recent contact with General Eisenhower "or any of his representatives," but told The Post:

"I place full faith in his statement that he is not a candidate.

"Nor do I believe he would yield to any group of politicians or allow his name to be used to save a political party.

"But if he is nominated in response to an outpouring of sentiment from the citizens of this country, his concept of duty is such that I think he would feel under obligation to accept."

Arvey said he had received hundreds of letters from nonpoliticians urging him to support Eisenhower, and that other Democratic politicians have had the same experience.

"There isn't any question about the sentiment," he said.

Another Southern Boom

Arvey predicted Eisenhower's name will be presented as another Eisenhower boom rolled out of the deep South.

In Mobile, Ala., former Lieut. Gov. Handy Ellis, chairman-designate of Alabama's mostly anti-Truman delegation, said Alabama will field its lead-off position on the Democratic roll call to Texas, Kansas, or any other State that wishes to nominate Eisenhower.

But official Washington continued skeptical of the latest Eisenhower flurry. One source, close to the Administration, said:

"Before that time comes I think General Eisenhower will have

'Snuffy' Smith, Famed Hero of War, Is One of Victims in Virginia Tragedy

By The Associated Press

Five Naval Reserve fliers, including war hero "Snuffy" Smith, died yesterday in an airplane crash 5 miles west of Fredericksburg, Va.

All five aboard the two-engined Navy transport were from Atlanta or vicinity. They were returning to Atlanta from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia.

Smith, a lieutenant commander listed on the records as "Allen W.," held the Navy Cross, the Silver Star, the Air Medal and the Purple Heart. The Navy Cross rates second only to the Congressional Medal of Honor.

During the war, Smith had 60 months of sea duty and was credited with shooting down a "Tojo" or heavy Nip bomber, and with the sinking of a light Japanese cruiser and a heavy Japanese cruiser.

The others aboard the craft were Lieut. Comdr. R. L. S. Eidson, 35, a wartime instructor, Lieut. James A. Cotton, Machinist Julius Bassolotti, 44, a veteran of 22 years in the service and Lieut. (jg.) Cornelius Idwise.

Smith, who was the subject of a magazine article called "Plug that Rathole," served aboard the USS Yorktown, the USS Ranger and the USS Omaney Bay.

When the Omaney Bay was sunk in 1945, Smith was badly wounded. He described the sinking as like "flying into Stone Mountain and then ramming Australia."

One of the best pilots ever to set wheel on a flight deck, Smith flew a torpedo bomber. He got both ships credited to him on water top flights through piles of antiaircraft shells.

He participated in the Marines' invasion of Peleliu island, Leyte, the second battle of the Philippine Sea, Mindoro and Luzon.

Portions of bodies and pieces of the plane were scattered over a hundred-yard area in a heavily wooded section.

The crash occurred about 3 p. m. (EDT).

The Navy announced last night that three bodies had been recovered at the crash scene. A witness reported finding an open

Bevin Says Western Powers Will Stand Firm on Berlin

London, June 30 (AP). — British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said today the western powers are determined to continue flying food to blockaded Berlin despite the risk of grave trouble with the Russians.

He told the Commons: "If ever there was a time to stand firm it is now."

Bevin said the western allies are considering a direct approach to the Kremlin in an attempt to settle the Berlin crisis. He did not specify whether the approach would consist merely of a protest against the blockade or would include a request for four-power talks. He did say Britain is ready to renew four-power attempts to settle East-West disputes in Berlin —after Russia lifts her blockade.

A government source said the United States, Britain and France already have begun consultations on form and language of the communication. It was understood this was one of the topics discussed when Bevin met with U. S. Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas and French Ambassador Rene Massigli during the day.

One official British source said

Truman Says Congress Aimed To Kill Public Power Policy

President Truman sharply criticized actions of the Eightieth Congress again last night as he signed three bills.

The Chief Executive called it "reckless and irresponsible" to refuse to provide funds for a Tennessee Valley Authority steam generating plant "when the security of the Nation may be adversely affected." He called it an "area of critical production."

He did so in signing the Government Corporations Appropriation Act, which includes funds for TVA.

In signing an appropriation bill for the Interior Department, he said he complied because a veto would close down operations.

He protested a provision which would bring about removal of Michael Straus, Reclamation Commissioner, and Richard Boke, regional director of the Central Valley in California, "who have supported the public power policy of the Government."

Neither the bill nor Mr. Truman named the two officials affected.

Mr. Truman accused Congress of delaying important reclamation work "in all of the great basin areas of the West" by voting less money than he asked for reclamation.

He said congressional action on the bill evidenced "an intent to destroy the national power policy."

The third bill with which he found fault extends the life of the Virgin Islands Co. one year. This is an agency under the Interior Department which promotes economic life of the islands.

Mr. Truman said the law does not meet the needs. He termed it a stopgap doing little to make the islands self-sustaining and raising standards of living. The United States should set a progressive example, he said.

Packers Union Accepts Ban on Communists

Chicago, June 30 (AP).—The CIO United Packinghouse Workers convention voted today to comply with non-Communist phases of the Taft-Hartley law.

The action was approved by a voice vote. At a preconvention meeting the union's executive board decided to recommend compliance.

The act required that union leaders sign affidavits that they have no Communist connections. Unless a union complies with the law, it is barred from utilizing the services of the National Labor Relations Board in wage disputes.

Citizens Asked To Aid Hunt For Girl Killer

Police Seek Man Seen Near Scene With Blood On Face and Shirt

Police yesterday began searching for a man in a blood-stained shirt as laboratory tests proved 11-year-old Carol Bardwell was raped by her killer in Rock Creek Park Sunday.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, called upon every policeman and every citizen to join in tracking down a suspect seen late Sunday afternoon trying to thumb a ride at 14th st. and Park rd. nw.

The man, Barrett told reporters, was wearing a white shirt splattered with blood and there was blood on his face.

Seen Trying to Hitch Ride

Barrett said a motorist told police he saw the man trying to hitch a ride between 4:30 and 5 p. m. Sunday.

The suspect was described as a white man, about 35 years old, 5 feet 9 or 5 feet 10, between 155 and 160 pounds of slender build, with sharp or oval features and light brown disheveled hair. He wore no hat.

Barrett said police are "extremely anxious" to obtain any bit of information possible about this man.

"It is urgently requested," he said, "that any citizen who may have picked up this man, or who can furnish any information relative to this man, come forward immediately, as the information may prove vital in connection with the Bardwell murder case."

The description fitted in part with that of a man seen at about 6:30 p. m. yesterday in the park, clad only in shoes and a shirt.

Charles K. Wheatley, 38, of 3109 N. 8th st., Arlington, Va., who was returning in his car from Silver Spring, Md., saw the man near Sherill dr. and Beach dr. close to Walter Reed Hospital. This is about one mile from the scene of the Bardwell murder.

Seek 3 Negro Girls

Although Wheatley gave chase on foot and four police scout cars joined in the search, the man escaped. Park police said the man answered the description of a man who exposed himself before a woman near Pierce Mill in the park last June 1.

Wheatley said the man was chunky, about 35, had tanned or swarthy skin, black hair and was wearing what looked like a faded khaki shirt.

The police chief added that police are still anxious to locate three

Nickel Fare Ends In New York City After 44 Years

Authorities expect some confusion when the 44-year-old reign of the nickel fare ends on the city's rapid transit system.

The new fares are 10 cents on about 239 miles of subway and elevated lines, and 7 cents on 182 route-miles of trolleys and 133 miles of bus lines in Brooklyn, Queens and Staten Island.

There also is a combined 12-cent fare which permits the city's strap-hangers to transfer from bus and trolley to subway or vice versa.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York has ordered 20 million new dimes from the Philadelphia Mint to take care of the daily average of eight million or more daily users on the transit system.

Young Testifies on Gambling For Hour Before Grand Jury

District Commissioner John Russell Young yesterday testified for an hour in the special grand jury probe of Washington's gambling.

He told reporters later that he gave the gambling probers information on the Board of Commissioners' authority over various District departments, but declined to give reporters details on his actual testimony.

When he entered the grand jury room, followed by United States Attorney George Morris Fay and Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray, Commissioner Young carried with him a portfolio of papers, which he said showed the organizational setup of the District government.

Asked by reporters if he was questioned about the possibility of bribes being paid by gamblers for "police protection," the District's chief executive answered:

"I don't mind telling you that I was not asked that question."

When reporters inquired if he believes gambling is a menace to the District, Commissioner Young replied:

"I would rather not answer that while this investigation is going on."

To the question, "Do you feel that police are doing all they can to wipe out gambling?" he retorted, "You'd better ask the grand jury about that."

Asked for comment on Fay's declaration at the start of the probe that Washington's gambling is a 100-million-dollar-a-year racket, Commissioner Young referred to a report issued by Supt. of Police

Army to Pay Reservists For Drilling

314,000 to Benefit From New Policy; Draft Proclamation Ready for Signing

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Army announced yesterday that it will give training with pay to 314,000 reservists during the 12-month period beginning today.

For the first time, Army reservists will be paid for inactive duty training and yesterday's announcement outlined the new training system under which units will conduct weekly, biweekly, monthly or quarterly paid drills.

Priority will be given to Reserve units picked to form part of the new 18-division "mobile striking force" which is to be organized during the coming year. Army area commanders were directed to select reserve units for incorporation in that mobilization day force and send their recommendations to the Pentagon.

The Army also said that it will abolish the much criticized "composite groups" of reserves—officers and men with no definite training or mobilization assignments. The latter will be placed in training organizations, it was said, but no details were given.

Truman Has Draft Proclamation

Meanwhile, a proclamation ordering men aged 18 through 25 to report for draft registration beginning August 16 was awaiting President Truman's signature at the White House. Draft officials said the proclamation together with the first batch of Selective Service regulations had been submitted to the Chief Executive.

The latter deal largely with organization of the Selective Service system. Regulations dealing with deferments, age groups to be called first and other such important questions are still under study.

When Mr. Truman issues the draft proclamation and initial regulations, he is expected to name Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey, present chief of the Office of Selective Service Records, as director of Selective Service—the post he held during the war. State draft directors and members of local boards also must be appointed.

Guardsmen Must Register

Draft officials pointed out that all men aged 18 through 25 must register under the law except members of the regular armed forces, reservists on active duty and foreign diplomats and members of their families.

Because the old draft law exempted National Guardsmen and all members of the reserve from registration, there is a widespread misapprehension that they do not have to register this time, officials said. Guardsmen or reservists attending summer camps or otherwise on active duty when called for registration have 30 days after leaving active service to register.

Yesterday's Army announcement said that 12 million dollars are available for inactive duty reserve training during fiscal 1949, and established priorities for units to receive it.

Approximately 75 artillery, tank and ordnance units will form "Training Category I," officials said. They will be maintained at full strength and be given 48 drills and 15 days' active duty a year with pay. This is the same training basis as the National Guard.

A total of 35,000 officers and men will form the units given this extensive training. They include approximately 30 Coast Artillery batteries, 40 heavy Field Artillery battalions, eight armored Cavalry tank battalions and five Ordnance depot companies. Other units totaling over 100,000 officers and

Marshall Tells Soviet We'll Stay in Berlin

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

"We are in Berlin as a result of agreements between the governments on the areas of occupation, and we intend to stay."

This brusque warning went out to Soviet Russia yesterday, from Secretary of State and former Chief of Staff of the United States Army George C. Marshall.

Marshall's warning was issued from Walter Reed Hospital, where he is having a physical check-up.

It was followed by announcement that the United States Air Force, which is already doubling its fighter planes in Europe, will increase the number of B-29 Superfortresses from 10 to 30.

Marshall's brief statement added:

"The Soviet attempt to blockade the German civilian population of Berlin raises basic questions of serious import with which we expect to deal promptly.

"Meanwhile, maximum use of air transport will be made to supply the civilian population. It has been found, after study, that the tonnage of foodstuffs and supplies which can be lifted by air is

Allies Will Use More Aircraft; Russians Stop Barge Traffic

Berlin, June 30 (AP).—An Anglo-American air caravan of more than 200 transport planes came to the rescue of beleaguered Berlin today in the greatest air ferrying operation in peacetime history.

Russian authorities who clamped an overland blockade on the German capital affecting supplies from the West 10 days ago apparently now have added a water blockade to the land siege.

In answer to a Russian promise that the overland blockade would be lifted as soon as possible Col. Frank L. Howley, United States commandant in the German capital said: "We want deeds rather than words."

British Fly 100 Planes

The British Royal Air Force, joining the Americans in the ferrying operation, flew 100 transport planes into Berlin today. They promised to double the number by the end of the week.

The United States Air Force, which launched the air operation last Sunday, had sent 125 transports to the city by late afternoon. More were on their way to Berlin's Tempelhof Airdrome, carrying vital supplies for the people of the city's western sector.

United States authorities at Tempelhof said 157 planeloads of supplies had been received during a 24-hour period up to last midnight.

The British said they would fly their transports at night, as the Americans are doing, and carry enough gasoline to avoid refueling delays in Berlin.

A Plane Every 6 Minutes

Eyewitnesses at Gatow, the British airfield, said Dakota and York transport planes landed at that base today at the rate of one every 6 minutes.

The water blockade was reported by a British officer in Hamburg, who said the Russians had halted the movement of barges along the Elbe River. Previously the Russians had permitted a few barges to filter through to Berlin.

Maj. Gen. E. O. Herbert, British commandant in Berlin, expressed confidence that the airborne lifeline would build up supplies "to last a long time."

The Western allies took note of a vigorous attack on their expanded emergency air freight service published in the official Soviet newspaper, Taegliche Rundschau. The Russian organ said:

"Claims that this service is designed to feed Berlin are a bluff to cloak the plundering of the city by shipping out machinery and products on the return flight."

Dewey Hopes To Clean Up U. S. 'Cobwebs'

Says 6-Year N. Y. Job Has Taught Him What To Expect of Democrats

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Albany, N. Y., June 30.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, saying he had spent six years cleaning up "cobwebs" in the State government he had inherited from Democratic predecessors, today looked forward to attacking a 16-year accumulation of "cobwebs" in the Federal Government.

He made this remark in a talk to more than 5000 persons who greeted him upon his return from the Republican National Convention that nominated him for the presidency, a return that was delayed by a stop of several days at his Pawling, N. Y., farm.

Dewey spoke from the steps of the State Capitol. He arrived at Albany about 5:30 p. m. after motoring from his farm where he had been resting since Saturday. He and Mrs. Dewey left the farm shortly before 3 p. m., and were accompanied by a police escort. Their sons, Thomas, jr., and John, stayed at the farm.

Riding with the Governor was his adviser on international affairs, John Foster Dulles, who also serves as Dewey's main contact man with the State Department. Dulles has had the assignment since the 1944 campaign when Dewey called for a bipartisan foreign policy.

Dewey and Dulles plan to continue conferences tonight at the Governor's Mansion, and a press conference on the subject of their discussion is tentatively set for 11 a. m. Thursday. The Soviet pressure on Berlin is understood to be getting close attention in their talks.

Bank of America Faces Charges

The Federal Reserve Board has filed a complaint against the Bank of America, charging the huge California financial enterprise with violation of the Clayton Antitrust Act, it was learned last night.

According to an authoritative source, the complaint, filed on the West Coast, also names the bank's affiliated company, Transamerica Corp.

But Speaker Is Held Liable

Radio Stations Cannot Censor Political Talks, FCC Repeats

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday affirmed its previous ruling that a radio station may not censor the content of a political broadcast, no matter how libelous the material may appear to be.

And it asserted anew that since Congress has tied the hands of the broadcaster in this matter, the station may not be sued for damages by those who feel they are injured by the broadcast statements.

The commission emphasized however, that this immunity from damage actions does not extend to the actual speaker, who may be talking on either paid or free time. The speaker, SCC said, "is completely liable for the contents of his remarks."

FCC pointed out that under the law a station may refuse to carry any political broadcast for any given office in any particular election. But, it said that once the outlet is committed to handling such broadcasts, it may act only to prevent the airing of "obscene, indecent or profane language." These are ordinary prohibitions applying to all forms of communication.

The commission issued these policy declarations in final form over the protests of the National Association of Broadcasters and a long list of individual station owners. Those protesting said the matter requires much more extended study and public hearing of all points of view. Two of FCC's members, Paul A. Walker and Edward M. Webster, did not take part.

Anti-Communists Kill Pilot, Steal Bulgarian Plane

Istanbul, Turkey, June 30 (AP).—A blood-stained plane, its pilot killed and two other crewmen wounded, landed at Istanbul Airport tonight with 20 Bulgarians aboard.

Turkish police immediately clamped a tight security blanket on the landing, but not before it was learned anti-Communists had commandeered the plane while aloft.

Airport witnesses said they were told some of the passengers declared themselves Communists, said they did not leave Bulgaria willingly and demanded to be returned.

The Communists, however, apparently were outnumbered and were forced to submit to the anti-Communists, who killed the pilot and wounded the other two crewmen shortly after the takeoff, the attendants said.

A retired Bulgarian air force officer then took the controls and headed for Istanbul, landing only after six perilous approaches to the airport.

Immediately after the plane landed, fisticuffs broke out among the political antagonists aboard and police had to use force to halt it.

Dewey Vote in November Is One Big IF Between Dulles and State Secretary Job

Only one big IF lies between John Foster Dulles and the job of Secretary of State.

* * * * * * *

That if is the fate of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the November elections. For if Dewey wins, Dulles is known to be his number one choice for the cabinet post. Judging by the conferences now under way between Dulles and Dewey on the international situation, they have little doubt about the if.

Dulles' appointment as Secretary of State under Dewey would come as no surprise to the American people.

Back in 1944, when Dewey waged an unsuccessful campaign against the late President Roosevelt, Dulles was his reported choice for the cabinet post. And since that time, Dulles' place in international affairs has certainly not been lessened.

JOHN FOSTER DULLES

Called 'My Partner'

James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State in 1945 when Dulles accompanied him to the Foreign Ministers' Conference in London, referred to him as "my partner," and called Dulles "one of the best-informed Americans in the field of foreign relations."

Dulles started gathering his international information at 19, when he was secretary to a delegation in 1907 at The Hague Peace Conference. But before that, as an undergraduate at Princeton, he had become interested in international affairs.

Born in Washington February 25, 1888, Dulles was the son and grandson of Presbyterian ministers. His maternal grandfather, John Watson, was Secretary of State under President Benjamin Harrison.

Although Dulles elected international law for his career, he has served under the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America as head of its Commission on a Just and Durable Peace. In this capacity he has urged church leaders to consider and discuss the "extremely urgent matter" of tension between the USSR and the west. He has declared, "the moral and spiritual forces of the world, inadequate as they are, still have power enough to secure a just and lasting peace."

In Law Practice

Since 1911 Dulles has been engaged in the practice of law with the firm of Sullivan and Cromwell. But through the years he has fulfilled diplomatic assignments. In 1917 President Woodrow Wilson assigned him as special State Department representative to negotiate with Central American countries for protection of the Panama Canal against German attack.

After serving as a major in the Army Intelligence during World War I, Dulles was a member of the United States delegation to the Versailles Peace Conference. He helped reestablish financial conditions in several European and South American countries and in 1933 went to Berlin for a conference of Germany's foreign creditors in connection with interest payments on Germany's debt.

During and after the second war, Dulles helped establish Security Council procedure, was general adviser to the United States delegation to the United Nations conference on world organization, and accompanied Secretary of State Marshall to Moscow for the Big Four Foreign Ministers' Conference.

Dulles has been termed an "intellectual who likes material hobbies." Among these are ornithology, yachting, tree surgery, cooking, fishing and woodchopping.

In 1912 he married Janet Pomeroy Avery. The Dulles have three children, John Watson Foster Dulles, Lillian Pomeroy (Mrs. Robert Hinshaw) and Charles Avery Dulles. They live in New York City and have a country home on Long Island Sound.

Dewey Hopes to Clean Up 'Cobwebs' Left by Democrats

Twenty-ninth Division, New York National Guard outfit, and by the music of their band.

The Deweys halted briefly to transfer from their limosines to an open touring car for their ride to the Capitol. They rode up Albany's Broadway and State street. There were scattered crowds along the way, and confetti sprinkled down from the higher buildings.

They got a rousing welcome from the crowd at the Capitol. There were scores of Dewey placards, and welcome signs from local Republican organizations, more signs than he had seen since the Republican convention nominated him for President.

Dewey was greeted at the Capitol by Oswald D. Heck, speaker of the New York Assembly, who declared that the GOP convention chose its presidential nominee "wisely and well."

Dewey told the crowd their welcome was heartwarming "but it is just a little saddening. I was thinking as I came up the street today that now that we have lived in Albany almost six years, it wouldn't seem right at all if we shouldn't be working here next year."

But while he would be unhappy to leave, Dewey said he would be happy, too, "because of the tremendous opportunities that exist, perhaps to make some changes in Washington which might be comparable to the improvements we succeeded in bringing about here in Albany these last six years.

"You know, it is a very strange coincidence, but this capitol was for 20 years in the hands of the Governors of one party (Democrats). Now I am in the position of endeavoring to break 16 years of similar uninterrupted rule in the National Government.

"The problems of getting that House cleaned up are almost the same down there as they were here, only now I have had the benefit of the experience of cleaning up after them in Albany and I think it will be easier in Washington.

Now that Albany, itself a Democratic stronghold, is used to Republican administration, Dewey predicted the people would want to keep a Republican Governor "after I'm gone."

Dewey said his service as Governor had been devoted to "trying to build a better and finer State government, trying to clean up some of the cobwebs we inherited, trying to bring stronger leadership and more responsive government to the people of the State."

"I hope we strengthened some of the fundamentals of governments," said Dewey, "because that is the job we have ahead of us."

Dewey did not refer in his speech to specific current international problems, like the Berlin or the Yugoslav situations.

But he said that all over the world, people are looking to the United States of America "in the prayerful hope that we will lead this great Nation into the paths that will build a firm and a lasting peace in the world."

Dewey attributed America's strength in the world not to resources or geography, but to the Bill of Rights, and to "the great fundamental liberties which for over 160 years have made this Nation the greatest power on earth with only one fifth of the people."

Gov. Dewey Used To Leaking Roof

By a Post Reporter

Albany, N. Y., June 30—If there are any leaks in the White House roof, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York will feel right at home there.

He told a crowd that greeted him here today that the mansion roof has been leaking in the same place at the same time every year, and it's been going on for six years. It seems the snow piles up, and ice forms, and the leaks break through in January. "I won't feel comfortable when I don't have those leaks in January," Dewey commented.

ERP Lands Warned On 'Contraband'

Western European countries participating in the economic recovery program were told bluntly yesterday that shipments of "contraband" into eastern Europe might be a cause for halting American aid.

Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation administrator, added that this rule applied whether the "contraband" goods were American-made or European-made.

"We have in this country certain supplies and materials that we don't ship to nonparticipating countries for strategic reasons," Hoffman said.

Refers to Jet Engine Sale

"If they shouldn't be shipped out of the United States, I think there is good reason why they shouldn't be shipped out of participating countries.

"Outside of these particular items, the greater the volume of trade between the East and the West, the better we like it."

Hoffman made pointed reference to England's sale of so-called "antiquated" jet plane engines to Soviet Russia.

"A jet engine is still a jet engine whether it comes from this country or from a participating country," he said.

Truman Reports to Congress

Hoffman's remarks came at a news conference just as President Truman was reporting to Congress on the 522 million dollars of interim aid voted at a special session last December.

Mr. Truman said the defeat of the Communists in the Italian election last April had confirmed this Nation's "faith" that its foreign aid programs would help preserve freedom in the world.

The interim aid program, he said had prevented starvation, want and ecomomic backsliding in France, Italy and Austria, until the Marshall Plan took over.

"To us, the American people," he said, "our aid was an act of faith in a future in which free men shall prevail. The freely expressed will of the Italian people in their national election has already confirmed that faith.

All but $4,100,000 of the 522 million dollars voted had been allocated by March 1, the report said. It added that the governments of the three countries, particularly Austria and Italy, had taken great pains to see that their citizens knew the aid was a gift of the United States.

Sees No Aid for Yugoslavia

Hoffman told newsmen that he didn't think that the Yugoslavia crisis would lead towards that country being included in the nations benefiting from the Marshall Plan.

"As far as I read the accounts," he remarked, "there is no indication that Yugoslavia won't remain very much in the Eastern orbit."

The State Department, during the day, announced that United States Ambassador Cannon to Yugoslavia, is flying back to this country, arriving probably today. The Department said, however, that his trip was not precipitated by the break between Moscow and Marshal Tito.

Hoffman emphasized that this country has never had any intention of interfering with internal operations particularly currency stabilization of countries participating in the Marshall Plan program. However, he added, it expects those countries to manage their internal affairs so that the maximum benefit from recovery aid can be obtained.

"Our function comes more closely to that of being investment bankers for recovery," he said.

"In other words, we have the perfect right, if a program of a given country in our opinion will not produce results in terms of recovery that makes worthwhile the investment of American dollars, to refuse to invest the American dollars, which we will.

Recovery is Yardstick

"Similarly, if a program once initiated isn't paying out in terms of recovery—and that is the yardstick we use—there, again, we have the right to terminate it or suggest alterations.

"Where we come in on this currency question is that the situation in a country, if it is so unsound due to the fiscal situation that recovery cannot ensue until that situation has been changed, we certainly would have the right to say that until it is improved we don't believe our dollars can bring us the return we want in terms of recovery.

"Success will depend mainly upon our partners across the Atlantic, because the American contribution, large as it is from the standpoint of the American taxpayer, amounts to less than 5 per cent of the annual income of the participating countries.

"This critical 5 per cent will be effective only to the extent that it is used with imagination, courage and vigor to increase the productivity of labor and farms and management throughout 16 European countries."

In spite of better crops in Europe, Hoffman said that shipments of food from this country will be maintained.

"We believe that the better course from the standpoint of recovery is to let that additional food go into a better diet," he said.

Auto Production Lagging More Than in 1945

Detroit, June 30 (AP).—Chances for early new car deliveries are getting worse instead of better.

It was three years ago that the auto industry swung back into civilian production after the war. It is further behind on deliveries now than it was at that time.

In the months since July 1, 1945, the Nation's assembly plants have turned out about 7,600,000 passenger cars and a couple of million trucks and coaches. Its backlog of unfilled orders is being estimated by the National Automobile Dealers Association at approximately six million.

The industry so far this year has built about 1,800,000 passenger cars; it may make two million more during the coming six months.

The industry's general sales managers admit the estimated six million unfilled orders on their dealers' books include thousands of duplications.

District to Get $2,644,000 U. S. Funds for Roads

The District of Columbia will be eligible to receive $2,644,000 a year of Federal roads funds under the new Highway Authorization Act signed Tuesday by President Truman.

Virginia will be eligible for $7,817,000 and Maryland for $4,264,000.

The act, passed by Congress during its recent session, authorized the expenditure of a total of 450 million dollars a year in Federal funds on primary, secondary and urban highways for the biennium beginning July 1, 1949. States must match the Federal grant.

The House Public Works Committee reported yesterday 13 States could each receive more than 10 million dollars a year, with New York being eligible for the largest amount, $30,081,000.

Israel Takes Over Control at Haifa

Tel Aviv, June 30 (NYHT.).—The government of Israel took full control of the great Mediterranean port of Haifa today, 2 minutes after the Union Jack had been lowered from harbor headquarters and the last British soldier had stepped from the soil of the Holy Land.

Squads of Jewish police swarmed over the dock area as Lieut. Gen. G. H. A. MacMillan, commander of British forces in Palestine, stepped into his motor launch at 12:44 p. m. Five hours later, the flag of Israel was hoisted over the vast warehouses and docks of the principal sea gateway to Palestine.

In the last 24 hours of British occupation 5000 troops marched aboard landing craft, transports and naval vessels in an atmosphere free of tension or violence.

The Fortieth Royal Marine Commando Battalion, blooded at Dieppe in 1942, was the last of 2500 troops embarked. General MacMillan stood for a few seconds, a solitary figure on the docks, and then stepped from the shores which Britain has ruled for 30 bloody and turbulent years.

The British commander, as a symbolic gesture, selected himself to end the rule of British arms which began when Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, astride a white horse, rode into Jerusalem on November 2, 1917, and was formalized by League of Nations mandate in 1920.

The Jewish occupation, under United Nations supervision, met with no interference from Arab armies, still bound for 10 more days by the U. N. cease-fire order.

The British departure freed for Jewish commercial use 46 vessels of 4000 tons or less which had been penned in Haifa port after British naval units had caught them with illegal immigrants aboard.

It gave them access to 18,000 tons of cargo, including foodstuffs, timber and steel machinery, which had been held in warehouses.

Bernadotte Proposes Arabs Hold Jerusalem

Lake Success, N. Y., June 30 (U.P.).—The United Nations Palestine mediator has proposed secretly a Palestine peace settlement which would give the Arabs control of the Holy City of Jerusalem, it was learned today.

The mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, also has proposed that Arabs give up their fight to block existence of the Jewish state of Israel.

Authoritative sources disclosed that Bernadotte has suggested several important modifications which would pare down the size of the new state of Israel as it now exists and as it originally was blueprinted in the U. N. Holy Land partition program.

France Backs U. S., Britain On Germany

Frankfurt, June 30 (NYHT).—American, British and French military governors reached a complete agreement here today on the creation of an independent western German state.

The high degree of unanimity and cordiality in the meeting of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Sir Brian Robertson and Pierre Koenig set aside earlier fears that this conference would result in a political clash between the American and British views on one side and the French policies on the other.

With the Russians showing their disapproval of the organization of a separate western Germany by putting the squeeze on Berlin, German politicians were quietly organizing an opposition group in the zones controlled by the West's Big Three.

Bavarians Oppose Split

Reports from Munich tonight indicate that the Bavarian government is firmly set against any action which will complete the political separation of Germany into western and Russian halves, and thus increase the possibility of an eventual war in Europe across prostrate Germany, according to those views.

Today's Big Three conference was organized to formulate a common statement of policy and operation in the creation of a western German state. It will be presented Thursday in the formal meeting of the minister presidents of 11 Laender, or states, in the three western zones.

General Clay explained to the press that the German minister presidents will be given the order to go ahead with the formation of a western German state. At the same time the minister presidents will get a complete briefing on the projected "occupation statute," which sets forth the respective positions and legal rights of the allied occupying powers and the German states.

Assembly Set for September 1

"We will lay down the general principles and let them work out the actual details," General Clay told the press. "We will give them target dates for the various aspects of this program. The constituent assembly for western Germany, set for September 1, will go ahead on schedule."

The giant I. G. Farben building, now the nerve center of Bizonia, was alive today with top American, British and French authorities gathered for the conferences. The sessions were described as the most important held in Frankfurt since the dissolution of Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Forces after the war.

Although not participating directly in these conferences, William H. Draper, Undersecretary of the Army; W. Averell Harriman, Marshall Plan ambassador; Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, chief of plans and operations of the Department of the Army; and Frank Wisner, Assistant Secretary of State for Occupied Areas, were given a complete briefing on the Allied project to build a German state as a barrier against the westward political push of Soviet Russia.

Draper and Gen. Wedemeyer are expected to return shortly to Washington to make an up-to-the-minute report with recommendations to President Truman on the present situation in Europe.

British Dock Workers Back

London, June 30 (U.P.).—Twenty-eight thousand striking dock workers went back to work today in Liverpool and London, ending a wildcat walkout that cut Britain's meat ration and tied up exports valued at $72,000,000.

Workers were busy along London's 63 miles of docks for the first time since the strike began June 12. All 20,000 striking stevedores, bargemen, and cold-storage workers returned to their jobs.

The strike was called off yesterday, one day after the government declared an emergency and sent 1000 soldiers, sailors and airmen to load and unload ships tied up by the walkout.

In Liverpool, Britain's second largest port, the back-to-work movement began last night when nearly 2000 night-shift workers reported for duty. The Liverpool dockers struck in sympathy with the London waterfront workers.

The strike began over the suspension of 11 dock workers who refused to handle a cargo of zinc oxide without extra pay.

Some 2,000,000 work hours were lost during the strike in London alone. The strikers themselves lost about $1,200,000 in pay. Shipping circles doubted whether the backlog in exports could be overcome by the end of the year.

U. S. Will Remain in Berlin, Russians Told by Marshall greater than had at first been assumed."

British Troops to Stay

Marshall's statement came shortly after Bevin had told the House of Commons of the proposal to take the Berlin crisis to Moscow. Bevin declared that British troops also will remain in Berlin, in the face of evident Russian efforts to drive them out.

The situation, Bevin told Commons, is "grave," but that none of the Western Allies will "accept surrender."

Marshall, it was announced, will cut short his stay at Walter Reed, where he planned to undergo a 10-day physical examination, and return to his office today.

His sharp statement on the Berlin situation, was his first official comment on it since March 25. It was much more abrupt.

On March 25 he declared that this country intends to "continue to fulfill its responsibilities as a member of the control council and as a joint occupant of the City of Berlin.'

Air Forces Increased

The announcement that the Air Force will treble its force of Superfortresses in Europe followed closely the disclosure that the fighter force is being doubled by the addition of a wing of jet planes to the American Zone in Germany.

Except for a brief period, about a month, last spring, the number of B-29s visiting Germany on rotational training missions has been limited to one 10-plane squadron.

Two squadrons are now in training there. A third was to arrive yesterday. This will bring the total to 30 of the big planes.

The bomber groups will not be permanently stationed in Germany, but will rotate so that the strength will remain the same at all times.

The fortified fighter force will be stationed there permanently. The Air Force will transfer from the Panama Canala Zone the Thirty-sixth Fighter Wing, outfitted with F-80 jet fighters, to Germany. The Thirty-sixth will reinforce the Eighty-sixth Fighter Group now there, which is equipped with World War II conventionally-engined planes.

The jet planes will not arrive in Europe for another two months. But by early September they will put the United States air strength on a more equal footing with the jet-engined combat units of the Russian air forces.

Although the Air Force emphasized that the additional 20 B-29s were being sent only as part of a routine training program, observers noted that the last two B-29 squadrons arrived in Germany just as the Berlin crisis was becoming acute.

The addition of the fighter and bomber planes follows announcement that 39 additional transport planes are en route to Germany to transport food into the American and British sections of Berlin. This food supply was cut off when the Soviets recently imposed new blocks on rail transportation from western Germany into the Berlin areas occupied by United States and British forces.

Statement Held Up a Day

Sixteen of the jet F-80s will pioneer the trip to Germany by way of Greenland, Iceland and England. In this way they will determine the conditions and time problems if more planes are needed in Europe in a hurry.

Marshall's statement was held up a day while United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie polled members of the Security Council on possible intervention in the Berlin dispute. American officials, however, pointed out that Russia could still use her veto power to block any action by the United Nations.

Officials here early yesterday had taken heart at an announcement by Russian leaders that they "hoped" the blockade could soon be lifted. They pointed out, however, that it was still in effect.

200 Planes Fly Food to Berlin

denied the Soviet charge. They said most planes were returning to western Germany empty.

Some Western officials speculated whether this new attack might be a forerunner to a Russian attempt to restrict use of air corridor lifelines to the west.

Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in Germany, replied last night to a British demand that he lift the blockade. He said he had learned Berlin had enough food on hand to last "several weeks."

"I hope that in this time we can have the trains running as usual," the Russian official said.

The Russians said they closed the vital Helmstedt-Berlin railway line to repair "technical difficulties."

Today, as during the last 10 days, nothing moved along this line. Motor traffic along the single highway from Helmstedt to Berlin also remained stopped.

A lone Russian balloon used for artillery range spotting caused a false scare today on the aerial supply route. Excited United States Air Force authorities reported a barrage balloon barrier had been raised across the air corridor. It finally was found that the balloon is flown to help figure artillery range and never is up more than an hour at a time.

The Russians relented in one phase of their blockade. They offered, through their official press, to restore fresh milk deliveries to the western sectors from their zone "in exchange for compensating foodstuffs."

To this, Howley said:

"I don't consider this an act of generosity by the Russians or German Communists. The lives of 6000 babies in our sector were endangered by their sudden shut-off of milk supplies and many would have died if we had not taken the precaution of distributing whole dry and condensed milk in advance. We will continue to use these substitute formulas because we dare not risk another such arbitrary action."

Slavs Indicate Amity for West

munist Party program declared for the continued "cooperation of the Federated Peoples Republic of Yugoslavia in the struggle of democratic, anti-imperialistic forces of the world, headed by the Soviet Union, against anti-democratic imperialistic forces and warmongers."

However, it emphasized its objective of "peaceful cooperation with all countries who wish to cooperate with the Federalist Peoples Republic of Yugoslavia on a basis of honoring their independence and equality in the framework of the principles of the Charter of the United Nations.

Backs Noninterference

This appeared to be a guarded inclusion of the West, as well as the East, in Yugoslavia's relationships.

Further it declared its support of "all countries and all movements" which are "against interfering in the internal affairs of other countries and for respecting their independence."

In addition it stressed its continued support of "workers movements, democratic movements and national liberation movements" in Yugoslavia.

The Yugoslav Communists thus appeared to be standing their ground against the Cominform's criticism that the national front, embracing other groups besides the Communists, was not sufficiently under the control of the Communists.

The party last night declared the accusations of the Cominform, which is made up of Communist Party representatives from Russia, Yugoslavia, Romania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, France and Italy, were "founded on hearsay."

It denied Yugoslav secret agents had shadowed Soviet agents in Yugoslavia, and declared some of these Soviet agents had not made themselves known to Yugoslav authorities.

It denied Yugoslavia was preparing to make "concessions to imperialists." It denied it had strayed from the true precepts of communism, as the Cominform charged.

Meanwhile, sevral eastern satellites in the Soviet orbit appeared cagey about taking a stand against Yugoslavia.

In neither Bulgaria nor Albania was there any official reaction to Tito's projected independent Balkan bloc. In Bulgaria, an official government statement stressed that Communist Party troubles make no differences in "existing Yugoslav-Bulgarian relations."

U. S., Yugoslavia Agree On Funds Settlement

By The Associated Press

The United States has agreed in principle to unfreeze about 57 million dollars in Yugoslav gold and assets, Government officials reported yesterday.

In return, the Yugoslav government has promised to turn over about 17 million dollars to pay claims of the American Government and its citizens.

The Yugoslav assets were frozen by the United States in 1941 to keep them out of the hands of the Axis.

The officials who disclosed the agreement stressed that the timing has "no bearing whatever" on Yugoslavia's current quarrel with Moscow. The agreement has been under negotiation for the past 13 months, they said.

Britain Will Stand Firm

Britain has asked the Dominions to lend all the transport planes they can spare to help carry food to Berlin.

Bevin spoke of Soviet Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky's letter of last night which held forth the hope that rail, highway and canal links between Berlin and the western zones might be reopened soon.

"I am not deceived by language," the British Foreign Secretary declared. "Neither, on the other hand, am I going to assume that everything they say is wrong. I have to keep a balance; but I shall be happier when the first train starts and the barges are going down the Elbe."

Bevin said the Soviet blockade was a violation of four-power agreement, and a war of nerves.

Plans for supplying Berlin by air "have gone ahead with great speed and the results that can be achieved seem likely to exceed our first expectations," he said, adding:

"We recognize as a result of these decisions a grave situation might arise. Should such a situation arise we shall have to ask the House to face it.

"The British government and the western Allies can see no alternative between that and surrender—and none of us can accept surrender."

Throughout his speech Bevin reiterated that the western powers now are partners in the occupation and will not bow to Soviet dictation.

He charged the Russians have taken reparations from current production in their occupation zones and without authorization have stripped them of capital equipment and other assets "believed to amount in value to well over 7 billion dollars."

Special U. S. Envoy To Israel Named

President Truman yesterday gave a recess appointment to James Grover McDonald of New York to be special United States representative to the provisional government of Israel.

McDonald's nomination was sent to the Senate just prior to the congressional adjournment. Time did not allow his confirmation in the crush of last-minute business.

Mr. Truman also gave a recess appointment to David J. Coddaire of Massachusetts to be a member of the Maritime Commission.

Five Members-at-Large Named to Red Cross Board

Election of five members-at-large of the board of governors of the American Red Cross was announced yesterday.

Chosen in the first meeting of the board held in connection with the American Red Cross convention in San Francisco last week, these are in addition to 11 board members elected by the chapter delegates at that meeting.

Four of the members-at-large, who will serve three-year terms, are Stanley Hawks of Minneapolis, vice president of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune Co.; Claude A. Barnett, Chicago, founder and director of the Associated Negro Press; Henry F. Tenney, Chicago lawyer and former chairman of the Chicago Red Cross chapter, and Harvey D. Gibson, New York City, president of the Manufacturers Trust Co. and twice Red Cross national fund campaign chairman, who was named to succeed himself for a three-year term.

The fifth member-at-large, filling the unexpired term of Alfred L. Castle, Honolulu, is Eldon H. Myrick, Missoula, Mont., supervisor of the United States Forest Service. His term expires in 1950.

Eleven board members were chosen last week by chapter delegates at the San Francisco convention.

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE ROAD—Japanese walk along a road entering Fukui after the disastrous earthquake of Monday. The surface of the earth was opened by the force of shock

Fukui, Japan, June 30 (U.P.). Workmen dug through the ruins of Fukui today in search of more victims of Monday's earthquake and fire, as the death toll climbed.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters officially listed the casualties late yesterday as 3215 dead and 7752 seriously injured, but many more persons died during the night and others were feared buried beneath piles of wood and cement which only three days ago were modern buildings.

American medical officers worked in candlelight throughout the night, administering plasma to a steady stream of sufferers. Nurses and attendants gave typhoid and paratyphoid antitoxins in an effort to curb a possible epidemic. The city has been without fresh water and sanitation facilities since Monday.

Minor tremors which followed Monday's devastating shocks subsided but fires still smouldered in many parts of the city.

The Japanese Reconstruction Board prepared to release lumber and building materials so the survivors could rebuild their homes, many of them for a second time since 1945. During the war, the city was all but levelled by B-29's.

7 Governors Sign Pact for Ohio Valley

Cincinnati, June 30 (AP).—Governors of seven States and the representative of one other today signed a compact establishing a joint authority to prevent the pollution of the streams of the Ohio River Valley.

The action culminated 13 years of negotiations and is intended to bring purer water to some 20 million people living in a territory of 200,000 square miles.

Sewage disposal plants will be the main agency used in keeping the water pure. A compact commission will consist of three commissioners from each State and three representing the Federal Government.

As the meeting got under way, President Truman telegraphed word that he had signed the Barkley-Taft antistream pollution measure which was enacted by the Congress just before it adjourned a few days ago.

Hudson Biery, Cincinnati, chairman of the ceremony here, said the Federal legislation puts the Government "squarely behind the effort to clean up the streams of the Ohio River watershed."

The Federal bill provides for construction of a stream sanitation laboratory in Cincinnati to cost four million dollars, and sets up a 20 million dollar fund for loans to communities for establishment of sewage-disposal plants.

U. N. Approves Vote, Calls for Union in Korea

Seoul, Korea, June 30 (U.P.).—The United Nations Commission on Korea announced its unanimous approval today of the May 10 elections in American-occupied Southern Korea.

The commission called for the unification of the American and Russian occupation zones "within the shortest possible time."

The commission's indorsement of elections gave the Korean National Assembly a green light to speed the drafting of a constitution and to form a new government.

Miguel Valle of Salvador, chairman of the U. N. Commission, told the National Assembly that "the commission resolved unanimously to make it a matter of record that the results of the May 10 ballot were a valid expression of the free will of the electorate in those parts of Korea which were accessible to the commission.

"The inhabitants of this area," he added, "constituted two thirds of the people of Korea."

1000 Attend Sandy Spring Fire Carnival

An estimated 1000 persons last night attended the first night of the Sandy Spring Volunteer Fire Department carnival at Sherwood High School.

Opening feature was a 2-mile-long parade, delayed an hour by rain. Two bands and almost every fire department in Montgomery County was represented in the parade. Largest contingent was 45 volunteer firemen from Laurel.

Approximately 700 persons paid admission to a fried chicken and country ham supper.

The carnival, which will run through Saturday, will be concluded with a greased pig contest, a baseball game, and a bathing beauty contest in which a "Miss Sandy Spring" will be selected.

Crude Oil Output Sets Another Record

New York, June 30 (AP).—Gross crude oil production of 5,493,000 barrels daily in the week ended June 26 set a new record for the seventh consecutive week, the American Petroleum Institute reported today.

It was an increase of 1550 barrels over the preceding week and compared with 5,109,100 a year ago.

British Recall Malay Official

London, June 30 (U.P.).—Sir Edward Gent, British high commissioner in strife-torn Malaya, has been recalled to London and no decision has been taken as to whether he will return, a high government source said tonight.

Singapore reports said Gent had been relieved of his duties, but the Colonial Office here refused to confirm or deny them. Gent, en route to London, will report this weekend to Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech-Jones.

The government source flatly denied reports that Earl Mountbatten, retiring governor general of India, would succeed Gent.

A Colonial Office spokesman said the government planned no change in its policy toward Malaya, a British protectorate, and indicated British troops would continue to be used to restore order.

Gent told a United Press correspondent in Colombo, Ceylon, that Communists were responsible for "gangster" activities in Malaya. Gent said the purpose of "terrorism" was to create panic among the population and to disorganize the rubber industry.

Home Owners Win Ban on Liquor Store

Capital View homeowners yesterday won their fight to keep a liquor store from moving into their neighborhood at 5323 E. Capitol st.

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board denied the petition of Hyman and Tillie Ellman, who sought to transfer the package liquor store they now operate at 801 4th st. se., to the E. Sapitol st. address.

At a hearing June 17, approximately 20 area property owners opposed the move, saying it would bring a "nuisance" to the neighborhood.

Hearing on New Rules

In other actions the ABC announced it will hold a public hearing July 9 on a proposed amendment to ABC regulations. It would require holders of Class C and D retail ABC permits to keep separate daily records of money taken in from sale of food and drinks. In addition, restaurant owners would be required to keep "adequate" records of all phases of their business.

The amendment, which was approved in principle by the Commissioners early in May, has been put into legal form by the office of the corporation counsel.

At a hearing yesterday, ABC officials said they heard these different versions of a case in which George H. Schultze, owner of a liquor store at 1400 H st. ne., was alleged to have permitted sale to an intoxicated person:

Police Blame Clerk

According to ABC officials, police said a store clerk had, indeed, sold a bottle to an inebriated man. Police declared they saw the man emerge—unsteadily, to be sure—from the premises, bottle in hand.

The clerk, ABC spokesman revealed, insisted he'd refused the sale and thought the man had departed. Somebody else, said the clerk, must have bought the bottle for the man.

The man in question, officials said, testified, in effect, as follows: "The last thing I remember was hopping off a streetcar. The next thing I knew I was in jail." He had been drinking before boarding the streetcar, he admitted. ABC took the case under advisement.

Wallaceites In Difficulty On Platform

The Washington Committee for Wallace, currently engaged in platform building, seems to be having some difficulty finding carpenters" to say nothing of "joiners."

Last night's meeting called to hear suggestions for the campaign platform drew six persons. The previous afternoon three showed up, and nine appeared at the night session.

The platform builders had their hammers out for "monopolies" at each of the sessions with the screws also put on the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan.

Last night after strict enforcement of antitrust laws and support of a "national science foundation" to further "technical resources and knowledge" were suggested, the group began a spirited discussion of allotting Government funds to subsidize the theater.

"But the artists—the intelligentsia—they know nothing of politics," declared one of three attractive young women present.

"Why, artists — actors — musicians are all social conscious," retorted a pert brunette seated next to her.

"All the musicians I ever met didn't know what was going on in the world," returned the other.

A pretty blonde, who said she was once connected with a Hollywood studio, sided with the brunette and then the conversation turned to the fabulous sums made by movie stars and how "parasites" took away most of it.

Illness of Lieut. Gov. Knight Recalls Warren to California

New York, June 30 (AP).—Gov. Earl Warren of California cut short his visit to New York City tonight and will return to California because of the critical illness of Lieut. Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

The Republican vice presidential nominee said he was flying back to Sacramento at midnight aboard a United Airlines plane due in San Francisco at 7:45 a. m. (PST) Thursday.

Lieutenant Governor Knight, the next in line of succession when the Governor is absent, underwent a serious operation in Los Angeles yesterday and will be in the hospital at least six weeks.

Governor Warren said Knight's illness was not expected to delay the 1948 Republican campaign but that it undoubtedly would interfere with campaign preparations.

Warren's wife and three daughters will remain here until Saturday and then will entrain for Sacramento.

Garbage Man Guilty, Faces Death in Rape

Joseph (Dupe) Ross, 54-year-old Takoma Park garbage collector convicted of raping a 72-year-old partially blind widow, yesterday was held without bond in the Rockville jail, awaiting a possible death sentence.

Chief Judge Charles W. Woodward deferred sentencing of the illiterate defendant at 1:50 a. m. yesterday when an all-male jury returned the guilty verdict. The jury had sat continuously since 9:30 a. m. on Tuesday.

Judge Woodward said he probably would not pass sentence until next week.

In returning the guilty verdict, the jury pronounced Ross legally sane at the time of the offense

Brown Lists 3 Reasons for Taft's Defeat

By The Associated Press

Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio), Senator Taft's campaign manager, said yesterday the Ohio Senator failed to win the Republican presidential nomination chiefly because of three factors:

1. The effects of public opinion polls which showed Taft behind Governor Dewey and other candidates and "propaganda" that Taft would be a poor vote getter and hard to elect.

2. The Dewey bandwagon psychology created by the announcement of Senator Martin's withdrawal as Pennsylvania's favorite son candidate coupled with the swing of a large number of the Pennsylvania delegates to Dewey.

3. Inability to line up those opposed to Dewey in favor of one candidate.

Brown told a reporter that press of duties in Congress prevented Taft and himself from spending as much time as they would have liked to in preconvention organizing.

He credited Dewey with having a smooth-working organization with no such handicap.

Brown said Taft was "forced into" the Nebraska primary campaign against his wishes because he was tied up with his senatorial duties. "It did us no good," he added.

He said Taft also was forced to fight Harold Stassen in the Ohio primary, although he didn't want to leave Washington to do so.

"By stopping Stassen in Ohio," Brown said, "we made possible Dewey's later victory in Oregon. We injured Stassen's prestige. As a consequence we stopped the Stassen bandwagon and gave impetus to Dewey's campaign in Oregon."

Truman Again Hits Congress

$406,836,974 carried a rider establishing arbitrary qualifications for the commissioner and other reclamation officials. Mr. Truman said it was designed to effect removal of supporters of the Government's public power policy.

Sees Special Interests Served

He said the result was to "serve the purposes of special interests desirous of monopolizing the rich farm lands of the west and intent upon stopping the construction of transmission lines for the delivery of power from Federal dams."

The act as passed by Congress, he said, will delay reclamation work in the Missouri basin, the Columbia basin, in the Pacific Northwest, the Central Valley in California and the Colorado basin, among others. He said it makes available $69,000,000 less than he requested.

He observed that Congress failed to provide funds for a "west side" transmission line from the Shasta Dam to the San Francisco area.

"To bottle up power at these and other Federal dams by preventing the construction of previously authorized power facilities and transmission lines clearly represents a capitulation to special interest groups," the President said.

The TVA steam plant omission in the Government corporation money bill was termed an act of "grave consequences."

Calls Decision "Reckless"

In a statement, the President expressed hope that "Congress will reconsider this question at the earliest opportunity." He called it a "reckless" decision that might adversely affect national security.

"Everyone knows that our Nation's power supply is tight—that our margin of reserve is inadequate," Mr. Truman's statement said. "In almost every part of the country increased production is being impeded and delayed by limited power capacity.

"Yet the House of Representatives, by eliminating the appropriation for the new Johnsonville plant, which I had recommended in the budget, would prevent the power supply from keeping pace with normal peacetime requirements in an area of critical production."

February 1 Becomes 'Freedom Day'

President Truman yesterday signed a bill setting aside February 1 of each year as "Freedom Day."

The thirteenth amendment of the Constitution, abolishing slavery, was formally ratified on February 1, 1865.

Democrats to Hit GOP on Prices

Democratic platform draftsmen plan an all-out attack on Eightieth Congress "omissions" with Republican failure to check the price rise a No. 1 theme.

This was indicated yesterday, as Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), resolutions chairman, scheduled public hearings on Democratic planks in Philadelphia July 7, four days before the convention opens.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), a member of the 17-man platform-drafting subcommittee, meanwhile tipped off the Democratic pitch in a statement berating the GOP legislative record and platform claims.

"World peace and European recovery depend on maintenance of a sound economy here," said O'Mahoney.

"You've got to have a positive and continuing program to check the rising cost of living and prevent the continued concentration of economic power in the hands of a few."

The Wyoming Democrat, frequently mentioned as a possible Truman running mate, said Congress "bottled up" Mr. Truman's anti-inflation program and offered only "a conglomeration of generalities" as a platform substitute.

O'Mahoney told reporters failure of housing, national resources and public power legislation will rank along with prices as leading campaign issues. He accused Republicans of "complete silence in Philadelphia on development of transmission lines, the real heart of the power issue."

O'Mahoney had kind words only for the GOP's so-called "Vandenberg plank" pledging continued aid to other peace-loving nations, but said a pledge to provide the needed funds was cut out of it.

"They suceeded in isolating Republican isolationists and taking that issue out of the campaign," he said. "But that didn't get rid of their isolationists. They'll be back in high places in Congress next year."

Platform Chairman Myers was in Philadelphia making preliminary arrangements yesterday. His aides said public hearings on the platform will continue from July 7 through July 9, and the actual plank drafting fill follow.

One said President Truman will undoubtedly be "consulted" before the drafting group meets but voiced doubt that "anything in writing will be sent to Philadelphia," adding: "It will be put together there."

CONVENTION PLANNERS—Already in Philadelphia, William Neale Roach, executive manager of the Democratic National Convention Committee, and Mrs. Dorothy Vredenburgh, Democratic National Committee secretary, check the floor plans of Convention Hall. The committee has set up headquarters in the Bellevue Stratford Hotel. The convention opens July 12 completely taken himself out of the race."

Reservation Is Made

Alabama's delegation leader tied one important reservation to his forecast that Eisenhower's name will be the first placed before the convention. He said his delegation will yield for the purpose "unless he (Eisenhower) absolutely refuses to permit it."

General Eisenhower meanwhile flew to Washington to appear before a closed session of the Hoover commission studying Government reorganization, and flew back to New York late yesterday. Friends said he lunched with National Defense Secretary Forrestal.

Arvey was called in response to a report that he also was in Washington and talked to Eisenhower yesterday. Chicago's Democratic chief said he had been in Washington "quite recently" but had not talked to the general or any Eisenhower spokesman.

"I did see him informally following a dinner in Chicago about a month ago, but we did not talk politics," he added.

Undisturbed by recurring Eisenhower talk, President Truman for two hours reviewed convention arrangements machinery with National Chairman J. Howard McGrath (R. I.) and other party leaders.

In these other developments:

Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) said he talked to Eisenhower for 45 minutes in New York Tuesday and "I am convinced more than ever that Eisenhower is the man of the hour" for the nomination.

In Meriden, N. H., Harry Carlson, Democratic national committeemen, wrote other national committeemen to help persuade Mr. Truman to withdraw in favor of Eisenhower. Carlson said he conferred with Eisenhower last week. He said he did not ask him specifically but was convinced he could be drafted.

In Los Angeles, Calif., United Press quoted an unnamed State delegation leader as saying a majority of the California delegation does not consider itself legally bound to vote for Mr. Truman, even though each delegate signed a pledge to support him.

Virginia Democrats Seeking To Avoid Convention 'Break'

Richmond, Va., June 30 (AP).—The Democratic State convention here Friday apparently will take a strong stand against President Truman and his civil rights program, but will abstain from taking any action leading to a complete break with the national party.

This was the consensus of party chieftains today as they prepared for a rather brief and not too upsetting session beginning in the Mosque Auditorium at noon on July 2. The dominant and conservative organization wing of the party will be in control.

There were no apparent indications that organization leaders intended to press for a pledge binding convention delegates to support any presidential ticket that an adjourned session of the same convention or another convention might might put up against the national nominees. Such action could be taken under the so-called anti-Truman bill, but it seemed that this phase of the controversial legislation would remain on the shelf.

As a preliminary to the convention proper, the 67-member State Central Committee will meet here at 8 p. m. Thursday to name a temporary convention chairman who will deliver the keynote address, a job for which Delegate W. Tayloe Murphy of Warsaw apparently is slated. The central committee also will approve the temporary roll of the convention.

Major items of convention business will be to elect Virginia's 26 delegates to Philadelphia, pick a new State Democratic chairman, choose the Democratic presidential electors and name a new State Central Committee.

Union Votes Strike Against Telephone Unit

New York, June 30 (AP).—A Nation-wide ballot by the Association of Communication Equipment Workers (CIO) has authorized the union's bargaining committee to call a strike against the Western Electric Company, the union said tonight.

Ernest Weaver, union president, said the members voted four-to-one to authorize the national bargaining committee to call a strike "should such be necessary" to enforce union demands for a 31-cent hourly wage increase.

Weaver said the union would begin what he called a "cold strike" tomorrow. Union members will carry placards listing their grievances in front of "every prominent telephone exchange in the country where our members are employed," Weaver said.

The union members manufacture and install telephone exchange equipment.

Weaver emphasized that the men carrying placards would not constitute a picket line and that they would not attempt to influence persons against entering telephone buildings.

The Western Electric Co. is a manufacturing subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Weaver said a strike would affect 30,000 installers of heavy telephone equipment in 44 States and the District of Columbia.

He added that the union is free to strike any time after Thursday under its present contract with the company.

'Pennsy' Wage Talks With CIO Unit Suspend

Philadelphia, June 30 (AP).—Wage talks between the United Railroad Workers (CIO) and the Pennsylvania Railroad broke up today. The company asked time to prepare counter proposals to the union's demand for contract benifits.

The railroad workers sought a 25-cent across-the-board wage increase for its 50,000 nonoperating employe members.

Additionally, the union asked a reduction in the work week from 48 to 40 hours plus 20 per cent wage boost to maintain the present take-home pay.

A statement issued by Robert Walkinshaw, chairman of the union negotiating committee, said:

"There appears to be a tendency by the company to stall negotiations. We were faced with a negotiating team which, at best, was no more than a second team. They told us they would 'report and consult' but obviously they were not authorized to make any binding agreements."

A spokesman for the railroad said "the negotiations are proceeding between the parties in accordance with the Railway Labor Act." He said the company would make no comment beyond this statement.

Under the current wage scales, a railroad workers union member averages "in the neighborhood of $1.20 an hour," Walkinshaw said.

U. S. Is Host To Navy Chief Of Argentina

OSCULATIONS, ADMIRAL—Vice Admiral Juan M. Carranza is hugged and kissed by Senora Mary Helen Cabrera, wife of the Assistant Naval Attache of the Argentine Embassy. Admiral Carranza, Argentine chief of naval operations, arrived yesterday at Washington National Airport for a month-long inspection tour of United States naval installations

Vice Admiral Juan M. Carranza, Argentine chief of naval operations, arrived here yesterday for a three-week visit to the United States as guest of the U. S. Navy.

At a press conference, Admiral Carranza said the only purpose of his trip was to strengthen the "close ties of friendship" between the Argentine and United States navies. There will be no discussions affecting standardization of equipment and weapons, nor talk of transfer of surplus American ships to the South American power, he stated.

But the Argentine naval chief said his fleet was largely composed of old men-of-war, and needs all types, including aircraft carriers. While his nation has not asked for any American vessels, Carranza said he "hopes that if any allocations of ships are made by the United States, Argentina will be considered."

Admiral Carranza will be entertained by Navy chiefs during his stay here and throughout the country. Today he will lunch with Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan, inspect the Naval Gun factory and be the guest of honor at a reception given by Admiral Louis Denfeld, chief of naval operations.

On Friday, he will visit the Quantico Marine base and the Bethesda naval medical center, and attend a dinner given by Denfeld at the Mayflower. Carranza will visit the Naval Academy Saturday.

Aandahl Wins Renomination Over North Dakota Coalition

Fargo, N. Dak., June 30 (AP).—Gov. Fred G. Aandahl tonight cinched the Republican nomination for reelection over a triple alliance opposition including the Nonpartisan League, the North Dakota Farmers Union and organized labor.

Victory to the Republican Organizing Committee leader seeking a third term was conceded by his league-indorsed opponent, Ervin Schumacher, Drayton farmer. Schumacher wired Aandahl his congratulations after 1872 of the State's 2267 precincts gave Aandahl 83,239 votes to 69,660 for Schumacher.

Other developments in yesterday's North Dakota primary election:

Usher L. Burdick, league nominee and former Congressman, apparently defeated Representative C. R. Robertson in Robertson's bid for a fourth term in Congress. Representative William Lemke, Robertson's running mate on the ROC ticket, was safely in with a high of 79,656 votes from 1872 precincts. Burdick had 76,864 votes to Robertson's 67,975 with fewer than 400 precincts yet to be heard from.

An attempt to outlaw parking meters was apparently headed for defeat. With 1721 precincts in, there were 75,367 votes opposing it to 73,703 favoring it.

An initiated measure to prohibit persons wearing the garb of religious orders from teaching in public schools appeared headed for approval, with 82,682 yes votes to 72,734 no from 1721 precincts.

The proposal was taken to the electorate as a result of employment of nuns as teachers in public schools of several communities whose population is predominately Catholic. Opposition to this employment included a number of Protestant clergymen. The opposition declared the practice might lead to religious influence in public education.

Catholics replied that the nuns went into the schools only at the request of local school boards which were hard pressed to find lay teachers at proffered salaries.

Virginia Health Investigators Reach Alexandria for Probe

The Washington Post

PROBE PROCEDES—Dr. J. C. Neal (left) confers with Mayor William T. Wilkins of Alexandria. Neal arrived yesterday to conduct the State's investigation of public health activities in Alexandria. He said it would take six months

Virginia State Health Department investigators arrived in Alexandria yesterday to begin a city council-requested probe of the city's health situation.

Heading the investigators was Dr. J. C. Neale, director of local services of the State Department, who said he expected the survey to require six to eight weeks

Coinciding with the investigators' arrival, the Alexandria City Health Department ordered two persons to court on charges of violating the city's health ordinance. Criticism of the City Department in a League of Women Voters' survey brought on the State investigation.

Meeting Is Held

Summoned to appear in Alexandria Police Court Friday, as result of the City Department's action, were Cleveland Mason, No. 2 Bernard st., charged with keeping chickens and unsightly debris in his yard, and Mrs. Mary Jeffries, 214 Queen st., charged with keeping a house in "dirty and unhealthy" condition.

Dr. Neale told city officials and heads of interested organizations at a meeting yesterday in the Alexandria City Council chambers he would supervise a group of six surveyors who will begin work "within a few days."

Among those attending the meeting were Mayor William T. Wilkins, Health Officer W. Lewis Schafer, Health Department Sanitarian A. Clarke Slaymaker, Dr. Thistle McKee, president of the Alexandria Community Clinic; Dr. John A. Sims, former president of the Alexandria Tuberculosis Association; Dr. Colin McRae and Dr. John E. Roberts, member of the City Health Board; city councilmen, and members of the Alexandria League of Women Voters.

Pastor Joins Attack

Charges made in the league's survey report were supported by a reporter of The Washington Post who toured the city with a photographer. The league not only criticized insanitary conditions about the city, but failure of the city to hold a chest X-ray program like that of Washington and other surrounding communities and failure to have a well-baby clinic.

The Rev. Thomas A. Fraser, jr., rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, who went to battle for improved health conditions in the city in his Sunday sermon, said last night his parishioners well received his community action sermon. He said he had heard no criticism whatsoever for his attack on civic conditions.

House FCC Probe To Start Immediately

Chairman Harness (R., Ind.) announced yesterday that his special House Committee will begin an investigation of the Federal Communications Commission immediately.

He said the inquiry, authorized in the closing hours of the last Congress, will center on the granting of Federal licenses to radio station owners or operators who are alleged to be Communists.

Frank T. Bow of Canton, Ohio, was made general counsel.

Orderly Held In Chloroform Attack on Child

Annapolis, Md., June 30 (AP).—A Navy hospital orderly was held today for investigation after what the Naval Academy described as a chloroform attack on a girl of 3.

Capt. Jesse R. Wallace, chief of staff of the Severn River Naval Command, said the child was the object of a "chloroforming" yesterday in a garage behind a row of naval officers' cottages at the academy.

"Medical authorities reported that the girl was unharmed," Wallace said. "The alleged chloroforming was broken up by the mother of the child."

He said she noticed her daughter had disappeared from a group of Navy children playing near Worden Field and went to look for her.

No charges have been filed, Wallace said, pending an investigation by naval officers.

Wallace identified the sailor only as a 24-year-old enlisted man with the rating of "hospital man."

The academy was unable to ascribe a motive; it said the girl had not been raped.

Wallace said "appropriate action will be taken" after a full investigation. He gave no further details.

Best Is Sentenced to Life For Nazi War Broadcasts

Boston, June 30 (AP).—Robert H. Best, 52-year-old American newspaperman convicted of being a Nazi radio propagandist during the war, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for treason.

Best

Best, sentenced by Federal Judge Francis J. W. Ford, also was fined $10,000. The Sumter, S. C., native, who spent most of his adult life in Europe, is planning to appeal.

Best, balding, graying, still had a trace of a Southern accent when he replied to a statement by the prosecutor that "Best said that under similar circumstances he would do the same thing."

"At this moment, I would exchange places with no person, anywhere, even if I could," Best declared.

Best had heard T. Vincent Quinn, Assistant Attorney General of the United States in charge of criminal prosecutions, demand the death penalty.

Charles W. Bartlett, of Best's counsel, termed him a "fanatic, a crusader, doing what he thought best for his country."

To this Judge Ford declared that "a fanatic can do as much harm to his country as any other person," and added:

"He knew what he was doing—when a man intends to betray his country, his motive is immaterial."

Best had asserted he was not a true employe of the Nazis.

"I had no workers' permit, I could not have been employed," Best said. His counsel told the court Best received $200 a month for expenses.

Greek Rebels Ready to Quit

Athens, June 30 (AP).—Front advices said tonight three guerilla battalions in northwestern Greece are seeking to surrender.

An official source at Second Corps headquarters in Kozane said Greek army officers already have crossed into rebel positions for the negotiations.

Minister of war George Stratos said tonight Greek army units had beaten back guerilla forces in a hard struggle and restored communications along the Ioannina-Preveza road.

The guerillas had taken up positions behind the army's lines on heights flanking the highway which is the main supply road for Greek troops in the Grammos Mountain front. In a counterattack, the army supported by the Greek air force and the navy, drove the guerillas off the heights, the ministry announced.

A report from the battle zone said American construction men working on the road were forced to flee.

Dog Days

Probably it is unfair to blame the weatherman entirely for the current heat and humidity, for, unless he has a built-in air conditioner, he is sweltering along with lesser mortals. But he has aggravated the situation by what have turned out to be pretty fickle promises of relief. There is more than a faint similarity between what he has been saying about cooler weather and the well-known association of prosperity and the corner. A change has to come, but when? Tuesday night's rain was obviously just a teaser.

The antisocial effects of the higher reaches of humidity are too apparent to need comment. With trouser presses wilting and stickiness oozing from every pore, tempers fray and conversation descends to a state of dull insipidity. What is there to talk about except this invisible oppressor, the weather? After you have been approached for the ninety-seventh time with the inane question, "Is it hot enough for you?" you are almost ready to join a lynching party. Under frustrations such as this anything can happen. In New York, for instance, a motorist who became embroiled in an argument with a refrigerator truck driver lost his head completely. Instead of taking matters inside the truck for a gentleman's settlement, he locked the driver in the cooler. The strange thing is that the driver complained about it.

Altogether, if the weatherman knows any good incantations or has any spare snowstorms from last winter stuck up his sleeve, now is the time to prove what he can do. The fellow who termed these "dog days" put it right, though the SPCA probably could put up a good argument that they shouldn't happen even to a dog.

Education Chief

There is more than meets the eye in the resignation of Dr. John W. Studebaker after 14 years as head of the United States Office of Education. Dr. Studebaker wrote in his letter to the President that he could no longer afford to remain in the Federal Government. But undoubtedly another factor in his decision was the feud between the Federal Security Agency and its components, of which the Office of Education is one. In this connection Dr. Studebaker's resignation bears a marked similarity to the recent ouster of Dr. Thomas Parran from the Public Health Service.

The feud centers around the efforts of FSA Administrator Oscar Ewing and his assistants to build up a more centralized organization, presumably in preparation for transforming the FSA into a Federal Department of Welfare. Despite the desirability of such a move, sometimes these efforts have seemed more concerned with empire-building than necessary correlation, and they have of course caused resentment in agencies accustomed to virtual independence under professional direction. Such resentment was voiced by Dr. E. B. Norton, Deputy Commissioner of Education, who resigned just before Dr. Studebaker. It also came to light in the FSA attempt to centralize all publications of subordinate bureaus, a move which Dr. Studebaker felt would deprive the Office of Education of one of its primary functions.

As an educator Dr. Studebaker sometimes became embroiled in feuds on his own accord, chiefly because of what some persons regarded as an inflexibility of approach and an unwillingness to cooperate. There is no question, however, that as a progressive educator he brought tremendous prestige to the efforts of the Government in this field. As he leaves to take up more lucrative work as chairman of the editorial board of Scholastic Magazines, he is one of the most respected men in his profession.

Had he remained with the Government, Dr. Studebaker would have been another victim of Senator Byrd's last-minute "economy," in that his salary would have remained at $10,000 while his subordinates would have received more under the new pay raise. Dr. Studebaker's financial complaint is a familiar theme. Although it obviously is not possible for the Government to compete with the financial inducements of private industry, certainly the plight of eminent Federal officials whose living standards grow progressively lower under the present ceiling deserves more serious attention than it has received. Equally important in any effort to make the Government service more attractive to men of high caliber is a brake on the tendency to regard high officials as legitimate prey for all sorts of congressional harassment and impugning of motives. A respect for the position of the men charged with the great responsibility of conducting the affairs of Government is essential to the concept of public service which David E. Lilienthal has called for so compellingly.

Tito's Future

The theory that Tito is already dead, which is entertained by those who hold that Muscovite blasts occur only after offense and offender have been liquidated, is dashed by the declaration of Yugoslav independence and the Belgrade call for a Balkan bloc "uniting Albanian, Bulgarian, and Yugoslav peoples on the principle of national equality." Survivors would not dare to attempt such a riposte to Moscow. The excommunication order did not justify any such notion, anyway. In that extraordinary document there was an allusion to the "hateful Trotsky," and this, far from suggesting that Tito had already been purged, conveyed the idea that the violent removal of the marshal and his supporters would be a certain key to the favor of Moscow. This is evidently the meaning placed upon it by Tito himself. For at this writing he is reported in hiding, which probably means that he has established himself in quarters accessible only to his most dependable bodyguards.

However, Tito's life as an orthodox Communist has ended. His defiance of Moscow is understandable, though unique, in the light of his own knowledge that public submission to the will of Moscow and penance for his sins would have availed him no more than it availed Zinoviev or Radek. What remains to be seen is what measures Tito will be able to take for his own protection, for the preservation of his regime, and for the upbuilding of a Balkan bloc under his auspices.

A Balkan bloc, though without Tito or Dimitrov, is a development devoutly to be wished. In our opinion the prime mistake of the Versailles peacemaking was that the wrong empire was broken up. It should have been Germany, not Austro-Hungary. Under Tito, of course, a Danubian combination would be merely a springboard for aggression in the Aegean and the Adriatic. Tito himself appears to be strong enough to pocket the country that has hitherto been his ward, viz., Hacha's Albania. But the situation in Bulgaria may be different. Assuming that Dimitrov, who is himself nursing a Muscovite rap on the knuckles, would fall in with Tito's intransigence, it is scarcely conceivable that he would play second fiddle to Tito. They are rivals for Balkan influence, particularly for possession of Greece's Macedonia. And Tito still has a job on his hands in keeping control in Yugoslavia, let alone branching out in the Balkans. For the nonce, however, he seems safe enough. For among those denounced with Tito is General Alexander Rankovic, his Minister of the Interior, and head of the police, and the allusion in the excommunication order to "terroristic methods" indicates that Tito and Rankovic are still in control of the notorious Onza, or secret police, and that it has already been used as a means of choking off the opposition of the more fanatical Stalinists.

Thus if the regime is not suddenly overthrown, we may anticipate a general round-up and liquidation of party-line Communists as a necessary measure of security. The fact of his excommunication by Moscow of course will not make Tito any less a dictator and tyrant, for in the circumstances he cannot be anything else. But the same circumstances, if he survives them, must impel him into the orbit of the western powers, with an eventual modification of his internal policy. The Cominform asserts that—

> Yugoslav leaders, orienting themselves badly in the international situation and frightened by the extortionate threats of imperialists, think that by a series of concessions to imperialist states they can make an agreement with them about the independence of Yugoslavia and gradually to implant in the Yugoslav people the orientation of these states.

This is as much as to say that Marshal Tito had already been modifying his external policies in anticipation of a breach with Moscow. Thus if Tito and his henchmen survive the present crisis, we may expect the first defection from the Stalinist confederation and a radical alteration of the strategic situation in southern Europe. Indeed, Yugoslavia is part of the chain in the line of communication for Russian troops to central Europe. The logic of Tito's nose-thumbing would be the snapping of this link and the undermining of Russia's position in Austria and the closing of a potential military road to Italy.

Wheat Pact

Because the Senate failed to ratify the international wheat agreement by the July 1 deadline, this 36-nation effort to stabilize world grain supplies now looks like a dead pigeon. Two other major wheat producers, Argentina and Russia, are not included in the pact—Russia because she declined to participate in discussions at all, and Argentina because she refused to sign the agreement drawn up in Washington in March. Although the actual decision on what action to take will not be made until the International Wheat Council meets here next week, the abstention by the United States makes it unlikely that the project will be undertaken.

The wheat agreement was a brave, if not wholly realistic, attempt to reconcile the starvation-surplus dilemma with which the world has been dogged since time immemorial. Under its terms, the United States, Canada and Australia agreed to furnish food-importing countries with 500 million bushels of wheat a year for a five-year period. The ceiling price was to be $2 a bushel, and floor prices would drop progressively from $1.50 to $1.10.

Opposition in this country stemmed principally from the grain trade, which is now benefiting from prices above the ceiling. Indeed, a principal weakness of the pact as presented to Congress was the lack of a viable means of supplying wheat when the market price is above the ceiling price. On the other hand, the farm organizations supported the agreement, although they did not make it a major issue. The subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee dealing with the pact effected a neat compromise between the two viewpoints by shelving the ratification altogether as "too controversial."

By no means all the blame for the failure can be laid at this country's doorstep. First of all, the initial defection of Russia and Argentina put a crimp in the plans. Large surpluses of wheat dumped on the world market by those countries at some future time could undermine the price agreements in the pact. As a matter of fact, this very possibility was causing some second thoughts about the pact even among its supporters. It may be suspected that with the prospect of more wheat available generally, such nations as Britain will not be too unhappy if they are not forced to live up to their price commitments under the pact.

Fixed Star

It is decidedly healthy that the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship chose yesterday to challenge in the Federal District Court here the authority of the Attorney General to designate it a subversive organization. The suit, which is directed also against use of the designation by the Loyalty Review Board, charges that the Attorney General's action was "arbitrary, capricious, contrary to law and in excess of statutory right and authority"—and thus violative at once of the free speech and due process guarantees of the Constitution.

From the moment that the loyalty review program was first promulgated by executive order, this newspaper has condemned the absolute power conferred by it upon the Attorney General to single out voluntary associations of American citizens and stigmatize them as disloyal. The power amounts, in effect, to a power to proscribe and to destroy. It is a power exercised, moreover, without any fixed standards or process whatsoever. The Council of American-Soviet Friendship was placed on the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations without any advance notice, without a hearing, without the presentation of any supporting evidence and without any opportunity to appeal for judicial review. If this can be called "due process," then the fifth amendment accords Americans no protection at all.

The Council of American-Soviet Friendship, whether wisely or mistakenly, has sought to promote friendly relations between this country and the USSR—certainly not a subversive purpose in itself—and has pursued its objective by wholly lawful and peaceful means. When the Attorney General calls this group subversive, he tells the American people, in effect, that it is anti-American and serving the interest of a foreign power. If it is actually the agent of a foreign government, then it is obliged under the terms of the Voorhis Act to register as such with the Department of Justice and is subject to prosecution for having failed to do so. No attempt to prosecute it has been made, however. One can only conclude, therefore, that the department is attempting to accomplish by harassment and vilification what it is unable to accomplish within the law.

If men may not join hands to espouse ideas which are unpopular, then the constitutional guarantees of free speech and free association are mere myths. It is wholly on account of the currently unfashionable opinions which it advocates and not on account of any illegal or even improper acts that the Council of American-Soviet Friendship has been branded subversive by the Attorney General. To permit the Attorney General to place such a brand upon any group for the mere advocacy of ideas is to permit him to silence all dissent. Not long ago the Supreme Court declared that "if there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion or other matters of opinion." Yet this is precisely what the Attorney General has presumed to do.

If the Attorney General can put the Council of American-Soviet Friendship outside the pale of decency by an arbitrary designation of it as disloyal, he can do the same in respect of any religious, political or social organization advocating unorthodox or unconventional beliefs. This is a power incompatible with a government of laws. It is a power irreconcilable with freedom.

Berlin's Currency

Assuming that the western allies refuse to pull out of Berlin and that the Russians lift their food blockade, the problem of the new German mark will remain acute. Officials in the State Department are said to be toying with the idea of a dual currency system for the city. The intolerable character of any such solution is best indicated by trying to imagine what would happen to Washington and its residents if the money spent on one side of F street were not acceptable on the other side. Either the western allies or the Russians will have eventually to give way. And in view of Berlin's situation outside the western zones, where the new currency reform system is linked to a new politico-economic regime, it seems reasonable and probably better to let Russia take responsibility for meeting Berlin's currency needs.

If that is done, however, the payment for imports into Berlin will become a headache for the western powers. They are said to be debating whether to accept payment in marks indorsed by the Soviets—a procedure which, of course, would be equivalent to giving goods away. In any event the setting up of a separate currency system for western Germany will put trade with the eastern part of the country virtually on a barter basis, at least for the time being. In the special case of Berlin, given the peculiar circumstances, trade with the west will probably come to a standstill. Such shipments as are made will be in the nature of contributions to relieve distress.

Urban Economy Cancer

Urbanization, the crowding together in cities of large agglomerations of people, makes necessarily for economic instability. Folk migrate from villages into cities. In the village, they were people; in the city, they become numbers. Use economy is fundamentally satisfying; the producer uses his product. Commodity economy is essentially baffling and frustrating; man, the reasoner, the moral agent, becomes a little cog in a big machine. He ceases to be an individual and becomes a unit of and in the mass. Urbanites cannot feed, clothe and house themselves; they cannot even provide themselves with water. The slightest dislocation throws them into turmoil and panic.

As Western man has moved into the gadget-equipped cliff dwellings of the present period, he has not only robbed himself of the possibilty of self-support and built up overhead costs far exceeding his utmost productivity, but he has provided his "enemies" (those who occupy neighboring cliff-dwellings) with an ideal concentrated target for the terror weapons planned in his urban universities and manufactured in his urban laboratories and machine shops.

Many European cities were damaged during the recent war; some are still intact. In the surviving urban centers of Europe and in North American cities, universities, laboratories, shops and factories are today turning out bigger and more effective means of destruction than those used between 1939 and 1945.

Population increase, depletion of natural resources, the transformation of a use economy into a profit economy, the concentration of wealth and urbanization have disturbed and upset the economic life of Europe; they are doing the same thing in North America. In Europe they have had more time to get in their deadly work. In North America they are moving with a velocity greater than they ever attained on the other side of the Atlantic.

Before the Marshall Plan was conceived, these forces had wrecked Europe's social life. Even if the Marshall Plan is amply financed and is carried out with complete efficiency, these forces will still continue the wrecking process.

The Marshall Plan is like a plaster on a deep-seated abscess. It treats the surface but does not touch the underlying causes. Before health and stability can be restored to the social body, the causes of the disturbance must be discovered and corrected. It is this need of a fundamental change in viewpoint and practice which farseeing people must recognize and upon which they must act.

'Threat to Israel'

I was deeply shocked to read your editorial of June 25 praising the massacre of underground fighters in Palestine. Certainly you must realize that liquidation of Irgun destroys the only popular movement capable of preventing the present Bernadotte negotiations with Ben Gurion from selling out Israel to Abdullah.

Please note that the Bevin government on June 24 praised Ben Gurion's "courage and determination" for fighting Irgun, according to a London dateline story in the New York Times. You ignore the fact that the vessel Altelena with 1000 refugees and desperately needed arms was proceeding with full agreement of the Israel government until blocked by Ben Gurion in the guise of truce enforcement.

Your efforts in behalf of DPs are nullified by supporting the Jewish Agency, which consistently opposed free immigration and is now opening a reign of terror against all Palestinians who demand that the conspiracy against DPs cease. Knowing your sincerity and zeal for an over-all solution, I urge that you consider all facts before denouncing the only forces which have proved to be completely reliable in their loyal devotion to Hebrew freedom.

'Futility In Berlin'

Thanks for your editorial of June 27, "Futility In Berlin." There is so little sanity and honesty in international news comments today. One is supposed to go into court with clean hands. We will save face before the rest of the world if we keep our face clean. Since Trizonia, what can we do in Berlin, a dried up oasis in Russian Germany except spy on the Russians and talk big? Is it worth it? RILEY D. MOORE.

Luce Talk

I was pleased to read a letter signed Interested Listener in your letters to the editor column of June 27, in which your correspondent comments on the speech delivered by Governor Green at the Republican convention.

Mr. Green's speech affected me much the same as it did Interested Listener, but I was more moved by the irresponsible mouthings of Clare Boothe Luce.

Mrs. Luce divides the Democratic Party into two wings, the Jim Crow wing and the Moscow wing. Mrs. Luce and those who think like she does should be reminded that on every national issue that came before Congress her Jim Crow Democrats voted with the Republicans every time.

These Southern Democrats are operating under an assumed name anyway, as they are really Republicans and not Democrats at all and only run for office under that label on account of the prejudice that still exists in the South because a Republican Administration was in power during the Civil War.

I read a few days ago that some of the Republican leaders were planning to win the Solid South over to the Republicans but I am afraid they will not have much luck unless they can silence Mrs. Luce's loose talk.

Veterans' Education

Who, if not those that fought World War II, made it possible for "would be executive" in Frank Antonelli's letter of June 28, to have the privilege of paying veterans' way through school by paying taxes? Or even the privilege of whining about it?

Compulsory Health Insurance

The uninformed will read the persuasive letter of Dr. Ernst P. Boas (June 25) without recognizing it as revival of a bitter, ancient feud. It comes at a time when realistic liberals among doctors thought our irresponsible politicians had declared a truce on unprofitable feuding. We felt this way because the recent National Health Assembly had been productive of such sane attitudes of professional amity and cooperation.

After a decade of costly fratricide that reflected no credit on any of us, doctors rededicated themselves to the only purpose for which we exist. That is healing. We had a national health conference of altruistic scope that was a meeting of informed minds instead of a political ambush. NHA recessed with our medical right and medical left agreeing upon the principle of contributory health insurance as the basic solvent method of financing health security. They differed whether that health security insurance should be voluntary or compulsory.

Satisfied with this encouraging progress, both groups agreed to future round-table conferences dedicated to intelligent conciliation. Dr. Boas' letter indicates the truce is off. Apparently our medical left is taking the controversial issue of compulsory health insurance to the political arena of the National Democratic Convention. To this end Dr. Boas cleverly sets the stage to pose as a persecuted martyr.

The Boas letter implies that reactionary conspiracy is responsible for the determined rejection of compulsory health insurance by an overwhelming majority of the doctors who will be drafted into the program. He claims the American Medical Association is smearing his Physicians' Forum as a Communist front. He piously affirms his forum is without political or ideological affiliation. He declares it is a national organization of prominent liberals dedicated to improving medical care.

Charging the reactionary opposition with using smearing tactics, Dr. Boas proceeds to demonstrate how an expert uses defamation and half truths as forensic weapons. In so doing he provides the rebuttal of his own sophistical pleading.

The record will show that the Physicians' Forum is not an impartial, objective forum. It is a determined, resourceful political lobby. Since its inception it has labored without scruple to impose all - encompassing bureaucratic state medicine upon a medical profession determined to resist it. Comprising about 1000 admittedly superior and liberal doctors, it has conspired to brain-trust and dictate the economic and ideological policies of 160,000 doctors. Some 130,000 of these doctors belong to the dominant and allegedly reactionary AMA.

Dr. Boas defends the right of 1000 to impose their superior judgment upon 130,000 because compulsion is approved by labor leaders and liberal legislators. In so pleading he negates the basic principle of equity motivating all legislation affecting public relations between producers and consumers of services and goods. This democratic principle is the right of a majority collectively to bargain for their group. In effect Dr. Boas holds that his 1000 liberal intellectuals have a right to bargain collectively for over 100,000 who are too dumb to recognize his infallibility.

If Dr. Boas can get any intelligent labor leader or responsible legislator to underwrite this undemocratic principle in the Democratic platform, his ingenuity may prove exceptional. The intelligent labor leader must realize that if he denies the producer of medical services the right of collective bargaining, it is only the prelude of all production losing it. In every country where the healing art has become the supine creature of the state, labor was next to lose its freedom. If labor wants to lose its freedom, then let it approve compulsion for doctors. The doctor can lead labor either to freedom and security or to slavery in the totalitarian state. We may be first but labor will be next.

New Attack On Prejudice

By Malvina Lindsay

Grassroots Action

MUCH STUDY is going on now as to what makes a bigot tick. It is leading to more basic action in dealing with him than exhortation or law passing. It promises—if time doesn't run out—to overcome much of the prejudice and discrimination against minorities that is the Achilles' heel of American democracy.

The way emotional argument over racial matters now resounds from drug store and beauty shop to Congress and the halls of political conventions makes it seem at times as if we were back in those brooding passionate years just before the Civil War. But this is partly the death rattle of social change. Up from the grassroots come the slow inevitable results of the plodding forces of education.

Wellesley College announces it will drop inquiries about race and religion from its application blanks. Student movements on campuses against religious and racial discrimination in athletic and other intercollegiate activities are spreading rapidly. Organized anti-Semitism is reported as having declined in 1947.

Yet while professional bigots were being more generally repudiated, more of the overt ones were being spurred to action by the arguments and issues of the day. And about one half of the American people have been found by community studies to feel prejudice against some minority group—more often several groups—while minorities themselves admit prejudice against each other.

THOSE WHO burn to do something about this overnight are warned by experts on bias that the most futile of all measures is to preach at the prejudiced, especially since they seldom if ever feel a conviction of sin. The old methods of mass propaganda, as lecturing and distributing leaflets, are out.

The antiprejudice forces have recently been reconnoitering by increasing their knowledge of the nature of prejudice and planning a long-range advance on the forces that generate it. What then have they found out?

That the bigot is the result of his environment, that he grows into his prejudice, influenced chiefly by his parents and his associates.

That prejudice is rooted in fear, frustration and insecurity, economic or otherwise, and that people bolster their own sense of importance and security by finding someone whom they can regard as inferior.

That the less schooling a person has the more extreme is his prejudice likely to be.

That prejudice usually goes with certain personality types, particularly the authoritarian type that believes in strict order and discipline, who is painstakingly neat and who has great mental rigidity.

That decreasing employment opportunities increase prejudice, and that it is more prevalent among lower-income groups.

THAT prejudice is greatly heightened by the spread of myths, old wives' tales and other misinformation about minorities—and that women accept this more readily than do men.

That people like what they are familiar with, are suspicious and distrustful of the strange, and that the less personal understanding they have of minorities the greater their prejudice.

That attitudes of prejudice are changeable to an extent, even in adults, usually by means of personal experience with minority members.

In the light of this knowledge, education would seem to be about the only weapon against bigotry. But law can do something, say those who have studied and experimented in this field. It can provide the justice for minority groups that prevents clashes and outbursts. It can provide the social setting in which people will come in time to change their attitudes.

Also the individual can help. For it has been found that the prejudiced are often impressed by the quality and weight of public opinion. The person courageous enough to challenge false statements when he hears them, or to stand up and be counted against the forces of injustice, extends his influence further than he may realize.

Simplified Language

Your paper is read by our Congressmen. Why not turn their notice to this sort of spelling, basis for education, law and news?

The following letters are used to spell N: n d g h k l m p s w t e, for example: n in nun, nn in dinner, nd in handsome, gn in gnaw, hn in John, kn in know, ln in Lincoln, mn in mnemonics, pn in pneumonia, sn in demesne, wn in grown, ten in listen.

O and k are spelled by 22 methods each. Doesn't it make us look like a lot of fools?

The May issue of Education, teachers' journal, carries an article on English as an international tongue. Here is the claim that one person in five of the entire human race understands English, either as a native tongue or as an acquired one.

Competing with 2795 other tongues, English is tops among languages. And if the learning of English were made easier by good spelling and common-sense grammar, why couldn't it win over the rest of mankind—a good move for world peace?

Language does for thought what locomotives and ships, trucks and planes all do for things. But where things are concerned we have been trained to welcome improvements; where thought is concerned we have been trained to prevent improvements.

This sort of teaching not only rules languages but is opposing much else that better thinking would amend.

Washington Calling

Atomic Energy On The Griddle

OF ALL the problems dumped on the White House doorstep by the departing Congress, none has caused more debate and more anxious study than the question of what to do about the Atomic Energy Commission. To begin with, of course, it was put up to the President on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

Childs

In accord with the McMahon Act, passed last year, President Truman sent to the Senate for confirmation the names of the five present members of the commission. Chairman David E. Lilienthal was named for a five-year term and the others for terms ranging from four years to one year.

This was all—supposedly—on a nonpolitical basis. But Majority Leader Robert A. Taft promptly served notice that he would oppose Lilienthal's confirmation as he had the year before.

A prolonged and bitter fight, to come on the very eve of the selection of a Republican nominee for President, was threatened. The Republican chairman of the Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper, wanted to avoid such a fight if he possibly could. So did Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, who had been largely instrumental in obtaining Lilienthal's original confirmation for a one-year test period.

Together Hickenlooper and Vandenberg agreed on a strategy. They would ignore the President's appointments, which would not even be considered by the joint committee. Instead they would put through a bill amending the McMahon Act so as to extend the present terms for two more years.

THIS IS THE bill now before the President. His advisers have urged him to sign it, and that is his present intention. In fact, before this is in print he may reluctantly have put his signature to what he feels is a poor compromise and a deliberate effort by the Legislature to rob him of his constitutional right of appointment.

But what it comes down to is half a loaf—or, in this instance, a quarter loaf—being better than none. If he vetoed the bill, all the President could do would be to give the five commissioners interim appointments that would expire when Congress returned in January.

In other words, continuity of direction over the vast atomic energy project would be for six months. The Hickenlooper-Vandenberg measure at least gives an assurance of two years under present management.

You have only to translate this into terms of a business operation to see what it means. At the Hanford atomic plant in the State of Washington one of the largest construction projects in peacetime history is going forward under the customary secrecy as to its objective. It was initiated by the present commission. The effect of suddenly removing the whole board of directors, or announcing that their tenure was limited to a few months, can easily be imagined if this were a private business.

The same tremors of uncertainty, with resulting delay and confusion, apply to perhaps an even greater degree in Government. It comes on top of the current of hostility, doubt and resentment released by the loyalty investigation into the background of all scientists connected with the great enterprise. As shown in a series of articles in the New York Herald Tribune, the reports on some of the scientists were based on the flimsiest kind of gossip in the "guilt by association" technique.

THIS in turn came on top of the campaign directed against Dr. Edward U. Condon, head of the Bureau of Standards, by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Dr. Condon was publicly charged with being the "weakest link" in the chain of atomic security. Yet he was never given an opportunity to answer the charge at a public hearing of the committee.

Not long ago, the Scientists of Chicago, Inc., took a poll of the organization's 144 members, asking them what effect the Condon case would have on their own willingness to accept Government positions. Sixty-three per cent answered it "made me reluctant to accept" and 12 per cent replied it "made me decide to decline any such offer." Almost without exception, these men replied that they were well aware of the need for legitimate security provisions.

This relates directly to whether American atomic science will continue to lead the world. If scientists are frightened out of Government by police-state methods, this country will not long hold that lead.

At the University of Virginia commencement Mr. Lilienthal urged that every citizen with the privilege of a college education consider devoting several years of his life to Government service. That is a remarkable prescription from one who has given so much and at the same time endured so much, fending off the attacks of those who seem to want to destroy all Government.

10 Accused as Leftist 'Solid Corps' of Union

By the United Press

Ten CIO union leaders were named by a New York department store executive yesterday as the "solid corps" of leftwing labor organizations in New York City department stores.

Louis Broido, executive vice president of Gimbel Brothers, Inc., said the 10 all are members of the CIO Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employes Union. He described them as either members of the Communist Party or "closely associated with it."

He named them as Arthur Osman and David Livingston, of Local 65; Nicholas Carnes and George Meisler of Local 1250; Miss Sadka Brown of Local 5; William Michelson, Anna Blanck and Irving Wodin of Local 2; Sam Lewis of Local 3, and a "Mr. Andron" whose first name and local he could not recall.

First Witness at Inquiry

Broido was the first witness before a House Labor Subcommittee as it opened an investigation of communism in trade unions. Chairman Fred A. Hartley, jr., (R., N. J.) of the full Labor Committee said the inquiry eventually will cover the whole trade union field.

Broido testified that within the greater New York city CIO council there is a "hard core" of 13 or 14 unions that he considers a leftwing group — "American Labor Party and pro-Wallace."

"Why don't people with your capital send them back to Russia?" asked Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.). "President Wilson did that in 1920."

Broido replied that most of the workers are loyal Americans devoted to their unions. He said they are "held in tow by a small group of brilliant, able leaders who have gotten them economic advantages."

Strikes Like Class Warfare

Broido described his business colleagues as "clay pigeons being picked off one by one" by left-wing unions.

"No department store can have a strike without having it develop in 24 hours into a semblance of class warfare," he said.

He recommended these specific amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act to take care of the situation. They would:

1. Designate as an unfair labor practice any strike to enforce a contract clause that would "get around the Taft-Hartley Act." He said the unions are proposing a "reciprocal discharge clause" in new contracts to get around the ban on the closed shop. This clause would permit the union to demand the firing of any worker "disruptive" of the union leadership.

2. Require unions to be certified by the National Labor Relations Board and permit only certified unions to conduct a strike.

3. Restrain mass picketing and mass demonstrations.

Cites Use of Pigeons

Broido said the 1941 strike against Gimbel's was featured by a "mass demonstration" in which one demonstrator loosed a flock of pigeons to let them roost on food counters.

"I am disturbed by this because the technique of mass demonstration is something that can easily be converted into a revolution," he said. "I don't mean that anybody was planning a revolution in Gimbel's basement, but the technique is suggestive."

Broido was unable to say if any of the 10 unionists he named were members of the Communist Party.

"We in New York simply operate on the assumption that all of them are," he said. "I don't believe we are in a position to say who is and who isn't."

When Subcommittee Chairman Charles J. Kersten (R., Wis.) asked whether they all followed the "gyrations of Soviet foreign policy," Broido replied that, judging by their public statements, "that is correct."

The hearing will continue today.

The President's Calling List

11:15—Ira Haymaker, Democratic State chairman for Indiana, with Oscar Ewing, Federal Security Administrator.

11:30—President signs SJR 37, requesting him to proclaim February 1 as "National Freedom Day."

Ex-FBI Man To Guard ECA Secret Documents

J. Walter Yeagley, a former FBI agent, yesterday became director of security for the Economic Cooperation Administration.

His task will be to protect confidential documents reaching the foreign aid agency and overseas.

Yeagley, 39, is a graduate of the University of Michigan and practiced law in South Bend, Ind., for eight years. He was once president of the St. Joseph County (Indiana) Bar Association.

After filed work for the FBI in Wisconsin, Maryland and New York, he became an administrative aide to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

ECA has announced that it will use security classifications on documents, ranging from top-secret to restricted, "as sparingly as possible." The major reason for such precautions, it said, is the necessity of handling confidential papers from other agencies, and governments.

Russia Proposes New Lend-Lease Settlement

By The Associated Press

Russia has proposed a new formula for settling its $11,296,000,000 lend-lease account, Government officials said yesterday.

Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin outlined the proposal in a note to the State Department over the weekend.

Officials concerned with the 15-month-long negotiations said the note shows Russia has modified her earlier position but "we're still pretty far apart." No details were given.

The Soviets have balked at settling up mainly because they contend their wartime contributions to victory entitle them to a better deal than the State Department has offered.

The American Government has insisted that Russia, like all other lend-lease countries, pay part of the cost of lend-lease good which have peacetime value.

New Rent Rule Aids Small Landlords

Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods yesterday made it easier for small landlords (with not more than four rental dwelling units) to obtain "hardship adjustment" of rents.

Another change in regulations provides that no landlord need operate at a loss under rent control.

Both changes become effective July 10.

"These changes will, I believe, remove many of the complaints against the adjustment provisions that some landlords have made in the past," Woods said in a statement.

Small landlords will be permitted to use a simplified form in applying for a hardship adjustment. The only records they need to show a decrease in net income are tax receipts, insurance premium notices, and fuel and utility bills. Woods eliminated a requirement that they produce records or accounts to support a claim of increased operating costs. Some small landlords did not keep sufficient records to qualify for an adjustment, Woods said.

Any landlord who believes his property is being operated at a loss may petition the area rent office for an increase. He must show total income and total operating expenses for the current year.

Woods said this adjustment will "carry out the intent and spirit of the congressional directive that this office give due consideration to landlords who own controlled housing accommodations that are operated at a loss."

N St. Tenants Protest Any Rent Increase

Faulty air-conditioning units were cited by 26 tenants who yesterday protested a proposed 20 per cent rent increase for 83 units of an apartment house at 1417 N st. nw.

Examiner James G. Tyson said the tenants were unwilling to accept the owner's compromise offer of a 6.5 per cent boost. They also said that apartments lacked redecoration and that elevator service was poor, he reported.

Present rents for the apartments range from $37.50 to $70 a month, Tyson revealed.

Approximately 15 tenants appeared at another hearing before Tyson to oppose a 10 per cent hike sought for 130 Apartments at the Majectic, 3200 16th st. nw., he said.

They said services at the apartment house were generally poor, he revealed. Present rents range from $49.50 to $125 a month, Tyson reported.

Rail Negotiators Recess Without Reaching Accord

The Government will have to go into court today for a new order banning a national railroad strike.

That became clear yesterday when White House negotiations aimed at settling the months-old railway labor dispute recessed without agreement.

No further meetings were scheduled until Friday between labor and management representatives and Presidential Adviser John R. Steelman.

The three unions involved now are prevented from striking by a temporary court order. Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough has set a hearing for 10 a. m. (EDT.), today on whether a permanent injunction should be granted.

The railroad and union officials met with Steelman for two hours and then went into separate conferences.

Ex-Premier of Iran Cleared

Tehran, Iran, June 30 (U.P.).—The Majlis (parliament) yesterday dismissed charges of bribery and corruption against former Premier Ahmed Ghavam.

'Bard' Is Witness in Pen Case

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Reporter

Shakespeare was right, folks.

The old boy may have written his plays with a quill. But he turned up today as an indirect witness at a Federal Trade Commission hearing on fountain pens and mechanical pencils.

The Trade Commission is trying to write some rules for the pen and pencil trade. One suggestion: If a pen point looks like gold, but isn't, the manufacturer should identify the metal he's using.

A Bureau of Standards man, W. Stanley Clabaugh, objected to this. He said that as long as the manufacturer doesn't claim the point is gold, why should he say what he puts in his pen points?

"We all know pretty well by now," he said, "that an object may look like gold and not be gold. Look at the trim on the chair in this room. It looks like gold, but we know it isn't."

Or, as Shakespeare put it in "Merchant of Venice":

H. L. Moody, of the Fountain Pen and Mechanical Pencil Manufacturers Association, New York, supported Clabaugh and Mr. S.

"A fellow who buys a pen with a yellow point for two bits," he said, "doesn't have to be told he isn't getting gold."

Maybe you, as a buyer of mechanical pencils and pens, think writing rules for making same would be simple.

If it works, what more do you want, Charley?

Plenty, say the Trade Commission lawyers, who already have 11 pages of proposed rules—and still are going strong.

For instance, take the matter of osmiridium-tipped pen points.

"Now exactly what is osmiridium?" asked Clabaugh. Due to a slight hoarseness, I did not answer that question.

Fortunately, Clabaugh did. He said usually it means osmium, iridium, rhodium, ruthenium (or maybe it was rubidium). Add a dash of platinum, and there you are.

The whole thing should be defined, Clabaugh said.

Finally, George Metzger, the trade commissioner's lawyer in charge of the hearing, said he figured the meeting had better recess until more information is available.

"I'll make a note of all this," he said.

While mechanical pen maker Moody looked on in horror, Metzger did, too. With a two-for-a-nickel lead pencil.

Northrup Gets Emergency U. N. Food Job

Frederick B. Northrup of the Department of Agriculture yesterday was named secretary general of the International Emergency Food Committee of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.

He succeeds Dr. D. A. Fitzgerald who resigned last April to become administrator of food and agricultural programs for the European Cooperation Administration.

Northrup is director of the price support and foreign supply branch of the Production and Marketing Administration of the department.

He is expected to assume his new duties in a few days. His job will be to give over-all direction to IEFC commodity committees in preparation recommendations for allocation of scarce foods and fertilizers.

Two Named To Suburban Rent Board

Appointment of two additional members to the advisory board of the Montgomery-Prince Georges Defense Rental Area announced yesterday.

They are W. Robert Probey, 4823 Wellington dr., Chevy Chase, and James R. Miller, Rockville.

Probey is an American Federation of Labor organizer and business representative for Office Workers Local 2 here. Miller is an attorney.

The appointments were made by Housing Expediter Tighe E. Wood, according to Walter R. Heath, rent director for the Montgomery-Prince Georges area. Members of the board who will continue to serve are Mayor Harry A. L. Barker, Riverdale; S. Walter Bogley, Bethesda, and E. F. Zalesak, College Park.

Shirley Highway Fairfax Segment To Open in 1949

Southbound traffic may move on the Henry G. Shirley Memorial Highway in Fairfax County by the summer of 1949, according to tentative plans announced yesterday by the Virginia State Highway Department, and the entire highway may be completed in 1950.

The department proposes to speed the southbound lane to completion before going ahead with other new construction on the 17.3-mile expressway.

The new highway is designed to relieve traffic congestion on U. S. Route 1 between Woodbridge and Washington. A portion of the highway has already been completed.

The highway when completed is expected to be the most heavily traveled route on the Eastern seaboard south of Washington, carrying an estimated 80 per cent of the traffic now on U. S. 1.

State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson of Montgomery County yesterday warned county residents it is illegal to buy or sell any type of fireworks.

Expedition To Seek Ruin Of Noah's Ark

Greensboro, N. C., June 30 (AP). Noah's Ark came to rest on Mt. Ararat and a number of persons believe the Biblical ship's petrified remains are there today. They plan an expedition to eastern Turkey to find out.

Dr. A. J. Smith, dean of People's Bible School near here, is one of the group.

Dr. Smith was out of the city today but his daughter, Bethel Smith, declared: "They definitely are planning an expedition to locate Noah's Ark."

She said a definite date had not been set but she believed the expedition "already had permission from the Turkish government."

At Annapolis, Md., Frederick Avery, 59 model maker at the Naval Academy Museum who identified himself as the expedition's "vice president in charge of Marine research," said he has his passport ready for an August departure.

Avery's job would be to decide whether any wreckage found might check with the ark's dimensions according to Biblical descriptions.

3 Parties Agree On Candidate to Oppose Isacson

New York, June 30 (AP).—Three political parties have decided to name a coalition candidate to oppose reelection to Congress of Leo Isacson in the twenty-fourth Bronx district.

The Democratic, Republican and Liberal parties in the Bronx have agreed to nominate Democratic State Senator Isador Dollinger to run against the American Labor Party Congressman.

The decision followed conferences between Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national committeeman, and Bronx Republican Chairman John J. Knewitz. Later Liberal Party support for Dollinger was obtained.

Isacson was elected in a special election Feb. 17 with support of Henry A. Wallace.

More Barrymore Than Main Line

By Richard L. Coe

AS SHE HERSELF remarked, "The Philadelphia Story" has been serving Diana Barrymore on the citronella circuit in the same way "Springtime for Henry" has done for Edward Everett Horton.

This week John Barrymore's daughter (by his first wife, Katherine Corri Harris) is playing the Philip Barry comedy out at Olney. It is a handsomely staged production, indeed, outstandingly flossy by countryside standards.

Perhaps because she made it so much her own on both stage and screen, the role of the Main Line bride is indelibly associated with Katharine Hepburn. Some of the Barry lines, which fit the curiously chaste quality of Miss Hepburn like the ads' fancier "foundation garments," become a trifle bizarre when applied to Miss Barrymore.

For Miss Diana is decidedly an emphatic, forceful personality. It is the way of the theater nowadays to emphasize personality characteristics; plays are written for certain performers, who do not necessarily have the acting talent; they are adept, say, at expressing the peculiar flair with which they are gifted. But they are not true actors.

Miss Barymore, it seems to me, is one of these interesting exhibits; she has a very decisive elan of her own. That this does not always fit the aloof character of Barry's Tracy Lord, however, is an inescapable fact. Her portrayal of the inhibited goddess of the Main Line, consequently, is a bag of tricks that sometimes comes off and sometimes fizzles. Although she states she never saw Miss Hepburn play the part, her reading of some of the lines has the Hepburn tone, the flat repression that is so much associated with the Hepburn sorcery. And then, like as not, Miss Barrymore will waddle across the stage in the manner of Mae West.

"THE PHILADELPHIA STORY." Richard Skinner, Redge Allen and Evelyn Freyman present the comedy by Philip Barry. Settings by Syrjala. Staged by Harry Ellerbe. At the Olney country theater.

Cleverly-Designed Sets

The settings S. Syrjala has given the conservative rich of Pennsylvania are truly remarkable for summer theater make-believe. When the Lord family moves from its sitting room to the porch, one sees the room from another angle, through tall French doors; the illusion is exceptionally precise and realistic. And the furnishings suggest the affluence on which the playright discourses so urbanely in his script.

The script, while it does not maintain the sparkle it seemed to have nine seasons ago, holds up better than inferior writers' lines do seconds after their delivery. Whether Tracy will marry the man from the ranks, form an alliance, as it were, with a coal pick, still seems a beguiling theatrical question.

Director Harry Ellerbe's cast is aided immeasurably by several skilled players. The efficient polish of Jane Seymour brings the exact tone the Lord establishment requires in its mistress, and Robert Wilcox is acceptable as the resourceful newsman.

In her final role of her Olney stay, Mary MacArthur is completely winning as Tracy's brat sister. It's a good part, but Miss MacArthur has now played several Olney roles, enough to show that she has the versatility to make her ingenue assignments varied. Like Miss Barrymore, the young Miss MacArthur bears both the advantage and handicap of a famous theater name; her artful simplicity is increasing and one trusts she will keep on working. Walk-ons for a few years never hurt anybody.

Dean Harens, a young player who has had considerable experience on stage and screen, shows it in his capable handling of Tracy's first husband, a man older than Harens, but expertly spoken. It's a genial, thoroughly likable performance.

Miss Barrymore and he "Philadelphia Story" will continue at Olney through Sunday evening, with a Sunday matinee at 2:45.

"THE STREET With No Name" was elegantly previewed last night in the Statler's Presidential Room before its opening this morning at the Palace . . . J. Edgar Hoover, notables of the ecclesiastical world and chiefs of Twentieth Century-Fox were in the audience for this corking adventure yarn from the files of the FBI . . . J. Edgar Hoover's enthusiasm for the film is catching . . . He remarks: "The street on which crime flourishes is the street extending across America. It is the street with no name. Wherever law and order break down, there you will find public indifference—and there you will find the FBI meeting the challenge of the new criminal onslaught . . . This is the story of the FBI today, 'The Street With No Name'."

"AND WHY NOT?" Esther Williams seems to ask; about what isn't clear, but it might be the fact that the beauteous swimming lass comes back to the Capitol screen this morning in one of her Technicolored musicals. This time Esther's whim is titled "On an Island With You"

TODAY also brings in a new star the Warner studio thinks highly of, one Doris Day, who'll be singing and dancing with Jack Carson in "Romance on the High Seas" . . . It further lures another Technicolor musical to the Capitol, Esther Williams in "On an Island With You" . . . Red Skelton's idea of the "Fuller Brush Man" and his merry troubles is holding for a second week at the Metropolitan, which makes three downtown stanzas for the comedy; comedy obviously is what the cash customers pay cash for . . . And that grand little comedy, "Tawny Pipit," will be at the Apex today and Friday . . . That one's a must.

Citizens Asked To Seek Killer

oung Negro girls seen running from the park exit, at 17th st. and Colorado ave. nw., only 100 feet from where Carol's body was found, the afternoon of the slaying.

The disclosure that rape was involved was made at a press conference at the morgue by Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner.

This gave police a concrete motive for the savage murder. For the second straight day, Park and Metropolitan Police concentrating on rounding up known sex offenders in the hope the dragnet would pull in the killer.

Dr. MacDonald examined the girl's body at the scene at 8:30 p. m. and announced she had not been raped. The neatness of her clothing and other indications, he said yesterday, supported this original theory.

He said an autopsy performed Monday convinced him Carol had been the victim of a sex maniac but he decided to withhold comment on this aspect of the case until completion of a chemical analysis.

Laboratory Tests Complete

These tests were completed yesterday in the laboratory at the morgue.

Dr. MacDonald described the condition and position of the child's body when it was found.

Carol, who weighed 110 and was 5 feet 3, was lying partially on her left side near a fallen tree in the underbrush. Her clothing, he said, did not appear to have been disturbed. Her throat was slashed by some keen instrument of death.

She was wearing a white dress with black stripes. Suspended about her neck on a string was a key to the garage where she kept her bicycle, the same bicycle on which she left home and which was found about 25 feet from the body. Four religious medals were pinned to her slip and a silver identification bracelet on her left wrist bore her name and address. On her feet were white sneakers.

Dr. MacDonold said there were no marks on the body to indicate it had been dragged. There were, however, very minor contusions and abrasions on the left side of the face. The coroner pointed out that the left side of the girl's face was the one pressed against the brush. There were two minute scratches, possibly fingernail marks, on the chest.

The coroner toud reporters that when he examined Carol's body at 8:30 p. m. Sunday she had been dead from two to four hours.

Sample of Blood Sent to FBI

He said scraping from beneath her fingernails are being examined for possible clews and that a sample of her blood has been sent to the FBI for typing. The FBI is also making a scientific examination of the girl's clothing.

Dr. MacDonald disclosed that so far he has examined 10 suspects for traces of blood. He said if the murderer got any of the victim's blood on his body an invisible trace will remain for a week or more no matter how many times the skin surface is washed.

Capt. Mark Raspberry of the park police said the motorist who witnessed the man in the blood-stained shirt Sunday visited park police headquarters in the Interior Department Building yesterday to scan through photographs of previous sex offenders.

Raspberry said Army land mine detectors may be used again in the search for the murder weapon. No trace of the weapon has been found although police have combed a mile square area in the park.

Today funeral services will be held for Carol, who lived at 1635 Webster st. nw., and whose father, William P. Bardwell, is a Federal Trade Commission investigator. A requiem mass will be said at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, 16th st. and Park rd. nw., at 9 a. m. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Parents Advised To Warn Children

Warning against the danger of perverts, the superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital last night advised parents to impress their children with "the importance of not responding when strangers accost them, and to remove themselves as fast as possible from the scene when so accosted."

Dr. Overholster asked parents to urged parents to caution youngsters against accepting presents from strangers and to refuse to accompany them. Dr. Overholser's advice was given during the radio program "City Desk" broadcast by Station WTOP.

Ex-French Envoy's Widow, Son Indicted in 2-Million Tax Case

New York, June 30 (NYHT).—Mrs. Eleanor Louise Elverson Patenotre, 78, former principal owner of the Philadelphia Inquirer, and her son, Raymond Patenotre, 48, were indicted today by a Federal grand jury for allegedly failing to pay more than two million dollars in income taxes growing out of the sale of the newspaper in 1930 for $10,500,000.

Mother and son, both American-born French citizens, are charged with a tax liability of $2,183,347.68 on a net income of $8,769,108.27 for 1930, practically all the greater sum being profit on the sale of the newspaper to the Curtis-Martin Newspapers, Inc.

The daily was rebought by Mrs. Patenotre, widow of Jules Patenotre, former French ambassador to the United States, in 1934, and sold in 1936 to the late Moses L. Annenberg, whose family still runs it.

Mrs. Patenotre never reported the profit on the sale, which took place in Montreal on May 15, 1930, according to Thomas F. Murphy, assistant to John F. X. McGohey, United States Attorney.

The case was originally investigated shortly after the 1930 sale. At that time, proof was submitted that Mrs. Patenotre had made a gift of the stock, representing 51 per cent interest in the newspaper, to her son a few days before the sale. The case was closed without any assessment on the ground the sale was made in Canada by her son, an alien.

Both defendants, Murphy said, submitted affidavits at the time that Mrs. Patenotre did not get any part of the $10,500,000. However, the case was reopened after the tax convention between the United States and Canada was signed in 1943, and it was found, Murphy said, that a large part of the cash proceeds was transferred to Mrs. Patenotre immediately after the sale.

The statute of limitations in such cases is six years, but it did not apply, Murphy said, because the defendants were out of the country. If convicted, each faces a maximum sentence of five years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000.

FCC Stand Is Reaffirmed

was an authorization for renewal of license or radio station WHLS at Port Huron, Mich., tentatively granted last January.

WHLS has been operating on temporary authority since 1945, when the station handled one broadcast in connection with a city election and received complaints that its content was actionable. The station then examined the scripts for proposed further broadcasts, concluded they contained possible libelous material, and cancelled all broadcasts scheduled in connection with that election.

The commission majority said this was censorship, but since there had been no previous clarification of the rules, it was not wilful, warranting renewal of the license.

The five FCC members taking part were unanimous for the license renewal. They differed considerably on the policy declarations in a series of separate opinions.

Commissioner Rosel H. Hyde said WHLS had censored political material in a way forbidden by law, but the broad question of station liability was a matter for decision by Congress or the courts, not FCC.

Commissioner George E. Sterling said the circumstances at Port Huron did not constitute censorship within the meaning of the Communications Act, but that Congress should further clarify the political broadcast question.

Commissioner Robert F. Jones said the original Port Huron broadcast as described in the act, and therefore there was not unlawful censorship. He also expressed belief the commission had exceeded its authority in declaring stations immune from damage actions based on political broadcasts.

Jones said the matter should have been made the subject for a general public hearing.

Mrs. Wallace Estate Valued at $85,003

Des Moines, June 30 (AP).—Mrs. May B. Wallace, mother of Henry A. Wallace, the Progressive Party candidate for President, left an estate valued at $85,003.93, the estate inventory filed in District Court today showed.

Mrs. Wallace, 80, died April 12. She left the bulk of her estate to her six children. A son, James, of Des Moines is executor.

5-Agency Fund Bill Signed by Truman

President Truman yesterday signed a bill appropriating $5,819,659,851 for five Government agencies—the Veterans' Administration, the Atomic Energy Commission, Office of Defense Transportation, Office of Housing Expediter and the Maritime Commission.

Grand Jury Hears Young

Robert J. Barrett which indicated that many gambling cases were "ignored" by grand juries last year.

Commissioner Young declined to say whether he had been questioned about the 5-month-old double shooting at the Brass Rail Cafe, which reputedly had a gambling tie-up.

After Commissioner Young testified, one of the two principals in the Brass Rail shooting, Henry M. Leake, 39, of 10½ R st. ne., was called into the special grand jury room.

Leake, who appeared before the jury last week but refused to testify on grounds he was illegally subpenaed, said he did not answer any of the probers' questions in a 25-minute session yesterday, on grounds that the answers might incriminate him.

Leake and Charles Henry Nelson, 39, of 1803 H st. ne., have been indicted on charges of attempting to kill each other in the shooting in which both were wounded. Nelson appeared before the special grand jury on Tuesday.

Questioning of Leake was believed to have concluded the Brass Rail phase of the gambling probe, and observers are watching to see what turn the inquiry will take next.

Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly, who has been participating in the investigation, has left temporarily for "several weeks vacation," but will return to continue in the probe, Fay said yesterday.

Taking Pictures

Flat Tire Isn't Funny, but Makes a Good Shot

By Ollie Atkins

SNAPSHOOTING for the summer is in full swing. Be your sojourn for a weekend or a couple of weeks, bring that camera along and follow this schedule for a complete interesting photographic record of your doings:

Packing the car makes a good shot, especially if while tying the canoe onto the roof you can arrange to get a couple of shots of the operation. En route, if you get a flat tire, have the Mrs. click a shot of the tire changing—it will not be funny as you unpack the trunk to get out the new wheel, but come next winter it will be your most prized picture.

If you hire a cabin, pitch a tent or just park the car on the beach, make some pictures of the set-up. Applying mosquito repellent or sunburn cream will be worth another film or two. Interesting things you see from general views of the beach or a mountain sunset and the funny things other people do will be good subjects.

Don't waste film making several shots of the same scene. Each film frame should mean a good picture. Hold the camera very steady and double check your exposure, for resort lighting at this season tends to be much brighter than you judge. If you tend to have camera movement in your snapshots do not hesitate to shoot with faster shutter speeds which will lessen danger of moving the camera and at the same time lessen your exposure.

Unless your camera will make exposures at a two-hundredth of a second or more, do not attempt to make fast action pictures of people running or auto races. You will find plenty of things in which action can easily be simulated but subjects are actually motionless.

The United States Department of State, publication division, is looking for single shots or photo-stories in color and/or black and white on American subjects for use in the magazine Amerika. Amerika is distributed by the State Department overseas (mostly Russia). Should you have anything you deem suitable for this publication write Sylvia Grovesmith, Department of State, Magazine Branch; New York City.

No complicated props or lighting are necessary to make a beach picture like this one made while the subjects were posing without movement. A reflector filled in the shadow areas here but you could have done without it

Four prints and four color slides will be the individual limitations on pictures of a scientific nature submitted for the Second Annual Photography-in-Science Salon in the United States National Museum here September 1 to 21. D. C. Clearings Set New Peak In Six Months

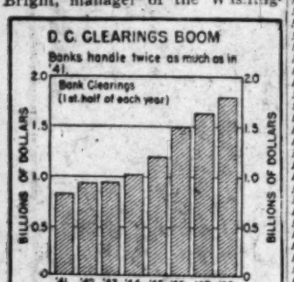
By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington bank clearings in the first six months this year soared to a new all-time record of $1,790,004,851, a gain of 9 per cent over the same 1947 period.

June check transactions totaled $325,501,821, a new peak for that month, according to George H. Bright, manager of the Washington Clearing House Association. The June aggregate, 12 per cent higher than the same 1947 month, was also the second best monthly figure on record.



Since 1947, clearings have shown the remarkable increase of more than 115 per cent. Six months' totals for respective years follow:

1948	$1,790,004,851	1944	$1,622,672,201
1947	1,623,637,432	1943	943,512,197
1946	1,493,759,193	1942	933,011,374
1945	1,208,324,150	1941	830,296,718

Contributing to the record check turnover were continued high level of business activities, heavy tax payments, higher prices and expansion in real estate and business loans.

January	$360,658,588	$282,976,821
February	251,136,277	239,949,317
March	308,515,679	266,648,663
April	322,440,133	286,611,486
May	282,060,251	270,678,221
June	325,501,821	289,678,922

SEC and 43 Underwriters Brave Eaton's Conscience

By J. A. Livingston

CYRUS S. EATON, principal stockholder and leading spirit in the investment banking firm of Otis & Co., Cleveland, was never one to run away from a fight if it came after him.

Years ago he blocked a merger between Bethlehem Steel and Youngstown Sheet & Tube when he wanted to merge Youngstown with Republic Steel Corp. Later, allied with Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago, he fought Wall Street investment houses on competitive bidding on new security issues. Eaton wanted "in" when he was out of a lot of lucrative underwritings.

Livingston

Today Eaton has taken on another fight. His conscience smites him mightily—and belatedly—on behalf of the Kaiser-Frazer stockholder, whom he depicts as a victim of "reckless self-dealing and unjust enrichment." The vastness of the Eaton conscience was laid before the directors of the Kaiser-Frazer Corp. at a meeting in New York last Friday by Eaton's counsel, Abe Fortas, of the firm of Arnold, Fortas & Porter, of this city.

Eaton is stirred to lawsuit by a transaction that occurred more than two years ago. In May, 1946, Kaiser-Frazer Corp. transferred an aluminum rolling mill at Trentwood (near Spokane), Wash., to Permanente Metals Corp., a company Henry J. Kaiser and his son Edgar largely own. The Kaisers, asserts Eaton, were on both sides of the transaction. And Otis & Co., "as stockholders and underwriters of the two issues of Kaiser-Frazer stock sold to the public," has ordered its counsel to bring suit to force retransfer of the Trentwood mill so that "this wrong is speedily corrected."

KAISER-FRAZER had leased the Trentwood mill from the War Assets Administration in March, 1946, when steel was scarce and the corporation's officers were contemplating using aluminum automobile bodies. According to Chad F. Calhoun, a vice president of Permanente, Kaiser-Frazer developed other sources for steel and at the same time realized that operation of the Trentwood mill would require contracting for bauxite or pig aluminum or both and an outlay of large amounts of capital. Thereupon, Kaiser-Frazer directors decided to withdraw from the aluminum business and transferred the lease on the Trentwood plant to Permanente Metals Corp., which had been in the magnesium business and was interested in the development of light metals on the West Coast.

Eaton, as the head of Otis & Co., must have known about the Trentwood transfer no less than a year ago. The deal was referred to in a Kaiser-Frazer proxy statement to shareholders in May 1947. It was again referred to in the prospectus for the issuance of 900,000 shares of Kaiser-Frazer stock in February this year. Otis & Co. representatives helped prepare and nurse that prospectus through the SEC.

Eaton's conscience didn't begin kicking up until after (a) the public offering of those 900,000 shares fizzled, (b) Otis & Co. and First California Co. withdrew from their commitment to purchase Kaiser-Frazer stock at $11.50 a share, and (c) Kaiser-Frazer Corp. brought suit against Otis & Co. for $7,700,000 for breaking the contract. A third underwriting firm, Allen & Co., did not withdraw from its commitment and Harold Allen, a partner in the firm, testified before the SEC that Eaton said "I'd rather have a lawsuit on my hands than be dead broke." H. T. Birr, president of First California, gave similar testimony.

OSTENSIBLE REASON for Eaton's withdrawal from the underwriting contract was the filing of a suit against the Kaiser-Frazer Corp. in Detroit the same morning that Otis & Co. was due to pay over the money to Kaiser-Frazer representatives in Cleveland. The SEC contends that there is prima facie evidence of fraud in the filing of the suit. Fortas describes the SEC's charges as "wild and irresponsible."

As a result of Eaton's kickup of conscience, Representative George R. Bender (R., Ohio), who comes from Cleveland, has announced in a telegram to the SEC that he intends to investigate Permanente. Neither the Bender threat nor the Eaton conscience has panicked the SEC or a coast-to-coast syndicate of 43 investment banking firms, headed by First Boston Corp. of New York and Dean, Witter & Co. of San Francisco. On Tuesday, the SEC approved the registration of 600,000 Permanente shares. On Wednesday the underwriting group went through with a public offering of the stock at $15 a share.

Kaiser Hosiery Co. Sold to Burlington

Burlington, N. C., June 30 (AP).—Sale of the 12-million-dollar May McEwan Kaiser Hosiery Co. to Burlington Mills was announced today.

J. C. Cowan, jr., president of Burlington Mills, and Herbert M. Kaiser, president of the Kaiser company, announced jointly that meetings of the Burlington directors and Kaiser stockholders today ratified a revised plan for the sale.

The plan of reorganization was dated last May 28, they said. It is subject to Justice Department approval.

The assets, properties, business and good will of the Kaiser company, subject to its liabilities, were conveyed to Burlington Mills in exchange for 608,000 shares of Burlington Mills common stock.

Herbert M. Kaiser will join Burlington Mills as a director and vice president, heading all hosiery operations.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 30 (AP).—Grain futures generally were firm on the Board of Trade today. Wheat advanced more than a cent at times and July corn was more than 2 cents higher before backing down slightly.

Higher mid-June parity prices, reports of crop damage in Canada, and lack of country offerings of corn were props to the market.

The Government late yesterday announced a mid-June wheat parity price of $2.22 a bushel, up a cent from the mid-June figure. Traders said they believed the 1948 Government wheat loan rate would be $2.00 at farm levels. This would mean a rate of $2.20 at Chicago and $2.24 at Kansas City, 4 cents above the interim loan rates.

Woman Retires After 46 Years at Treasury

Drysdale — Mrs. Letcher — Burton — Bugbee

A billion dollar bond? Strictly "routine" printed matter to Isadora A. Letcher, 67, of 3324 Sherman ave. nw., widowed years ago, has handled enough greenbacks and United States Securities to float a small loan to China, the USSR, England, France and Siam—not to mention the 20 Latin American counties.

Despite more than 46 years' close association with huge quantities of that "root" of all evil, Mrs. Letcher, who retired yesterday, is hardly callous to the stuff.

"With prices what they are," she sighed, "how can I be?"

Money, in fact, is hardly a boring topic to her. She will for example, tell you that she earned $1.25 a day when she entered the Treasury Department at 21 to be a printer's assistant. Her latest salary has been two cents more than that—an hour.

Recently Mrs. Letcher, as a principal examiner, has run through sheet after sheet of cigarette stamps. She can kiss off $70,000 worth in an easy day.

Aside from dealing in Government currency, Mrs. Letcher found time to attend Howard University at night, emerging with a law degree in 1925. The following year she was admitted to practice before the Michigan bar.

Woodwell, Map Unit Head at PRA, Resigns

Archer R. Woodwell, 65, of 33 Metropolitan ave., Kensington, Md., retired yesterday as cartographic engineer and head of the general map unit, after 25 years with the Public Roads Administration.

Woodwell was feted yesterday at a party in the office of Deputy Commissioner H. E. Hilts in the Federal Works Building. Fellow employes presented farewell gifts and Hilts lauded Woodwell's Government service, which dates back to 190..

A native of Newburyport, Mass., and graduate of Central High here, Woodwell has been responsible for preparation and revision of PRA maps of the Federal aid highway system and a transportation map series. He also developed the PRA map library. Married, and the father of four children, he said he intends to spend more time at his hobby, reading history.

Naval Observatory Astronomer Retires

Harry E. Burton, principal astronomer and head of the equatorial and astrographic division, Naval Observatory, retired yesterday after more than 39 years' service as a civilian employe of the Navy Department.

He was commended for his "achievements and contributions" by Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan. A graduate of the University of Iowa, where he received both a bachelor's and a master's degree, Mr. Burton now resides at 3814 Fulton st. nw.

Father-Daughter Hearing Today in Police Slaying

Thomas Hall, 55, a Deanwood Park, Md., laborer, and his daughter will be given a preliminary hearing in Hyattsville Police Court at 10 a. m. today in the fatal shooting of Prince Georges County Policeman Charles Caldwell on June 12.

Hall and his daughter, Janie, 5312 Maple st., Deanwood Park, have been charged with the Caldwell murder. They also have been charged with assault with intent to murder Policeman Wallace Baker and with disorderly conduct.

The preliminary hearing was delayed pending recovery of Baker, who was released Monday from Prince Georges Hospital, where he was treated for gunshot wounds of the chest and leg.

Both Baker and Caldwell were shot with Caldwell's service revolver, which was snatched from his holster as the two officers were attempting to arrest Hall and his daughter on a disorderly conduct charge.

Summertime is MINT JULEP TIME!

FROM THE DEEP SOUTH

Came the most romantic of famous drinks, the traditional Mint Juleps, made with genuine sour mash straight Kentucky bonded bourbons, the type of bourbons exclusive at Eig's. FLAVOR BALANCE is the secret of the true mint julep to balance strong mint, melting ice and sweetening. A whiskey must be rich, must be heavy-bodied and must be fully aged. These characteristics have distinguished Eig's exclusive brands of bourbons from other whiskies. Distilled by small, independent Kentucky distilleries, who personally take pride in producing the best whiskies in the world, Eig's exclusive brands of bourbons are the kind of Kentucky bourbons that made mint juleps famous.

Prelude to Death . . .

FINAL STRUGGLE—Two policemen grapple with a man in the Norfolk (Va.) Union Bus Terminal yesterday shortly before one of them shot him to death. Policeman J. P. Bordeaux (left) swings a blackjack while Policeman M. D. Edwards grabs the man from behind. Three blows to head failed to stop the man, tentatively identified as James E. Howell, jr., of Roper, N. C., who was wielding a knife, police said. Edwards shot him fatally. Edwards said that when Howell was told to put the knife down Howell said "you'll have to kill me first." The photo was made by Linwood Maddrey of the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch, who was in the terminal on another assignment

Brewers End Grain-Saving

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan yesterday told brewers they can end a voluntary grain-saving program put in operation during the critical shortage last October.

Brannan said there still is need for food and feed grain saving. But he said he is suspending the brewers' program because no other grain-using industry is taking part in such a plan.

The secretary said it has been impossible to get other industries to go along. He said this is because "Congress did not adopt the recommendations of the President and of this department to enact legislation to compel grain conservation practices by industries which are unwilling to accept voluntary measures."

Wheat Support Price

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department announced yesterday it will support grower prices of 1948 crop wheat at a national average of $2 a bushel at the farm.

This compares with a $1.84 support price for last year's crop, and with an average of $2.11 received by farmers on June 15 from regular markets.

The department will support prices by means of loans to growers. However, Government buying for shortage areas abroad will provide indirect support.

Loan rates will vary by locations where the grain is stored and by grades. Generally speaking, rates are highest at terminal markets. Such rates cover cost of moving grain from the farm to the markets.

Although terminal rates are considerably above the national farm average of $2, a farmer would net no more on grain stored at such markets than on grain stored on farms. Transportation and handling costs make up the difference.

Parity Price Higher

The support program is designed to assure growers at least 90 per cent of the parity price of grain as of July 1. The July 1 parity price was determined to be $2.22 a bushel.

The increase in the support rates over last year reflects the fact that the parity price of wheat is higher. A year ago it was $2.04. The parity price increases or decreases with changes in prices paid by farmers for commodities used in farm production and in farm living. Such prices have increased over those of a year ago.

Loans will be available through December 31 and will mature on April 30, 1949, or earlier on demand of the department.

If foreign demand for wheat continues strong, no large amount of this year's wheat crop—now estimated to be the second largest on record—would be put under loan.

Lemon Hurls Year's 1st No-Hitter, 2-0, Over Tigers

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

UNTIL THE OTHER NIGHT, my favorite race tout story concerned the character who was playing a businessman for a good thing and made a morning call with his latest tip. He was greeted unsociably at the office door with the salutation: "You again? Scram before I throw you out."

POVICH

The tout, abashed, wondered at the sudden toughness of a client who never before had complained about losers. "What have I done now?" he asked.

"What have you done? You're asking me. You haven't given me a winner all meeting, and now you've got the nerve to come back today."

"But I've got a good thing going in the third. It can't miss. I know the jockey's brother, and——"

"Get out of here, you're bad news to me. Not only am I broke from your lousy tips, but I've been dipping into some of the firm's money and I'm in bad shape."

Now the tout was hurt, touched. "But I want you to get even," he said. "This thing in the third is the best thing of the meeting. I want to prove I can give you a winner. If you don't have the dough, just make a mental bet. That'll satisfy me."

"Outside before I throw you out," was the answer. "I'm not making any mental bet. You made me lose all my money, now you want me to lose my mind."

BUT FIRST PLACE goes to Jackie Miles' tout story, the one he tells at the Riviera Club on the Jersey side of the Hudson as part of his $4000-a-week stint. I hope I don't louse it up in the retelling.

Anyway, Miles' tout was operating at Belmont with remarkably poor luck. In fact he didn't have the price of admission and was wondering how to get into the track when straight from Heaven came a well-dressed stranger who handed him a box-seat ticket with the explanation "I'm looking for company, will you join me?"

Inside, the tout surveyed his benefactor. 'Play the races much?" he asked. No, the fellow wasn't much of a hand at the races, he said.

"How strong do you bet?" the tout asked. "Not much," he heard the fellow say. "I only bet $100 a race. Know anything in the first race?"

The tout went into his spiel. The track was right, the wind was right and the stable connections were betting on the bottom horse. "Bet yourself a hundred on it, and for the information buy three hundred-dollar tickets for me."

THE TICKETS WERE BOUGHT with enthusiasm by the stranger. But the tout's luck was still bad. With the biggest stake in his life going for him, he got nothing. The horse ran out. The tout eyed the impassive face of his friend who was registering no dismay. "The wind must have changed," he commented, "I guess that happens sometimes."

Sure, that was it, the tout said—the horse didn't like running against the wind. But he had another good thing in the second. "Bet yourself a hundred, and three hundred for me."

That nag ran out, too. But there was no squawk from the sucker. Eight races they played—$100 for the client, $300 for the tout—and they didn't cash a bet. The tout couldn't believe what was happening. Not even a suspicious look came his way.

He couldn't figure it out, either, when his client suggested at the end of the day's races that they go back to his hotel for dinner, see a show later, and then hit some of the better night spots. They made 'em all, with his new friend picking up the checks.

WHEN, AT THE END of the night's fun, the fellow suggested to the tout that they try it all over again the next day, the tout said "sure" but he was in a daze at such a windfall.

On his favorite corner the next morning he was still searching for an answer to his high good fortune in meeting up with such a trusting client. He met another tout, and told him the story.

"I don't know what to make of it," he related. "This fellow blows eight races without a beef, takes me to dinner and the shows and wants me with him again today. I had all that money going for me and don't make a dime. Whaddaya do in a case like that?"

"That's easy," said the second tout. "Drop him. He's hard luck."

Leonard 'Beaned,' Carried From Field in Dodger Game

New York, June 30 (U.P.).—Dutch Leonard, veteran Philadelphia Phillies knuckle-baller, was struck in the head today by a ball pitched by Harry Taylor, Dodger right hander, in the third inning of today's game.

Leonard was carried off the field by stretcher bearers. In the Phillies clubhouse he was able to sit up and talk as a lump grew on the back of his head.

He was taken to Swedish Hospital, in Brooklyn, for X-rays and observation.

$100,000 for Zoldak

St. Louis, June 30 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns received $90,000 in cash in the June 15 deal that sent Southpaw Pitcher Sam Zoldak to the Cleveland Indians, General Manager Bill DeWitt of the Browns said today.

"In addition to left-hander Bill Kennedy, the Indians paid us $90,000 cash and promised to deliver a $10,000 player at the end of the season," Dewitt said.

Pirates Fined $100

New York, June 30 (AP).—President Ford Frick of the National League today fined Pittsburgh Manager Bill Meyer $50 and Pitcher Kirby Higbe and Trainer Charles Jorgensen $25 each as the result of an argument during the Pirates' game at Cincinnati last night.

Frick said Meyer had been fined "for violent and profane language." Higbe drew his punishment for throwing a bat in the air.

Meyer and three Pittsburgh players were ejected by Plate Umpire Bill Stewart in the fourteenth inning of the game won by Cincinnati, 6-5.

Braves Sign Star

Boston, June 29 (U.P.).—The Boston Braves announced tonight that 17-year-old left-hander John Antonelli of Rochester, N. Y.—"the most sought-after pitcher since Bob Feller"—has agreed to join the National League club's farm organization as a bonus player.

General Manager John J. Quinn said President Lou Perini was en route here in his private plane with the young hurler, who pitched a no-hit, no-run game in a special exhibition arranged for nine major league scouts.

Bosox Whip Yanks, 7 to 3

New York, June 30 (AP).—Jack Kramer posted his seventh victory of the season today and his fifth in a row, pitching the Boston Red Sox to a 7-3 seven-hit triumph over the New York Yankees.

Kramer got off to a rocky start, yielding two runs in the first inning but thereafter he muffled the Yankee bats on three hits until the ninth when they scored their final run on a double and single. He walked only three and fanned six including the side in the ninth.

Ted Extends Streak

Vern Stephens led the Sox 10-hit assault against three Yankee pitchers by driving in five runs on a homer, single and tyo flyouts.

Vic Raschi, boatsing a nine-game winning streak, started for the Yankees and the Sox promptly slugged him for two runs in the first inning on Dom DiMaggio's single, a walk, ground out and Stephens' two-run single.

Laurel Harness Racing Halted

For the second night in a row, the harness racing program at Laurel Raceway was called off because of rain.

Tuesday night one race was held before the cancellation. Last night, two heavy downpours made the track too muddy for the trotters and their sulkies two hours before the first post.

Racing will be resumed tonight, the seventh of a 20-night meeting.

Falkenburg Clowns Way To Net Upset

By Robert C. Dowson

Wimbledon, England, June 30 (U.P.).—Bob Falkenburg, gangling 22-year-old Californian, drove to the finals of the sixty-second Wimbledon Tennis Tournament today by upsetting his countryman, Gardnar Mulloy.

Falkenburg will meet Australia's John Bromwich for the men's singles crown on Friday.

In a slipshod match that resembled an act by a pair of vaudeville tumblers, the clowning Falkenburg, who was seeded seventh in the tournament, upended third-ranked Mulloy, from Miami, 6—4, 6—4, 8—6.

Bromwich Fast

Their match came as almost comic relief to the lightning-fast opening semifinal in which the polished, ambidextrous Bromwich eliminated Joseph Asboth, 31-year-old Hungarian champion, 6—3, 14—12, 6—2.

Although Falkenburg will go into the final match a decided underdog against Bromwich, his victory left the United States with an opportunity to win the all-England men's title for the fifth time in the last six tournaments. Prior to Jack Kramer's victory last year Don Budge won the crown in 1937 and 1938, and Bobby Riggs took it in 1939 before the classic was suspended because of the war.

Aussie Favored

For Bromwich, seconded-seeded in the tourney, today's victory was his sixth in a row without the loss to a single set. And his consistently brilliant play thus far made the 29-year-old Aussie star an overwhelming favorite to win the crown vacated when Kramer turned professional.

The huge crowd of almost 15,000 that jammed the stadium to watch the matches on a chilly, dismal day was greatly amused as Falkenburg and Mulloy slid about the grass and performed acrobatics on the famed center court.

PHOTOSTATIC COPY OF LETTER CANCELING A G. W. FOOTBALL SCHOLARSHIP

Another's in Doubt; School Officials Say Move Is 'Routine'

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

In a move described as "routine" by school officials, but called "a dirty trick" by players involved, George Washington University has canceled athletic scholarships of seven members of the 1947 football team. At least one other scholarship was left hanging in a state of suspension.

Among those who felt the ax of the new G. W. coaching staff were Fullback Paul Skinner and Wingback Howie Williams, both of whom saw regular service for the Colonials when they were not on the injured list.

Johnny Grinnell, who played end in 1946 and moved to center in '47 as an alternate regular, was told that his scholarship had been suspended, and would be renewed only if he made the team this fall.

Reserves who were chopped off were Ends John Neary and Jerry Angel, and Tackles Frank O'Brien, Martin Kirsch and Bill Peck.

All Notified

Each player on the squad was notified of his status through a letter mailed June 24, and signed by the new head football coach, John H. (Bo) Rowland.

Three types of letters were sent out.

The first told the player that his performance during the recent eight-week spring practice had met with the approval of the coaching staff, and that his scholarship has been renewed. He was told to report for practice September 1.

The second stated that the player's scholarship would be renewed if he made the team.

The third said:

"This is to notify you of your standing in regard to scholarship at the George Washington University for the coming year. As was agreed, your showing in spring practice was to be a determining factor.

"The consensus of opinion of the coaching staff is that we are unable to grant you a scholarship for the year 1948-49."

One of the players whose scholarship was terminated said, "It's a dirty trick . . . Sure we had a chance during the eight weeks spring training. But we who played last year thought we had proved ourselves.

"Making Room"

"We didn't think we'd be tested during the spring and fired before the season even started. We don't put out during the weekday sessions. We play ball on Saturdays. We did last year. We're not being given a chance this year," concluded a player who did not wish his name divulged.

Another player voiced his feelings as follows:

"It looks like the new regime is making room, cleaning out the old bunch, so that he can bring in his own prospects."

The new coach, Bo Rowland, called the move "routine."

Assistant Coach Tim Swett said, "This is much ado about something which is not unusual. Everybody has been complaining that we've had too many bad teams. Now when we try to make room for improvements, people get excited."

Other D. C. Colleges On Different Basis

The system of awarding athletic scholarships at Georgetown University was described last night by Father Matthew Kane, treasurer of the school who until recently was the faculty moderator of athletics:

"We have never had 'tryouts' for athletic scholarships. The football players who receive them are recommended by friends of the school or observed by our coaching staff during their high school careers. Furthermore, all scholarships at Georgetown are awarded on a four-year basis. The only time one is taken away from a football player is when his grades drop below our scholastic standards."

Officials of Maryland University were unavailable for comment and there was still no aid for athletes at Catholic University.

Nats, Macks Stopped by Heavy Storm

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 30.—The Nats experienced their fifth postponement of the current 21-day trip tonight when rain washed out the second game of their series with the Athletics.

After another swelting day which saw the thermometer flirting with the 95-degree mark, a thundershow drench the city 40 minutes before game time. The tilt was rescheduled for August 8, originally an off-day.

Walter Masterson, docketed to pitch against the A's tonight, won't get the opportunity when the clubs resume their skirmishing tomorrow evening. The assignment will go to Ray Scarborough, instead.

Manager Joe Kuhel has decided to save Masterson for Friday night when the Griffs open a three-game set with New York in Yankee Stadium. Masterson trimmed the Yanks, 4-1, in a night game in New York earlier.

Scarborough will be opposed by another right-hander, Joe Coleman, ace of the A's short-staffed pitching corps. Coleman has won eight and lost five.

For the Athletics, the day of idleness proved beneficial. They agained second place as the Red Sox thumped the Yankees. The Nats had to wait until after the Detroit-Cleveland game tonight to know where they would live.

They occupied fifth place by a bare .001 margin over the Tigers today, but Cleveland's victory increased their edge of .009 over Detroit.

IN SHORT—Kuhel announced that the Nats had signed Joe Weddington, 21-year-old catcher, and sent him to Chattanooga . . . The 195-pound 6-footer was given a "good" bonus. Eight other major league clubs were after him, according to Kuhel . . . The Nat skipper saw the former Marine work out in Cleveland and offered him a contract there last week . . . Shortstop Angel Fleitas, recalled from Chattanooga, hasn't reported, yet. He won't be pressed into action immediately when he does . . . "Mark Christman is going too good right now," Kuhel said.

Cubs Wallop Cards, 9 to 1

Chicago, June 30 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs lashed out from their lowly cellar position with unexpected fury today when they made it two straight over the St. Louis Cardinals with a decisive 9-1 victory.

Ralph Hamner scattered six hits while his mates pounded Jim Hearn and four successors for 13 solid wallops. One of the blows that knocked Hearn out of the box in the third inning was Gene Mauch's first major league home run. It came with none aboard.

The victory gave the Cubs a 5-3 margin over the Cardinals for the season.

Roach and Perry Matched Here

Laverne Roach, Plainview, Tex., middleweight who won the Washington Golden Gloves welterweight title while stationed here with the Marines, will return to Washington July 12 for a 10-round bout with Aaron Perry of Washington in Griffith Stadium.

Roach, who became Golden Gloves national welterweight champion before turning pro in 1945, has compiled a record of 23 wins in 25 professional bouts. His most recent loss was to Marcel Cerdan in Madison Square Garden.

Tribe Ace Walks Three; Houtteman His Victim

Detroit, June 30 (AP). — Righthander Bob Lemon of the Cleveland Indians tosses the first no-hit no-run game of the major league season as he blanked the Detroit Tigers 2 to 0 tonight. It was his eleventh win of the season and his fifth shutout.

Only three tigers reached first base, all via walks, as the big converted infielder and outfielder put together his niftiest pitching performance of the year.

All the scoring came in the first inning as the Indians pushed over two unearned runs to give Lemon a headstart. It was all the big righthander needed, as he had the Tigers swinging futilely for the rest of the distance.

It was a tough loss for Art Houtteman, hard luck man of the Detroit Tiger mound staff, as he yielded only two runs and five hits. The Tigers kicked in two errors in the initial inning to get Houtteman into trouble.

Only Two Scares

The 27-year-old Cleveland pitcher gave the 49,628 fans a real treat as he mowed the Tigers down inning after inning.

He had only two scares. The first came in the fourth when Leftfielder Dale Mitchell made an amazing one-handed leaping catch off the bat of George Kell to choke off what looked like a certain extra base wallop.

The other came in the fifth when Ken Keltner went deep behind third base to nip Hoot Evers on a slow hopper.

Lemon seemed to gain confidence as he went along and was the calmest man in the ball park as he faced the Tigers in the last of the ninth with only three outs between him and his no-hitter.

Vic Wertz pinch-hit for Johnny Lipon to open the inning and topped a slow roller back at Lemon who threw him out. Eddie Mayo went down swinging for out No. 2. Then George Kell rolled out to Lemon, ending the ball game.

The Tigers, losing their ninth game in their last 10 starts, got off on the wrong foot in the first inning when leadoff man Dale Mitchell hit a grounder at Johnny Lipon who let it skip through for an error.

With one out, Lou Boudreau then doubled to left scoring Mitchell. Kell's relay to Catcher Swift was wild for an error, Boudreau taking third. He scored on Edwards' long fly to left and the Indians had their two-run lead and a ball game.

First Under Lights

Lemon's hitless performance, the ninth hurled by a Cleveland pitcher, is the first in the majors since Bill McCahan of the Philadelphia Athletics blanked the Washington Senators without a hit September 3, 1947.

Other Cleveland pitchers in the record books with no-hitters are Bob Feller, Wes Ferrell, Ray Caldwell, Addie Joss, Don Black, Bob Rhoades. Feller and Joss achieved the feat twice.

Lemon's masterpiece was the first ever achieved under the lights in the American League.

Half Length Edge Taken On Stanley

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 30. Miss Prime, the Citation of the mountains, came through with her seventh local victory today and oddly enough paid a healthy $8 mutuel. The 4-year-old daughter of Swashbuckler, to whom all distances look alike, took a slight lead in the stretch and held on as if her very life depended on the result.

As one Miss Prime fan put it, the finish was a case of "prime ribs of horse."

The filly, as usual carrying the colors of J. N. Barnes, saddled by Mrs. G. A. Saportas and ridden by Jockey Eddie Ballenger, won by a half length from E. P. Price's hard luck Stanley. Also figuring in the bang-up struggle was H. N. Warren's Annie's Dream.

Even in Downpour

Miss Prime, who equalled the track record for today's distance of about 4½ furlongs, had won at a mile and a sixteenth and at 7 furlongs since that effort. Thus, the customers were a little dubious about her short sprint sharpness and when a downpour made the track sloppy many bettors abandoned her.

Miss Prime was clocked in :51 4-5 over the watery oval.

Belstan set the early pace but Miss Prime moved up on the outside to challenge. In the meanwhile Stanley was blocked and Annie's Dream was forced back.

Miss Prime went on to collar Belstan and when Stanley came along with a rush it looked as if the great filly might meet defeat. Stanley, however, got out of control and went almost to the outside fence at the final bend.

Palumbo recovered with Stanley and made a rush down the outside, failing by the aforementioned half length of getting up. Annie's Dream also recovered and closed boldly along the inside rail. Belstan had given up and it was Miss Prime the winner.

The program opened on a fast track and under smiling skies, but those conditions lasted only long enough for the $80 double. Portland Bells won the first race at $13.60 and Mrs. R. Sherwood's Hiccup took the second at $6.80.

Then the rains came and the long shots began to pop in earnest, among them Mrs. V. Miller's Pari-Dominate, a $35.20 shot in the third race.

Mayton Hurls 3-Hitter

Pitcher Tom Mayton allowed but three hits and struck out 10 as the Trinidad Boys' Club defeated Washington Flour, 2-1, yesterday in Boys' Club of Washington league play on the South Ellipse.

Little's 72 3 Off Pace in British Open

By Robert Musel

Muirfield, Scotland, June 30 (U.P.).—Burly Lawson Little scored a steady 72, three strokes off the lead, in the British Open golf tournament today but his eight fellow Yanks ran into trouble and faced an uphill fight tomorrow to qualify for the final 36 holes.

The lead was a one-over-par 69, shared by Sam King and Charley Ward of Britain and Flory van Donck of Belgium.

Arthur Clark of Huntington, W. Va.; Jimmy Thompson of Chicopee Falls, Mass.; Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz., and Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond, Va., had 74's.

Sergt. Charles Rotar of Canton, Ohio, and Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, N. Y., shot 75's and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, and Capt. Edwin Kingsley had 77's.

Stranahan, winner of the British Amateur this year, and Kingsley now have especially tough assignments, for they probably will need 71's tomorrow to qualify for field of 40 which will be permitted to tee-off in the 36-hole finale. Harmon and Rotar also will have a tough time making it.

An earlier tee-off, giving them the best of the weather, will favor the Yanks, however. Sunshine today replaced the rain and wintry winds which held for the two qualifying rounds.

Little's 36 on the first nine today might have been even four strokes less with a little luck. He missed by inches long putts on the third, fourth, fifth and sixth holes, actually lipping the cup on the fifth.

On the seventeenth, he scored the greatest shot thus far in the tourney. In a bunker, he blasted out with a number three iron 230 yards onto the green for an eventual par four.

Harmon's Luck Bad

Stranahan ran into all sorts of bad luck. On the ninth he scored a nasty six. His second shot hit a girl spectator on the side of her head, caroming into the shaggiest rough. He just managed to get a 20-yarder to the fairway, and then missed a two-foot putt on the green.

Stranahan had just as much trouble on the last nine. He picked up another six on the fifteenth when his drive went into a bunker. His chip-out overshot the green and he missed his first putt.

Bracketed at 71 were Norman Von Nida of Australia and Henry Cotton and Reg Horne of Britain. Fred Daly of Ireland, W. B. Lyle, Norman Sutton and Arthur Lacy, all of Britain, had 72s along with Little.

All Break Record; Navy Finishes 2d

Princeton, N. J., June 30 (U.P.).—Princeton, Cornell, California, and Washington's favored Huskies all eclipsed the existing record on Lake Carnegie's 2000-meter course today as they stroked to victory in their respective heats of the Olympic rowing trials.

The fastest time of the day was turned in by Cornell's smooth varsity eight as it went all out to beat Harvard by a third-of-a-length in 5:56.4.

Princeton also was forced to the limit, but Washington and California were coasting as they finished well under the 6:04.8 set by Washington's Olympic champions in 1936.

Tigers Win by 4 Inches

Princeton, twice-beaten by Yale this season, nipped the Elis by an official 4 inches in the first heat with the Wyandotte, Mich., Boat Club 7 lengths back in third place. The Tigers were clocked in 6:01.2, Yale in 6:01.5, and Wyandotte, in 6:33.

It was in the second heat Cornell repeated its recent win over Howard on Lake Cayuga.

Deadlocked at the 1000-meter marker, Cornell increased the stroke to 38 as Harvard failed to challenge until its cause was lost. The West Side Rowing Club of Buffalo, N. Y., was a poor third by 6 lengths. The losers' times: Harvard, 5:57.3 and Wyandotte, 6:160.0.

Washington's redoubtable Huskies, Poughkeepsie champions and considered by most as the outfit to beat, never raised the beat above an easy 32 in outdistancing Wisconsin and M.I.T. by a comfortable 3 lengths in the third trial sprint.

The winning time was 6:01.0, while that of Wisconsin's Badgers, who trailed the pair over most the distance, was 6:10.9. M. I. T. tiring at the finish after holding the runner-up position the greater part of the course, was timed in the last-place at 6:11.5.

"Ky" Ebright's's California eight duplicated Washington's beat of 32 over the distance of the final qualifying event, winning by one and three-quarters length over Navy which stroked an even 37 throughout.

Macricostas Wins 2 Bouts at Turner's

Frank Sexton defeated Faro Rinaldo in the Turner's Arena mat windup last night but Greek George Macricostas went him one better, winning two matches.

George, let's call him, pinned Buck Jones in 17 minutes and applied a triumphant body slam and press after 23 minutes against George Flynn. Sexton won the main bout in 29 minutes. In a team match, Benito Gardini and Marvin Mercer scored two of three falls against George Bruckman and Joe Komaroff in 25 minutes.

Yanks Swap Berwegan For Colts' Schwenk

Redskins Re-Sign Dick Poillon, Kicking Star

This season will be blond Richard's fourth with the local gridmen. He will be defending the Eastern National Football League scoring championship, having rolled up 85 points in the Skins' campaign last year.

Marine Girls Win

Clayton Takes Full Charge At Gallaudet

Thompson B. Clayton, for several years wrestling coach at Gallaudet, has been named director of athletics and coach of all the Blues' sports teams, it was revealed yesterday.

A former football coach at St. Albans, Sidwell-Friends and Landon School, Clayton last year brought football back to Gallaudet, the Blues losing a 13-9 decision to Montgomery Junior College in their only outing.

He again will be in charge of football this season, as a heavier schedule is undertaken, and his coaching is expected to help out in basketball, baseball, wrestling and tennis as well.

Tired of 'Eating Dust'

Six 'Also Rans' Out to End Monopoly of Lanham's Big 3

Six disgruntled rival Offenhauser pilots declared last night they will be out to terminate the monopoly enjoyed by Mike Joseph, Ed "Dutch" Schaefer and George Fonder at the West Lanham Raceway tomorrow night when midget automobile racing moves into its sixth week.

Joseph has won three feature events, including last Friday's 50-lap Washington-Baltimore Sweepstakes, and Fonder and Schaefer the other two at Lanham, and otherwise have taken most of the prize money.

Charlie Miller, Ernie McCoy, Charles Breslin, Dee Toran, Len Duncan and Walt Fair are lined up solidly against Lanham's "big three."

"We've been eating their dust all season, and we don't like it," Spokesman Charlie Miller said. "We will be driving hard for the breaks Friday night in an effort to run these fellows out of the money.

"I'm personally sick of taking the crumbs, and I'll be out to win it all tomorrow. I think you'll see more spirited, and aggressive, driving from all of us.

McCoy and Breslin, who piloted Ford V-8's until recently, last night said they changed over to Offenhausers in self-defense.

"We couldn't beat 'em so we decided to join 'em," McCoy explains. "Now that we are pushing Offenhausers we will be out to stop some of the big shots who have been winning too often."

Shorty McAndrews, Hawley Kight, Carl Miller, Red Redmond, Mike San Felice, Steve Yannigan and George Mulholland are a few of the top V-8 entries who will challenge the Offys.

Stymie Entered in Sussex 'Cap Saturday

Stanton, Del. June 30 (AP).—Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie, leading money winning race horse of the world with earnings of $683,385, will make his start in the $25,000 added Sussex Handicap at Delaware Park Saturday.

Glosser's 139 Wins Medal

Wichita, Kans., June 30.—Lawrence Glosser of Oklahoma City stroked a three-under-par 68 today to win medalist honors in the Western Amateur Golf Tournament.

The young Oklahoman had an even par 71 yesterday which added to his 68 this afternoon gave him a 139 total for the 36 holes.

Glosser pulled the prize shot of the two qualifying rounds with a 150-yard seven-iron shot for an eagle-2 on the third hole. He holed an 80-foot chip for his birdie on the tenth.

Charles (Chick) Evans, jr., of Chicago, who has eight Western titles to his credit, completed the qualifying rounds with 78-83—161. It was doubtful that he would make the match play bracket of the low 64 shooters.

Losers Boot Away Game With Errors

Federal Bureau of Investigation was handed five unearned runs, including the winning tally in the ninth, and a 6-5 verdict over a Gas Company crew which fumbled six times in their Departmental League baseball game yesterday on the Ellipse.

Catcher Ed Eiden and Shortstop Bob Brewer each hit safely three times for the winners. One of Brewer's singles drove in the lone FBI earned run.

Fringe Parking, Shuttle Bus Plan Up Today for Approval

The District Traffic Cordinating Committee will be asked today to approve a plan for providing 1350 "fringe" parking spaces and shuttle bus service downtown for drivers.

P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, said he will present details of the plan to the committee at 10 a. m. in the office of Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst.

The committee, which includes representatives of the Police, Highway, Vehicles and Traffic Departments, Public Utilities Commission, Capital Transit Co., and the U. S. Park Police, must approve the new shuttle bus system, Howat said.

If the coordinating group approves, Capital Transit Co. will apply to PUC for permission to operate the shuttle bus system, Howat said.

Traffic Moves Again Across Taft Bridge

Traffic began moving unhampered across Taft Bridge yesterday at 4 p. m. after Highway Department workers had restored pavement which "blistered" in Sunday's extreme heat, J. N. Robertson, deputy highway director, announced.

He said the area affected by the heat had been completely replaced with new asphalt. Only the road surface of the bridge, which carries Connecticut ave. traffic across Rock Creek Park, was affected—not the bridge structure, he declared.

Civil Service Sets Up 11-Man Loyalty Board For Fourth Region

CIVIL SERVICE has set up a 11-man loyalty board to hear cases of employes who are accused of disloyalty in its fourth region, which includes this city, and the States of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina.

ROBERT A. MAURER, professor of constitutional law at Georgetown University, has been named chairman. Vice chairman is JOSEPH C. McGARRAGHY. A local attorney, McGarraghy is president of the Greater National Capital Committee and past president of the Board of Trade. Other members are:

G. C. A. ANDERSON, a Baltimore lawyer, who is a past president of the Baltimore City Bar Association;

HARRY W. BLAIR, former Assistant Attorney General, who is a practicing attorney here;

R. E. BOOKER, a Richmond attorney, who is secretary and treasurer of the Virginia State Bar Association and investigator for its grievance committee;

MRS. HENRY GRATTAN DOYLE, president of the District Board of Education and formerly employe relations adviser of the Treasury Department;

DUNTON J. FATHERLY, a practicing attorney at Eastville, Va., and a member of the Virginia bar's grievance committee;

GUY B. HAZELGROVE, a Richmond lawyer, who is a past president of the bar association. He was chairman of the appeals board of draft appeals during the war;

FRED E. MARTIN, a Norfolk attorney, who is a past State commander of the American Legion;

JOHN PENCE, dean of the Fairmont State College at Fairmont, W. Va., and,

WILLIAM R. SEMANS, a Baltimore lawyer, who is a past president of the Baltimore City Bar Association.

The board will have the authority to hear appeals from employes who are accused of disloyalty in the fourth region. In this city it will have jurisdiction over the cases of so-called "field" employes of whom there are an estimated 34,000. The cases of departmental employes will go direct to the central appeals board in the Civil Service Commission.

POSTOFFICE: John D. Hardy, who retired yesterday as Deputy Second Assistant Postmaster General, will join Time Inc., publishers of Time, Life, and Fortune magazines, as a consultant in its mail traffic department. He served the department for 46 years, rising from an $800-a-year clerk. A reception and banquet will be given Hardy by postal groups on July 9 at the Mayflower.

PAY BILL: Representative John McCormack, a Democratic leader in the House, predicted yesterday after a White House visit that the President would reluctantly sign the pay raise bill. The actual signing may come tomorrow.

McCormack said the pay bill was unfair and inequitable because it gave inadequate increases to classified employes and gave no raises to District government workers. However, he added that it was better than nothing and that it would help those employes who are benefited by it partly to offset higher living costs.

INTERIOR has begun to decentralize its Bureau of Land Management. Most of its 200 employes here will be given the opportunity to transfer to the agency's 25 field offices. The agency has asked for volunteers to be transferred to [illegible] western offices on July 15.

HEAT POLICY: Federal workers in nonairconditioned buildings are again clamoring for a heat policy which would treat them all alike. The reason for their gripe is simple enough—some offices have been closing early during these torrid days, others have not. Also, some offices that are closed early require the employes to report earlier the next day. Others don't. A uniform policy is definitely needed.

NOTES: Harry N. Foss who has served 40 years in Agriculture's solicitor's office, retires today . . . Margaret T. Hickey also retires today after 47 years of service in the Government Printing Office . . . Civil Service promises a decision today on whether to classify War Assets as a liquidating agency. The best guess is that it will—despite protests from career employes and veterans . . . Maxwell Elliott is acting general counsel of Federal Works.

VA: Thousands of employes in hospitals of the Veterans' Administration stand to get even larger pay raises than the $330 flat voted them by Congress in a bill now before the President.

This measure, whose author is Senator Morse (R., Oreg.), would take these jobs out from under the salary-fixing Classification Act:

The bill proposes that the VA administrator be given the authority to fix wages for these classes of employes but the rates couldn't be less than classified rates. In other words, VA could raise the salaries. Salaries for other VA hospital employes such as doctors, nurses and dentists are exempt from the Classification Act.

City, Business Leaders Laud Reilly as Trade Board Head

The man: John A. Reilly, president of Second National Bank and immediate past president of the Washington Board of Trade.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young cited his outstanding civic service; Attorney William E. Leahy praised his ability, industry, honesty and integrity, his dedication to public service and civic duty; Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech of the District Court called upon him to continue to serve as excellently as he has in the past.

The testimonials were given following a dinner at the Mayflower Hotel attended by nearly 100 persons. Board of Trade President Leon Chatelain, jr., presided.

When the last speaker had finished, Reilly, touched by the praise, quietly thanked those who had praised him so highly. Then he lifted the laurels off himself and passed them along to the executives and committee heads of the Board of Trade.

Court Ejects Mother in Row Over Custody

A 39-year-old woman, shouting protests at a judge's refusal to grant her custody of her sons, was ejected from a District courtroom yesterday.

The mother, Mrs. Rose Barbara Moore, a Navy Department clerk-typist, virtually collapsed in the corridor. She had signed away the sons' custody to the father three years ago and Justice F. Dickinson Letts refused to change the arrangement.

The sons, John, 9, and James, 6, left with the father, John A. Moore, 43, hardware executive here and a gentleman farmer at Mount Airy, Md. He has remarried and has three other children.

So heated did Mrs. Moore become that she would not listen when the judge tried to tell her she might take the sons for the second-half of their summer vacation.

"If I thought for a minute that Mr. Moore could take care of them do you think I'd dare come in here," she screamed. "Judge, you are the one who is responsible if anything happens to them. And if I left it to the lawyers I wouldn't see my sons till doomsday."

The testimony showed that Mrs. Moore divorced her husband in Florida in 1942, less than three months after the younger son was born. She was given custody of the children at that time, but turned them over to the father in 1945 because she didn't make enough money to support them.

The father went to court here last year and got formal custody after the mother took the children, individually or collectively, from him on several occasions, he said. At that time, the court declared both parents were fit morally to be custodians, but the father had a house and was better off financially. Mrs. Moore lived in the Arlington Farm dormitories.

Since then she twice took the children out of Linton Hall Military Academy in Virginia just before the father was to bring them home for vacations, according to testimony. On two other occasions, she came to his home, banged on the door at early-morning hours and tried to get him to give her the children, according to his attorney, Charles Patton Henry.

In court yesterday, she said conditions had changed. She testified she now has an apartment at 776 Princeton pl. nw. for the boys. She said they needed a mother's love.

Justice Letts spoke to the boys in his chamber. He concluded the father should have custody, with reasonable rights of seeing the children being granted the mother.

It was then that Mrs. Moore began shouting. The father slipped out of the courtroom and took his children with him. One of them could be heard crying as he left the building.

Survey Starts For Crippled Children's Unit

Mrs. Beulah Drake, president of the D. C. Society for Crippled Children, last night announced formation of a five-man investigative body to study and report on the local society's setup.

Names of the investigators, she said, are being withheld at their specific requests. She described the group, however, as "a board of capable authorities."

On May 11, the National Society for Crippled Children announced that the local order must either reorganize within 60 days or else carry on without sponsorship of the parent body.

Mrs. Drake said last night she had received no communication from the national organization extending that time limit, nor had she requested any. She said she "hoped" the newly created board of investigators would report before the deadline date.

As evidence that the organization is carrying on its activities despite recent internal dissensions, Mrs. Drake said that 24 children are being taught speech by five George Washington University students working under Mrs. Elizabeth Hatch, speech pathologist. Another worker, Mrs. Lulu Merrill, is serving as physio-therapist for the society.

She also announced a step-up in the society's work with cerebral palsy cases. Henceforth, she said, the society's clinic operated for children so afflicted will be open twice instead of once monthly.

She further announced retention of Morris Katz, local accountant, on a part-time basis.

Rush Marks Ending of X-Ray Drive

More Than 500,000 Examined in War On Tuberculosis, Ruhland Believes

A last-day rush at most of the 14 X-ray stations in the Washington Chest X-ray Survey was reported yesterday as the public-participation campaign to ferret out tuberculosis here ended.

Though final figures were not available last night, Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, said he believed the final day's examinations carried the total of persons X-rayed to "well over the 500,000 mark."

Survey leaders had estimated some 600,000 District residents and workers 15 years of age and older were eligible to be X-rayed.

A similar campaign in Arlington County, Va., is scheduled to end at 6 p. m. Friday. County residents who have not yet been X-rayed may receive free examinations today and Friday from 10:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. at J. C. Penney Co. on Wilson blvd., Clarendon.

The Washington campaign, largest health survey of its kind to date, began January 12, and was originally scheduled to end on June 15. It was extended to the thirtieth, however, when survey leaders were able to retain use of X-ray machines, largely supplied by United States Public Health Service, to the later date.

Tentative summation of the work accomplished during the drive will be made July 8, it was announced by General Chairman William E. Leahy. This will include a statistical breakdown of the findings, by necessity incomplete and tentative because of the time lapse required for definite diagnosis in many tubercular-suspicious cases.

The District Survey, to uncover heretofore unsuspected cases of lung tuberculosis and provide medical supervision to stamp out the disease, was sponsored jointly by the USPHS, the District Health Department and the D. C. Tuberculosis Association. Besides such sponsorship, private interests contributed time, personnel and materials to aid the campaign.

Most of the X-ray units used in the Washington drive are now scheduled to be sent to Seattle, Wash., scene of the next major city attack on tuberculosis.

Boy, 3, Shot By Playmate, Succumbs

Arlington Coroner Dr. W. C. Welburn called the shooting accidental. The tragedy occurred while the two children were playing in the home of Mrs. Louis C. Thompson, 1029 N. Vermont st., Arlington.

The playmate, Danny Harris of 1021 N. Vermont st., found the loaded .32-caliber pistol on a top closet shelf, thought it was a cap pistol, and pulled the trigger.

State Pathologist Dr. J. D. Kernodle, who yesterday afternoon performed an autopsy on the Kurtz boy's body, said the bullet had entered the back, striking the backbone and piercing internal organs.

The child, who lived with his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Kurtz, 203 S. Oak st., Falls Church, had been left at the Thompson home the day of the shooting while his mother worked.

Both Mrs. Kurtz and her husband, who had just arrived from Memphis, Tenn., were at James' bedside when the child died at 3 a. m. yesterday.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 3 p. m. in Ives funeral home, 2847 Wilson blvd., with burial in Columbia Gardens Cemetery.

Marshall Hall's Slot Machines Vanish Before Sheriff's Visit

At least, the 20 machines which were the main attraction of "Kiddies Day" on Monday, were not there yesterday, when Sheriff Elmer M. Quade of La Plata, paid a personal visit.

"If they were there on Monday, they've been since removed," commented the sheriff.

That the slot machines were there on Monday was attested to by a photograph published in The Washington Post on Tuesday morning. The machines were located in the Arcade, and were the most popular attraction of the day.

Some of the players were children, and some were parents who joined the children.

Slot machines which pay off in cash are illegal in Charles County. Marshall Hall is situated in the Southern Maryland county, about 20 miles below Washington.

A special sitting of the county grand jury will be held August 16 to look into reports that the county is wide open for slot machines and numbers games, both believed to be run by Washington operators.

No Action Taken

The jury met in May, and despite a denunciation of gaming conditions in the county by Judge William M. Loker, not a single antigambling violation was presented to the grand jury.

The jury will meet again in August to hear complaints by individuals or civic groups on the gambling situation, and will then issue indictments if the evidence warrants such action. If there's no aroused action on the part of the county's citizens, it was learned, the jury plans to call it quits.

Commented a member of the grand jury yesterday:

"If nobody in the county has the guts to complain about the conditions, there's nothing we can do about it."

Henceforth, the 17½ square miles of District area situated east of the Anacostia River, and generally referred to as Anacostia, will be divided into the Eleventh and Fourteenth Precincts.

Dividing line between the old and new precincts will be Pennsylvania ave., with the Eleventh running south of the north curb line and the Fourteenth running north.

The flag rites will be held at the Davis School annex, H st. ne., between 44th and 45th pl., which will serve as a temporary Fourteenth Precinct stationhouse until a new one can be built at 42d st. and Benning rd. ne.

Until today, the Eleventh Precinct has covered a larger combined area than Precincts 6, 8 and 12. Since 1940, the population of the Anacostia area has risen from 50,000 to 160,000. The area includes such developments as Congress Heights, Twining City, Benning, Marshall Heights, and Deanewood.

Map locates new 14th Precinct, bounded on two sides by the District Line and the north curb of Pennsylvania ave. se. and the east bank of the Anacostia River

Three scout cars have been assigned to the new Fourteenth. Up to now the Eleventh has had only three scout cars for the entire area.

Until the new stationhouse can be built, the Fourteenth will make use of the Eleventh's, at Nichols ave. and Chicago st. se., for callboxes, radio patrol wagon and call boxes.

A veteran of 24 years with the department and a specialist in juvenile crime, William T. Murphy, 47, father of three children, will command the new Fourteenth. He will be promoted to captain from lieutenant, and will leave the directorship of the department's Juvenile Bureau for his new post.

The three lieutenants promoted from sergeant who will serve under Captain Murphy are Joseph T. Kerby, transferred from No. 5; John B. Monroe, from No. 6; and Robert J. Tompkins, from No. 10.

Three newly promoted sergeants, assigned to the Fourteenth are James G. Beach, No. 12 Precinct detective; Theodore E. Namey, No. 7 corporal, and Robert L. Rison, No. 4 corporal.

Intruder Flees After Attack Wakes Woman

A 31-year-old housewife awoke early yesterday in her basement apartment in the 1700 block of Q st. nw. to find she was being raped by an intruder.

The woman told police she got up at about 4:30 a. m., fixed some lemonade because of the heat and then returned to sleep on a couch near a window.

Her husband, police were told, was sleeping on a bed in the same room. When the woman found she was being assaulted by a stranger she screamed. When her husband switched on the lights the intruder fled through a rear door. The woman was examined and treated at Gallinger Hospital.

The woman identified her attacker as a dark-skinned Negro, between 30 and 35 years of age, about 5 feet 10 or 5 feet 11, weighing 175 pounds and wearing faded blue overalls.

Sailor Convicted Of Attempted Rape

Charles Pappas, 24, a Navy gunner's mate, was convicted by an all-male jury yesterday of assault with intent to rape a 27-year-old woman in her bedroom in the 900 block of 8th st. se.

The District Court jury acquitted him of a charge of housebreaking in connection with the attempted rape.

The victim screamed when he assaulted her, according to the evidence. Pappas was captured on the street by a neighbor and held until police arrived. He contended he had been drinking and "blacked out." He is stationed at the Navy Yard.

Prosecution was by Assistant United States Attorney Joseph F. Lawless, jr. Justice David A. Pine presided at the trial.

19 Are Arrested For Failure To Check Autos

Arlington police have arrested 19 motorists in the last two days for failure to have their cars inspected.

Deadline for inspections was June 15, but police said no arrests were made during the past two weeks because of the last-minute jam at inspection stations.

The 19 cases will come up for trial Friday and Tuesday. The motorists face loss of $8.25 collateral if they fail to appear in court or $9.25 if they appear and are convicted.

In Alexandria and Fairfax County, the drive against uninspected cars proceeded more slowly. Officials in both areas said "only a few" motorists had been arrested so far.

Ken Gar Man Gets 10 Years in Slaying

Truman Told Part He'll Play At Monument

President Truman spent some time yesterday getting "briefed" for the part he will play in the Washington Monument centennial ceremony Saturday.

At 2 p. m. on the Monument Grounds, the President will speak off the cuff for about 10 minutes on a national hookup, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone. The speech will cap a patriotic parade and other ceremonies.

Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., will serve as grand marshal for the parade Saturday which also opens the three-day celebration of Independence Day.

The parade, which begins at noon and is expected to last an hour, will proceed from Fourth, and Constitution ave. west on Pennsylvania ave. to 15th st., south on 15th st. to the Monument Grounds.

On Sunday, Washington churches will take note of the dual observance. Dorothy Maynor, noted American soprano, will be soloist at a National Symphony Orchestra concert Sunday night at the Water Gate.

On Monday evening, the centennial weekend will be concluded with a patriotic pageant at the Monument Grounds. A band concert starting at 7:30 will precede the program. Fireworks displays are to start at 9:30.

Tickets for the Monument Grounds event are on sale at all Peoples Drug Stores, leading Washington hotels, Government Service snack stands, the D. C. Information Center at 11th and Pennsylvania ave. nw., and the trailer-booth in front of the District Building.

Lawyer Presents Lincoln Brief to Supreme Court

The original, hand-written five-page manuscript, presented to the court by John S. Flannery, Washington attorney, was placed in a display case in the court library.

The manuscript involved argument in the case of Lewis vs. Lewis on an Illinois property deed case. At that time Lincoln was serving in Congress.

As far as records show, this was the only case Lincoln ever had or argued before the Supreme Court. Library researchers have been unable to discover if he won it.

Hospitals, D. C. Differ On Pay for Indigents

Eventual Accord Seen in Division Of $735,000, New Contracts

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Hospital heads and officials of the District Health Department yesterday failed to reach agreement over the Department's proposed method of paying for hospital care of the city's indigent.

All agreed, however, that the differences could be ironed out, and that contracts involving nine hospitals here, when signed, would be made retroactive to today.

The Health Department is custodian and disbursing agency for a congressional appropriation of $735,000 to reimburse the hospitals for care and treatment of indigent patients during the 1949 fiscal year (July 1, 1948, to June 30, 1949).

At Odds Over Accounting

Yesterday's initial contract meeting, in the Health Department's conference room at Municipal Center, provided many a clash over hospital and District record-keeping, medical terminology and the District's responsibility for emergency ambulance service. However, the conference was marked most by an apparent desire to reach a clear-cut agreement.

It also made public, for the first time, the proposed allocations of the District to the nine participating hospitals. These, based on money available as scaled to the hospitals' records on free care to the city indigents during 1947, included:

Children's Hospital, $199,099; Casualty, $136,071; Emergency, $128,671; Providence, $75,949; Georgetown, $56,828; Garfield, $47,918; Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat, $34,590; George Washington University, $7594, and Columbia, $2980. The remaining $45,000, as designated by Congress, goes to the Washington Home for Incurables.

Fee Schedule Drafted

John P. Sanderson, director of the Hospital Permit Bureau of the Health Department, offered the hospital administrators a "tentative" contract, which, he said, was worked out by the department, the corporation counsel's office and the auditor's office. It provided payment of $9 a day for bed care of resident indigents; $2 for each emergency room treatment; $1 for clinic visit; $1.50 for X-rays, and $2.25 for each ambulance run for "indigent patients received into the hospital."

The qualification on payment for ambulance runs and the proposed rate of $1 for clinic visits drew the most fire from hospital administrators present.

James G. Capossela, Emergency Hospital administrator, accused the Health Department of "trying to pull a sleeper on us."

"Hah! What do you mean by this 'indigent patients received into the hospital?'"

Never before, he said, has the District disclaimed its responsibility for emergency ambulance care "for anyone in the District."

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, assistant health officer, in a peacemaker's role, said the point could be settled "to the satisfaction of all" at subsequent meetings.

At another point, the hospital administrators succeeded in changing the terminology "X-ray" to "radiographs," pointing out to the non-medical head of the Hospital Permit Bureau (Sanderson) that X-rays often involve exposures from many angles, each exposure being a radiograph. In past contracts with Casualty, Emergency and Children's Hospitals, they pointed out, payments were made for "radiographs."

Sanderson smiled, and frankly admitted he hadn't known there was a difference.

Dr. J. R. Young of Casualty Hospital joined others in urging $2 instead of the proposed $1 for clinic visits and revisits.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer, who attended the opening of yesterday's meeting, made it plain to the hospital administrators that the allocations were on an all-you-get basis. Congress, he said, made it plain it would not consider a deficiency appropriation request when it passed the bill.

D. C. Issues First Free Highway Map

The District Government's first free "Official District Highway Map" is now off the presses, Highway Planning Engineer D. S. Brinkley announced yesterday.

The colorful 27-by-32-inch guide has a sprawling chart of Greater Washington on one side, and an index and mileage guide to principal Greater Washington communities.

On the other side is a "blow-up" of the downtown area, with an index of Government offices and agencies, theaters and clubs, hospitals, newspapers, radio stations, and other points of interest.

Copies will be sent first to State Highway Departments, Chambers of Commerce, and members of Congress, Brinkley said. The remainder of the 10,000 copies will be given out to persons who request them, "if they will put them to good use."

Alexandria Drive

A total of $142,823 has been raised in Alexandria Hospital's $200,000 fund drive. The drive will be continued until the quota is reached, committee members said yesterday.

The execution date for the three convicted murderers of Frank C. Kelly, 54, was postponed yesterday from July 9 to November 12.

Health Outlay Exceeds Food, Physician Says

Americans spend more for sickness than for schools, Dr. Edna Patterson, 9500 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, told the annual camp meeting of the Potomac Conference of Seventh-day Adventists yesterday.

Speaking on the value of natural food and nutrition, the Silver Spring physician said statistics show there are 600,000 preventable deaths through disease each year. She urged that food be prepared in its natural state.

At last night's meeting, the conference, which is in session at Takoma Park, heard Elder N. S. Ashton of the Sligo Church declare "that if the gospel of Christ were given recourse in the world today the ills would be quickly cured and nations would live in peace."

Speakers today will include Elder Roger Altman, assistant treasurer of the General Conference, the world headquarters of the church, at 11 a. m.; G. M. Mathews, educational secretary of the Columbia Union Conference at 3 p. m., and Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, former president of the Washington Missionary Society.

Spurns Europe

Artist Urges Aspirants To 'Go West'

Like Horace Greeley, painter Winold Reiss advises young hopefuls to "go West."

Reiss

The 62-year-old German-born artist, here yesterday to open a one-man show at the Playhouse, 727 15th st. nw., scoffed at Europe as "inspiration" and urged embryo brush-wielders to capture the "unspoiled wide open spaces" of our own West.

He had reason to do so.

The pictures, 13 pastels and one oil, abound in brilliant colors. And the wooden expressions attributed to the "Red" folk by so many writers are not to be found. Perhaps because he finds a "heroic quality" in these first Americans and feels they are "lovable and friendly," he has managed to depict them with vivid expressions—emotions easily drifting through.

Not a long-haired artist, despite years of residence in Greenwich Village, Reiss is a suave, bow-tied six-footer. He taught for many years at New York University and says he started drawing at the age of "three."

Student "material" in this country, he says, is "much better" than in Europe. Our young folk, he declares, are "more open-minded and more gifted."

But, he added with a smile, "they want to arrive too fast."

The show—admission free to those attending the theater—will run for a month.

New Technique In Labor Disputes Due Here Today

The carriers, bearing sings advertising grievances of the Association of Communication Equipment Workers (CIO) against Western Electric Co., are neither pickets nor evidence of a strike, said union officials last night in announcing the intended action.

Purpose of the campaign, they said, is to make known their demands for upward adjustments in wages and allowances in present contract negotiations. Some 400 union members in this area are involved in the Nation-wide dispute, local officials said.

15,000 Area Ex-GIs To Begin Getting Pay Boost Today

Increased subsistence payments for 15,000 Greater Washington veterans attending school or taking on-the-job training will begin today for some of the students, but most will get the increased payments beginning with their August 1 check, the VA announced yesterday. The VA regional office, explaining that most veterans will not receive increased payments until on or about August 1 because of the added bookkeeping work, has requested veterans not to visit, telephone or write the office until after the July checks are received in August.

Ambassador, Mme. Bonnet Entertain

By Marie McNair

GUESTS for cocktails at the French Embassy yesterday played a game with the weather.

Gathered first on the terrace where the trees of Rock Creek Park are welcome intruders, friends of the Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were routed indoors to the library swept with breezes stirred up by powerful fans.

"Just because I wanted to see my friends," was Mme. Bonnet's explanation for the party yesterday. Both she and the Ambassador are only recently back from several weeks in France. Mme. Bonnet brought Paris frocks back with her, wore one yesterday by Dior of a soft silky satin in a Persian print of tawny golds and bronze. The fitted bodice had a plunging neckline, three-quarter-length tight sleeves and a slim skirt intricately draped at the hip.

Mme. Bonnet, who is one of "the best dressed" in this town of ours, accepted compliments with modesty. But when she introduced Mme. Benard, wife of the First Secretary of the French Embassy, as "our glamour girl," eyes turned to take in the soaring black paradise in her black turban, the bouffant ankle-length gown of sheer black marquisette striped with narrow velvet ribbon over a pale mauve satin petticoat.

Practically everyone had their heads full of summer plans. Mme. Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, in a yellow and black printed tunic, is leaving by plane July 18 for China. Senora de Belt, wife of the Cuban Ambassador, is planning a trip home with the Ambassador and the children, and for the first time in more than three years they'll open their own house for the summer season.

Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim are leaving—on the 12th, I believe—to sail for Hawaii, and George and Jane Abell, who were at the party yesterday, are enthusiastic about George's assignment as a press officer in Bavaria. They expect to leave in mid-July.

Had a chat with Mrs. Mitchell Palmer and Pen Turner, who says he's going to his cousin's plantation near Nashville, Tenn., for the greater part of the summer.

Saw Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy in summer whites and the Attorney General, Tom Clark, with Mrs. Clark looking like a Dresden figurine in a pale blue flowered frock. The Secretary of the Treasury, John W. Snyder, was there with Mrs. Snyder in dark blue and white; caught a glimpse of Miss Carolyn Nash chatting with Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss at the doorway.

Mme. van Kleffens, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador, was there and blonde Mrs. Robert Lovett, wife of the Undersecretary of State, pretty in a delicate lavender frock and wide white hat bunched with white roses.

Sam Reber and Mrs. William Mann were among those trying those delicious miniature strawberry tarts and there was no one who could resist the huge bowl of red ripe cherries based with green leaves which was the centerpiece.

Still others there were John Nicholas Brown, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air; Mr. and Mrs. Drew Pearson, Mrs. Theodore Achilles in a blue and green print, and Mr. and Mrs. Andre Visson.

It's Much Like Olney Theater

Capitalites Feel at Home At Opening of Westport's Plush Summer Playhouse

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

STAMFORD, Conn., June 30.—Stealing a march on The Washington Post's Richard Coe, undoubtedly for the first and last time, we muscled into the opening of Westport's Country Playhouse. This seaboard's most glamorous summer theater, rating artistically only a fraction behind Washington's Olney, superficially looks so much like our local peekshow that Capitolites in attendance, such as Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, felt pleasantly chez eux. Only apparent differences were gold fringed red swags looped around the balcony and the high percentage of party-togged Westport natives.

Directors Lawrence Langer of the Theater Guild, his wife, Actress Armina Marshall, and John C. Wilson, who achieved Broadway fame producing Noel Coward's plays, as season's curtain raiser presented June Havoc in "Lysistrata '48". Written several centuries deep in B. C., Aristophanes' comedy remains perennially fresh up to date because the wily Greek wove his discreetly salty lines around that old favorite, sex.

As astringent fillip Aristophanes has chucked in a politician who embodies many of the qualities of Boss Tweed, Roscue Conkling and Robert Hague. The story, as every high school student knows, is set in Athens during the twentieth year of a war with Sparta. Only pudgy politicos or decrepit gents are left around town and the ladies are fed to the teeth.

The Women's Scheme

LYSISTRATA, wife of General Lycon and Athens' leading feminist, is struck with a simple if difficult-to-execute brain wave. When their husbands return from the longdrawn campaign, they agree to deny them until they make peace. Love quite aside, reasoned Lysistrata, women bear children and without their cooperation wars couldn't be fought. Women, young and old, band together, capture the Acropolis and its treasury, invite feminine delegations from Sparta, Corinth, Thebes and such to pourparler. The fun comes when the prettiest try to sneak out and when en masse they egg on their warriors only to repulse them scarcely in the nick of time. The generals give in and the curtain's rung down on a modern version of Bacchic orgy, the company shagging loose-hipped while the happy warriors bark wolf cries.

Columnist, television producer and author Gilbert Seldes, who fixed up this version, adapted a somewhat more elaborate presentation back in 1931 starring Miriam Hopkins and backdropped by Norman Bel Geddes in one of his more heavily extravagant moods.

Today's modern touches include wrist length gloves accompanying Athenian chignons, the old men dressed in everything from plus fours to orthodox rabbis' clericals. In tough Sparta, femmes are dressed in Russian uniforms, the president of the senate equipped a la Churchill in morning coat, striped pants, complete with stogies and the Athenian brass gold-braided as MacArthur's aides while the Spartan opponents, all of whom spoke with guttural Balkan accents, were accoutered like Soviet marshals.

June Havoc alternatingly in something resembling a Red Cross uniform, something like a Confederate soldier on a rainy night and something deliciously peach-pleated, green spangle, girdled and intriguingly transparent went to town on the Hopkin's part playing it perhaps too competently, perhaps too brassily. Joan MacCracken, the Oriental eyed, tiny trick who danced to big lights in "Oklahoma," was utterly enchanting as Myrrhina and her psuedo love scene played opposite to Paul Crabtree as Kinesias brought down the barn. Crabtree, who acted in a fustanella, that ballet skirt affected by the hardiest Greeks, is this department's this season favorite. His fumbling passes at elusive Myrrhina were something to see. Maria Gambarelli, who used to tiptoe around Gotham's plushiest cinema palaces tiptoed expertly as a Corinthian floosy and politico Robert Embhardt did a more than neat job at stogie champing and leering.

In all it is a good show, amusing and once the first act is tightened should move fast paced. Lawrence Langer, caught over a bottle of pop, said the first act had fallen down, would soon be brisked and he hoped for Broadway showing come fall. Gilbert Seldes and his Amanda, who spent some of their previous royalties on this department over in Paris, hope to ditto in a home locale next winter. How did I do Mr. Coe, did I overlook anything vital?

Mary Haworth's Mail

Fretted by Dynamic Mother-in-Law's Tireless Goodness to Her—She Even Sends Home-Cooked Roasts by Mail—Wife Asks What Stand to Take

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband's mother, Mrs. B, is a very energetic capable woman. She has always been very kind to me and I have tried to treat her as I do my own mother; but, to be perfectly honest, I inwardly rebel against her.

I find her dynamic personality very wearing to be with for any length of time, and for that reason her frequent insistent invitations are becoming a great problem to me.

She invites us months in advance to visit her home on certain dates, which of course leaves us no "out" and though we spend more time with her than we do with my family, I know from her continual comments that she feels neglected.

Wife Feels Small About Resentment

IF WE SPEND a day or two at my home, we soon receive a letter from her which mentions that my folks still have a son at home, whereas she and her husband are all alone now.

She often comments, "We would do anything in the world for you," and it is true. She is constantly doing things for us; and though I feel small to admit it, I resent many of the things she does. Occasionally she has sent us cooked roasts through the mail and she makes clothes for our son that I am embarrassed to have him wear. Incidentally, we are financially secure on a moderate income.

I think my husband feels much as I do about the situation, but doesn't want to hurt his mother's feelings. He sort of laughs off the situation or ignores it. Is his the adult attitude to take? Should I continue to try to spare her feelings? V. B.

Mother Is Fighting Fear of Rejection

DEAR V. B.: Sympathetic tolerance of foibles is the substance of success in human relations, therefore the adult attitude to bring to those whose activities overlap one's own.

Thus in relation to Mrs. B, I suggest your bear in mind the aforesaid truth, as first-aid at all times in accommodating yourself to her concentration of interest in your household, and to the homespun love-offerings she presses upon you, which are expressive of her resistance to her unconscious fear of becoming the "forgotten woman" in her son's life.

It is also important, however, to sympathetically accept your own inward rebellious feelings of "I wish she wouldn't." That is to say, you shouldn't feel guilty (or small) because you don't feel grateful for her gratuities and insistent invitations; because in truth there's no reason why you should feel grateful for these aggressive reminders of her existence, which are, in essence, childish attention-getting tactics.

Wife's Entitled To Her Feelings

AS YOU evaluate your feelings objectively, recognizing their right to exist, as a perfectly normal private reaction to pestering, you will be more at peace with yourself, hence better organized, psychologically, to deal philosophically with Mrs. B, in accordance with civilized rules of courtesy or humane consideration,—which she, alas, cannot observe, because she lacks the maturity and self-awareness to govern her feelings rationally.

No doubt Mrs. B's exertions leave your husband bored and thankless too, wishing she wouldn't treat him as a school boy, yet also, feeling guilty about his supposed ingrate reactions, as well as defensively mortified when you disparage her foolish performance, so that he just "sort of laughs off the situation" in a tongue-tied way.

For advice: Without anxiety, apology or hostility, take a tranquil stand on behalf of your adult married right to plan your social calendar (or keep it open) with principal reference to your own ideas of how to invest your time to best advantage, while showing equitable consideration to all branches of the family. And that means (1) not feeling booked or hooked by her invitations issued months in advance, and (2) remaining unmoved by her nagging complaints about your other interests. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

The Bathroom Walls

If you have decided the painted bathroom walls need a washing, before you start on the job fill the bathtub with steaming hot water and go out and close the door for a half hour. Then wash down with soapy water and see how much easier your job is than usual. The steam from the hot water will loosen the dirt and cause it to wash off quickly.

How to Remove Beer Stains

Can you suggest a way of removing a beer stain from a cocoa brown crepe dress? I took it to the cleaners and called their attention to it, but the spot still remained after the cleaning.
J. S.

Sponging with clear warm water will usually remove fresh stains of this type. However, if stains stand they often affect the color and cannot be removed.

Can you tell me the name of the chemical which can be used to soak up moisture in a cellar?
C. C.

The chemical is calcium chloride. It can be placed in open containers in closets or storage spaces. Be sure to keep doors shut so that damp outside air won't get in. When it becomes liquid, replace with fresh chemical. It is sold in drug and department stores.

My white bathing cap has become yellowish from salt water. Is there any way I can restore its original color?

I'm sorry, but there doesn't seem to be any way to bleach out or permanently whiten a rubber bathing cap once it has yellowed.

Someone gave me a new handbag of calf (or similar real leather) which is a rawhide tan or pale butterscotch color. It is of plain design and should dye easily. However, I am concerned about the dye rubbing off if I have it dyed black. Sometime ago I read of a plastic finish which can be applied to luggage. Would this keep black dye from rubbing off? I plan to have the bag dyed at a shoe repair place and then apply the plastic finish myself. If this is not a solution to the problem, please make suggestions, as I need a black bag and this one is fine except for the color.
C. M. W.

The plastic coating to which you refer comes in black and can be applied directly to the tan leather without first having it dyed. For the firm which sells the plastic coating, call DI. 1130. If you wish to have the purse dyed black, you can avoid its rubbing off after it is dyed by applying several thin coats of wax. Allow each coat to dry thoroughly and buff well before applying the next coat. In this way you will build up a protective coating of wax.

I have just spent several hours in fruitless endeavor trying to stick paper strips on a loose sacklike cheesecloth garment in an attempt to build up a form fitting "mannequin." The results obtained in no way resemble the beautiful picture on the manufacturer's packet. As a result of my labors, I am about ready to buy a good straight-jacket and call it a day. Can you suggest some more practical way to construct such a dress form at home? A. C.

It has occurred to me that perhaps you attempted to make the dress by yourself. The method and materials you used are successfully used by home economics sewing students, but they work in teams of two. Because the glued tapes are damp when put onto the gauze shirt, any movement on the part of the model would distort the form so that it would not be your true form. So the first step would be to line up a friend who would stick the tapes on for you. Perhaps you could work out a reciprocal arrangement with someone who would like a dress form too. Because the model should remain standing motionless for at least an hour, I would suggest the project be undertaken in the cool of the morning when all are rested.

We have a vegetable garden and I'm interested in freezing the fresh vegetables, rather than canning them. Can you tell me the correct procedure? I'm particularly interested in freezing corn on the cob. Can this be done? E. K. R.

Since the procedure for freezing varies with the vegetable, I'd suggest you get a booklet on freezing which discusses the matter thoroughly and gives you more information than we could include here. One that you can obtain free of charge is "Home Freezing of Fruits and Vegetables," issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Write to the Office of Information of this department, Washington, D. C., and request leaflet AIS-48. Incidentally, if you buy a home freezer, a book of instructions on freezing various foods will probably come with it.

Note that J. M. S. is afraid to use a chlorine bleach on the moldy or mildewed parts of her shower curtain. I do not know if it is safe for all plastic curtains or not, but I use it regularly on a rose-colored plastic shower curtain without ill effect. Good idea to leave it in the bleach for just a few minutes and then rinse it well in clear water. Have done this for a year or more with this curtain, which is prone to mildew because of small shower stall with poor ventilation. I. W.

Will you repeat in your column the directions for refinishing old furniture? I have an old walnut chest I want to refinish. I wrote for the publication you mentioned last week, but no more copies were available.
H. C.

First step in refinishing the chest is to take the old finish off with paint and varnish remover. Follow instructions on the package of remover and wipe furniture with turpentine or alcohol after using. Sand the wood satin smooth with fine sandpaper or No. 00 steel wool after taking off the finish.

There are several different ways in which you might refinish this old chest. One is with shellac or varnish and wax. Apply a thin coat of the shellac or varnish. When it is thoroughly dry, sand lightly. Then apply three coats of paste wax and polish by hard rubbing between each coat.

Incidentally, the Bulletin Office of the University of Maryland advises us that a fresh supply of the booklet you mention, "A New Touch on Old Furniture," has now been received. If you wish to write again to the University Extension Service, College Park, Md., you may now obtain one copy of the bulletin (No. 49, revised) free of charge.

I have a number of old blankets and have heard they can be used to make new ones. Do you know of such a firm or factory?
J. J. L.

We know of one factory that used to do this work, but has discontinued it. Can any readers tell us of others?

Because you have been so interesting and helpful to me, will offer my experience to the lady who has an abundance of radishes. Gather all the radishes and take the tops off. Wash and dry them well and put them in the vegetable container that came with the icebox. Not in the freezing part, but just on the shelf like any other vegetable kept in the box. Do not put anything else with the radishes, however. Just cover the container and set it in and when you use radishes from it, wipe off any moisture from inside the lid. Once in awhile when the radishes seem to have a good deal of moisture, quickly dry them and the inside of the box and return them to the box. In this way, they will keep well for some time. B. W.

Eating to Get Slim Is Better Than Faddy, Starvation Diets

By Ida Jean Kain

"How are you, Mrs. Jones? Would you like to lose 20 pounds—in all the right places of course?"

"Oh I'm fine, in fact I'm bursting with health," Mrs. Jones confesses, blushing. "I'd sure like to lose 20 pounds, although 30 pounds off would be more like it," she continues. "And I could lose them too if I just didn't have to cook meals. You know Mr. Jones loves his food . . ."

"I'm glad to hear that you're bursting with health. You mean you have more pep than you did 20 pounds back?"

"Well, no-o, goodness knows I look healthy, but to tell the truth I give out sooner than I used to. And besides, my feet hurt," she sighs.

That's it, folks. Excess pounds are not a sign of buoyant health, and not only do the feet have to tote the load, but they are a burden on all the vital organs. That's the part that makes fat unhealthy, and why 25 pounds of excess weight can cut life expectancy by a fourth! Now about the meals . . .

"Mrs. Jones, supposing you were shipwrecked on an island and all you had to eat were berries and cocoanuts and roots and water—you think you'd lose those 20 pounds lickety-split, don't you?"

Ah, if she could only go to that island and stay just long enough to lose 20 pounds. . . .

Well, folks, here's where the science of nutrition comes in. Our heroine, on the island, would lose weight at first. Then she might not lose as fast as she could right at home in her own kitchen, fixing scientifically-planned, low-calorie meals—Mr. Jones to the contrary. But at this point she is shaking her head—she doesn't get it.

Well, I threw that island in on purpose, just to show you that eating to get slim is more effective than following some faddy, semi-starvation diet. In the long run, it's more reducing to eat—the body adjusts itself to run with greater economy of energy. Right there is the reason a faddy diet that contains very little food is not as reducing as a scientific low calorie menu that keeps the body running normally.

Look and Study Together

Summer Is Time for Child To Learn Wonders of Nature

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The summer period can be more than just a period of heat, insects and vacations. It can be a season in which children use their leisure time to learn about the wonders of the world in which they live.

This is a good time in which to devote an afternoon to taking the children to a factory or a hatchery, a mill, the bus and railroad terminals, or to see the rivers and the boats.

This is the time to make frequent visits to the Zoo and to go on picnics, to the circus and on trips in the parks and woods.

The face of nature may be closed to the child who has no alert parent to make him acquainted with it. The child sees birds, yes, but does he take time to listen to their human-like chatter, to watch them build their nests, coddle their young, engage in all the fascinating activities of their daily lives? Probably not unless someone points these out to him.

The child is eager for the fantastic in books, movies and radio. Yet the life cycles of the living things around him possess their own magic and mystery and it is a good time to make the child aware of them.

He may look at the heavens nightly, but does he understand its stupendous history, can he see this world in relation to all those others so close to the eye, so hidden to him by time and space? The child can look at it, or he can see it, and there is no time like the summer in which to lie on the grass and gaze upwards at the stars and come closer to their Creator.

The grains in the field may be just so many leaves and stalks blowing in the wind until some parent helps the child to see the dramatic sequence from seed to plant to cereal and bread on the family table.

Children grow closer to their parents when they can ask and be answered. They feel an increasing respect for their knowledge and confidence in their wisdom. It is wholesome to look, ponder and learn together.

And all of this hot season every scrap of earth is blooming and fruitful and provides a stage upon which myriads of living things are born, grow up and die. The time to learn about them is now.

Chocolate Stains

Where there are children there are always chocolate stains. These stains can be removed from suits and dresses by slightly moistening borax and leaving it on the fabric for several hours. This applies only to white materials as the borax may take the color out of a poorly dyed material.

Expert Methods Of Making Salad

Rub salad bowl with a cut clove of garlic, or mash garlic with a muddler. Break 1 head of lettuce into big, loose chunks; tear ½ bunch of curly endive in pieces, add 1 bunch of water cress. Don't cut salad greens—you can taste a difference. Season with freshly ground black pepper and salt and about ½ teaspoon salad herbs. Cut tomatoes in wedges. Toss with this Garlic Dressing. Shake together 1 1/3 cups olive or salad oil, ½ cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, and 4 cloves garlic, sliced. Chill several hours before serving.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Perhaps the Cat Got Jimmy's Tongue

Several days ago we ran a brief note about a lady who was walking a parrot near 17th and Q sts. nw.

Many District Liners have lent a hand to run down the full story. The parrot's owner is Mrs. Ethel Kline of 1707 Q st. nw.

Jimmy, the parrot, is about 9 years old. Mrs. Kline got him about 18 months ago from her niece's husband, who became attached to Jimmy when he was stationed in Panama.

When Mrs. Kline first got Jimmy, he spoke a few words of Spanish. Now he speaks a few words of English. His favorite trick is to disguise his voice—sometimes murmuring "hello" as demurely as a young girl, and sometimes shouting "hello" like an exuberant truck driver.

But Mrs. Kline can't understand why his vocabulary is so limited, and wonders whether we can help with Jimmy's education.

Incidentally, Jimmy doesn't go strolling without his leash any more. It seems that the other day he abruptly made the acquaintance of a very large cat.

MISCELLANY

Whitney Tharin, jr., of 4403 14th st. nw., the fellow who started our argument about hitchhikers, is off on another trip—via the thumb route, of course. He says that one advantage of traveling the way he does is that you don't have to worry about an itinerary. He just faces south, raises his thumb, and lets nature take its course . . . Bill Paschell of 4215 8th st. nw. got a good laugh out of the recent real estate ad which offered a very handsome "town hose" in Georgetown. In this kind of weather, a hose could be more useful than a house, Bill . . . Beverly Jane Schisler of 5422 Hawthorne pl. nw. wants me to be sure to remind you about the Old Fashioned Family Picnic and Festival to be held at the Palisades Field House on July 5 (10 a. m. to 11:30 p. m.) There'll be games, contests and prizes for young and old, and all the civic organizations in the neighborhood are pitching in to make it a real party. Bring your own chow or buy your hot dogs and drinks on the grounds . . . It's insect season again. Austin B. J. Clark of 6371 Oxon Hill rd. se. chuckles over the headline, "U. S. Flies In Milk for Germans." And Winnie Lightcap of Lorton, Va., got a laugh out of her 6-year-old daughter's reaction to the news that some bees die after stinging humans. The little girl frowned thoughtfully and asked, "Isn't there some easier way to kill bees?"

WHO'S ON FIRST?

Local members of the Cristillo family have a legitimate beef against the Metropolitan Theater.

The Met is starting a new Abbott and Costello picture today, so Publicity Man Lyle (formerly of WINX) Selby notes that our local phone book lists 73 Abbotts and 80 Costellos—not counting those who use varying spellings of those names.

The management offers free passes to any Abbott who shows up accompanied by any Costello. And that's why the Cristillo family has a beef.

THE FUTILITY OF IT ALL

If one more person tells me that I goofed off and "printed an old item," I'll scream.

I didn't goof off. I was just trying to point out that the story was old when I first encountered it, older when another columnist used it months later, and still older when the Reader's Digest picked it up in the current issue and printed it again, and . . .

Oh, what's the use. I think I'll scream anyhow.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

U. S. Probes Veterans Housing

By Drew Pearson

Three weeks ago, this columnist reported that about 150 cases of housing frauds against veterans had been referred to the United States district attorney in Dallas, Tex., but that not one indictment had been brought. Several prominent citizens, including members of the Dallas Home Builders Association, it was stated, were involved.

Tom Clark

The United States district attorney, Frank Potter, immediately hurled the charge of "liar." Nonetheless, Attorney General Tom Clark has now sent a special assistant, Philip W. Yager, to Dallas, together with Deputy Housing Expediter Morris S. Verner, jr., and a special grand jury has been called to probe these frauds. In addition, the Veterans' Administration admitted publicly that some 150 fraud cases were hanging fire.

However, here is something else which the Veterans' Administration has not yet made public. In its files are some revealing letters written by its representative, R. F. Andrews, chief of the Veterans' Loan Guaranty Service in Dallas.

On February 18, Andrews reported to Washington: "Mr. Godfrey of the Dallas Home Builders in telephonic conversation with Mr. Baker, Loan Guaranty officer, Dallas, today stated that the side-payment cases now in the hands of the United States attorney in Dallas are progressing to his, Mr. Godfrey's, satisfaction. The innuendo is obvious."

The "side-payment" cases refer to the practice of charging veterans a fee above the limit permitted by the GI Bill of Rights.

Notables Involved

On June 4, Andrews again reported to the Veterans' Administration in Washington:

"It would appear that Washington (the Justice Department) has directed vigorous prosecution . . . but procrastination is the thief of time.

"In instances where so-called 'prominent citizens', as termed by the United States attorney's staff, are involved, it is most convenient to find excuses to postpone from one grand jury to another.

Again on June 10, Andrews made the following report regarding United States Attorney Frank Potter, whom this columnist charged with dragging his feet.

"In view of the indication in these letters that the United States attorney's office may not be properly cooperating in the prosecution of the persons and corporations involved, it is thought that perhaps you may decide to bring the matter specifically to the Attorney General."

Regarding nearby Fort Worth, the Veterans' Administration official reported:

"In Fort Worth one operator, Whitehall & Williams, has been reported as collecting overpayment on all transactions. Cases were presented to the district attorney 18 months or more ago with no action whatsoever to date, other than shuttling them back to the regional chief attorney 'for more information.'"

That is the record of the United States district attorney who hurls the charge of "liar" so readily.

French Gratitude

The idea began with the French Railway Workers Veterans Association, who hauled the Friendship Train through France and who knew about the great job the American railroads—both executives and brotherhoods—did in handling the train in the United States. Simultaneously, Commandant Guy de la Vasselais, former chief of liaison of the Third Army and a friend of the late General Patton, conceived a similar idea. Both took the project to President Auriol of France, who brought them together.

It was the French railway veterans who first proposed sending 48 of the old railway cars used by American troops in World War I (40 men-8 horses). They suggested sending one car to each of the 48 States as a permanent souvenir.

Accordingly permission has been given by the French National Railways to send the cars, and the French Line has agreed to transport them to the United States without charge.

The French veterans also propose loading these cars with gifts for the American people, but have ruled out any food, drink or luxury items. Also they do not want to send anything to Americans made out of raw materials received under the Marshall Plan. Therefore they plan to send typically French, nonluxury items such as Sevres pottery, Limoges porcelain, Baccaret crystals, engraved woodwork, Annecy church bells, Brittany bonnets, peasant costumes, plus history documents of mutual interest to the two countries.

To Visit 48 States

The "Train of Gratitude" will travel through France, just as the Friendship Train traveled through the United States, picking up gifts from local organizations. Upon arrival in the United States, it is planned to send three or four sectional trains to different parts of the country, dropping off one car in each State.

The distribution of the gifts in the United States will be left entirely to each tSate. The historic boxcars will be given to the Forty-and-Eight Veterans or to whichever veterans groups is designated by the different tates.

It is also planned to combine the Train of Gratitude with a letter-writing project called "Merci des Enfants" ("Thanks of the Children"). Each boxcar will contain letters from the children of France to the children of America thanking them for the Friendship Train.

When Congress learned about the French Train of Gratitude, only 36 hours of the session remained. However, it rushed through a special bill exempting the French gifts from customs duties. It was Senators Taft and Millikin, former Speaker Sam Rayburn and Congressman Aime Forand of Rhode Island, who pushed this bill through in such record time.

Six Months More

Six months of days and weeks have sailed . . . Beyond the seven seas . . . With all their smiles and tears and all . . . Their opportunities . . . And whether we have won or lost . . . At least the way is clear . . . To live a better second half . . . Of this eventful year . . . Perhaps we did not give our best . . . And did not do so well . . . And consequently we were not . . . Entitled to excel . . . Or maybe we are justly proud . . . Of what the record shows . . . And we are ready to receive . . . A medal or a rose . . . But this is just the half-way mark . . . Before the year is through . . . And we have six more months in which . . . To show what we can do.
